Roosevelt Calls Refugee Resettlement Conference

Moving of Exiles Into Permanent Homes to Be Topic For Meeting Here

Seeking Havens

By the Associated Press

London, July 19. — President Roosevelt, in a new effort to solve Europe's refugee problem, today invited officers of the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees to meet him in a two-day conference at the White House the first week in September.

The invitation was conveyed to Representatives of Britain, France, Brazil, Argentina and the Netherlands by Myron C. Taylor, the American delegate, at a meeting of the committee. Officers of the committee come from those five countries and the United States. Acceptance is expected as soon as the officers obtain approval of their governments.

Launched by Roosevelt

The year-old committee owes its inception largely to the American President's initiative. In response to his summons, it met and organized at Evian-les-Bains, France, July 7, 1938.

Its efforts then were in finding refuge for Jews and others fleeing from Austria after the annexation by Germany. Since Czecho-Slovakia was absorbed into the Reich, the committee's efforts have been extended.

Besides the Roosevelt invitation, there were two other important developments in connection with the committee's meeting:

The British government offered to take the lead in devising a scheme under which the 30 participating governments would contribute by direct grants of money to the expense of transporting and maintaining refugees.

The committee approved a plan to form within a few days a private, non-sectarian organization to be known as "The Co-ordinating Foundation," to co-ordinate the work of existing refugee organizations.

Permanent Homes Sought

Committee officers expected to sit in the White House conference are Sir Herbert Emerson, director, and Lord Winterton, chairman, both of Great Britain, and five vice chairmen, Myron C. Taylor, United States; Henry Berenger, France; Dr. Tomas A. Le Breton, Argentina; Dr. Beucker Andreae, the Netherlands; M. H. Lobo, Brazil.

A committee spokesman said that the high cost of maintaining refugees in temporary quarters was draining the finances of private charity organizations and indicated the question of moving refugees to permanent homes would be one of the principal topics before the White House meeting.

The "Co-ordinating Foundation" is to have a capital of £200,000 (about $936,000) and to be controlled by a council whose American members are expected to include Dr. Rufus Jones, Haverford, Pa.; John W. Davis, Dave Hennen Morris, former Ambassador to Belgium; Nathan L. Miller, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Owen D. Young, and Joseph Prosbauer.

120,000 in Year

An official report of the work of the intergovernmental committees said at least 120,000 refugees and perhaps 140,000 had left Germany in 1938 and that about 29,000 left in the first four months of 1939.

The report stated that while the rate of emigration was "satisfactory," only a small proportion of these had found a permanent refuge.

Convicts Track Hounds—Honest

Canon City, Colo., July 19 (AP).—Two fugitive Colorado Penitentiary bloodhounds were tracked down by convicts today.

The dogs ran away Monday night after a prison truck, carrying them out to start a hunt for an escaped prisoner, collided with an automobile. The escaped convict was captured a few hours after the "hound truck" wreck.

First Lady Target Of Dickinson Attack

He Twists Excerpt From Her 1932 Criticism of Liquor Evils to Bolster Claim She Advised Girls to Drink

By the United Press.

Lansing, Mich., July 19.—Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, Michigan's 80-year-old crusading chief executive, tonight resumed his campaign against liquor and "high life society," with a radio address in which he linked the formula of "a prominent lady of our Nation" with the drinking habits of modern women.

He told newspapermen at the radio studio that the "prominent lady" to whom he referred is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Dickinson, the oldest governor in the United States, who last week delivered a scathing attack upon "high life society" as he saw it at the recent Governors' Conference in Albany, broadcast an address tonight further castigating the evils of liquor and the pitfall that society holds for innocent young girls.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Gov. Dickinson

"It is not what one contacts immediately at these high class functions that is the danger, but it is what they take away," he said. "These ladies and men that I saw drinking were not intoxicated, as might be inferred.

"Why; I do not know, unless it might be that they learned the formula advised by a prominent lady of our Nation just before liquor came back after prohibition, when she made the statement to young girls that if they would avoid being called prigs, 'the average girl of today faces the problem of learning very young how much she can drink of such things as whisky, gin, etc., and sticking to the proper quantity.'"

Asked directly whether this statement referred to Mrs. Roosevelt, Dickinson said, "Yes."

Asked if he had given the quotation correctly, he replied: "Yes, I have it right here in my pocket."

[In a radio address December 9, 1932, Mrs. Roosevelt said the average girl of today "faces the problem of learning, very young, how much she can drink of such things as whisky and gin, and sticking to the proper quantity."

[She recalled how in her youth "all of us saw wine upon the table in our homes, and many of us saw a good bit of excessive drinking."

[In those days, however, she said a girl was not branded as a prig or as being unsocial if she did not join in whatever drinking was going on, "but prohibition seems to have changed that to a certain extent."

[She pointed out that the modern girl is "better able to take care of herself because her experience is greater, but on the other hand, there are more temptations and they come courting her more frequently. She is away from parental supervision much younger than was the case in my youth. Unless the parents have been wise and trained her young to judge for herself and decide between right and wrong, she is apt to have some bitter experiences."

[Thus the Governor's incomplete quotation implied meanings which differed considerably from the intent of the whole quotation.—Editor's note.]

Dickinson's statement last week-end charged that young girls at the functions of State which he attended at the Governors' Conference were

C. F. Crouse Fatally Hurt by Scraper at D. C. Center Project

Carl F. Crouse, 63, left his home, 408 Third street northwest, for a short walk yesterday afternoon. Ten minutes later he was dead, crushed under a motor road grader at the new Municipal Center project, Third street and Indiana avenue northwest.

A clerk at the Bituminous Coal Commission, Crouse had taken a week's leave to rest up. Yesterday afternoon he told his wife, Mrs. Olive Crouse, that he was going for a walk and look at the new construction.

Watching Steam Shovel

He was standing less than a block from home on Third street between Indiana avenue and C street northwest, apparently intent on a steam shovel, when the road scraper, in reverse, struck him. He was dead when a doctor from Emergency Hospital arrived.

James W. Dawes, 24, of 3604 Perry street, Mount Rainier, Md., an employe of the Highway Engineering and Construction Co., who was operating the scraper, said he did not see Crouse until somebody yelled to him.

Third street is blocked to traffic while construction is underway. The grader was preparing the street for resurfacing.

Mrs. Crouse, sitting on her front porch, was notified by neighbors. She identified the body, then collapsed. The couple had no children.

TVA to Make Profit Soon, Lilienthal Says

Power Properties to Be Bought by Aug. 15, He Tells President

By the Associated Press

David Lilienthal, TVA director, envisioned for President Roosevelt yesterday a bright future for the Tennessee Valley Authority, predicting it would be "making money" shortly and estimating that its eventual revenues would be $25,000,000 annually.

He asserted that he had informed the President the closing of deals for the Tennessee Electric Power Co. and other Commonwealth & Southern Corporation properties in north Alabama and Mississippi would leave behind the agency the most controversial parts of the power program.

Lilienthal said he reported to the President the reaching of an agreement Tuesday night at Nashville under which a new $78,600,000 contract for the purchase of the Tepco properties will be consummated August 15.

He said negotiations would begin next week with Wendell L. Wilkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern, for purchase of certain Mississippi and Alabama power company properties in 27 counties.

With the contracts signed, the director said, TVA will have completed its utility-purchasing program and have a market for the 10-dam TVA system along the Tennessee River.

In the first year after negotiations go through, Lilienthal said, TVA revenues should be $12,000,000, sufficient to cover expenses, compared with last year's $6,000,000. Eventually, he predicted, revenue will reach $25,000,000.

Husband Pummels Ex-Convict Who Kidnaped Him and Wife

By the United Press.

Northampton, Mass., July 19.—A bespectacled, pint-sized former convict who kidnaped his divorced wife during a holdup, was seized in a lonely cabin late today, and when brought to a police station was unmercifully beaten up by the woman's present husband.

Mrs. Beckwith

Ending a 24-hour eight-State search, two State troopers arrested James J. Kehoe, 24, at gun-point in a tiny cabin in New Salem, about 35 miles from here. With him was Mrs. Bernice Beckwith, 27, his former wife, who with her present husband, Cyrl, 30, and Leroy Langdon, were held as hostages after the holdup here yesterday.

As Kehoe stepped from the trooper's automobile at the State police barracks, Beckwith jumped from a group who stood there and slugged the kidnaper.

"You haven't any gun now, so take this," Beckwith shouted, raining blows on Kehoe, who tried to shield his head and face with his manacled hands.

Mrs. Beckwith threw her arms about her present husband and attempted to restrain him, but he continued to strike Kehoe. Three

Compromise Halts Harlan Mine Strife

Union Miners, Coal Operators Sign Pact To Run Until 1941; Troops to Leave

By the Associated Press.

Harlan, Ky., July 19.—Union miners and coal operators waived major differences today to bring peace again to strife-torn Harlan County.

After conferring with Federal conciliators at Knoxville, Tenn., for five days, the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.) and Harlan County Coal Operators Association representatives adopted a 7-point pact to run until March 31, 1941.

The union gave way on its demands for a "union shop" and in turn the operators waived the "strike penalty" clause, objected to by the union, and also agreed to dismiss eviction proceedings against all miners.

Troops to Be Withdrawn

The "union shop" clause, which would require all miners to become union members within a specified time, had been included in other contracts signed with operators. The "strike penalty" provides a fine against the union for "illegal" strikes.

The agreement climaxed two months of intermittent efforts in which Federal and State conciliators participated.

Gov. A. B. Chandler, who sent troops into Harlan County May 14 to "protect" miners returning to work at nonunion mines after the six-week general shutdown, said today: "As soon as I have assurance from both the union and operators that there will be no recurrence of disorder I will withdraw the soldiers."

Murphy Wires Appreciation

Attorney General Murphy wired the Governor tonight that said news of the settlement was deeply appreciated." He invited Chandler to Washington next Monday to discuss efforts to make it a durable and lasting peace." Chandler had not decided tonight whether to go.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, at Washington, said:

"The result showed once more that peaceful collective bargaining is the proper and satisfactory instrument with which to adjust industrial disputes in the interests of the parties directly concerned and of the public."

The general shutdown in bituminous areas, which began April 1 with expiration of the old contract in the eight-State Appalachian area, ended May 13 when 15 associations signed a new union shop agreement after lengthy negotiations in New York.

The Harlan group and five others withdrew from the conference, and subsequently the other groups all signed union-shop pacts.

Mines Have Operated

Mines of the 21 Harlan Association members have been operating since May 15, the day after the arrival of troops.

Periodic flareups of violence have marked the two-month period. Last Wednesday two union men were fatally wounded and four others wounded in a skirmish between troopers and union pickets.

Two hundred and fifty-seven persons are under bond as a result of

2 Alarms Keep Fire From Being 2-Alarm Blaze

A woman with a canary, and a 13-year-old boy, turned in two alarms for a fire at 1619 Seventeenth street northwest yesterday in time to keep the flames from growing to two-alarm proportions.

Mrs. M. Ruiz, who has a third-floor apartment just under the attic where the fire broke out, picked up the cage with her canary, locked her door, and went to pull the fire alarm, saying, "my house is on fire."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Helen Robinson, on the second floor, smelled smoke and sent her son, James, to investigate. Finding the attic on fire, they telephoned another alarm.

Peru, Ecuador Guards Clash

Lima, Peru, July 19 (AP).—The quiet prevailing on the Peru-Ecuador border for more than a year was shattered yesterday by a clash between guards in which two Peruvians were killed. Another Peruvian guard was missing.

Advices from Quito, Ecuador, said the skirmish occurred on Ecuadorean soil and that two Ecuadorean border guards were killed.

Reports from the frontier indicated all was quiet tonight. Both governments agreed to withdraw troop reinforcements sent to the zone.

P.O. Receipts, Youth Jobs Set Records

Department's Income Highest in History; NYA Reports New Mark in Employment

A variety of Government business barometers yesterday gave added evidence of a substantial pickup in business during the remainder of 1939.

Announcing that the United States postal service—one of the biggest monopolies in the world—had closed the fiscal year June 30 with a $10,000,000 operating surplus, Postmaster General Farley said current postal receipts indicated "a sharp upward trend in general prosperity."

Aubrey Williams, head of the National Youth Administration, said NYA junior employment services found positions in industry in June for 10,996 young people—a new high. The number, he declared, is 105 per cent greater than placements in June last year.

Commerce Department and Federal Reserve Board experts predicted a gradual improvement in business and a corresponding rise in national income during the next two months. The third quarter of 1939, they said, should show marked gains over the January-June period.

Postal receipts for the fiscal year just closed, Farley declared, totaled $745,098,350, the highest in history, and $17,000,000 greater than receipts for the previous year.

"The postal establishment," he said, "is a sensitive barometer of business conditions."

Farley remarked that the surplus was the fifth realized in the six years that he had been head of the Post Office Department.

Expenditures Still Down

Postal expenditures, he said, are "still far below what they had been during the previous administration," although volume and receipts had increased, and the 40-hour week for postal employes and the public building program imposed added costs.

Williams said that, although part of the increase in job placements for young people was due to seasonal berry-picking jobs, "a definite pick-up in manufacturing activities seems under way in a number of communities."

Five factors—continuation of heavy Government expenditures, the summer seasonal peak in building activity, the way in which farm purchasing power is holding up, improvement in urban purchasing power, and scattered building up of inventories by business firms—were cited by Government economists in pointing to prospects for further business gains.

66 Billion Paid Out

National income paid out, according to preliminary Commerce Department estimates, is now running at the rate of about $66,000,000,000 annually, as compared with $64,200,000,000 last year and $69,000,000,000 in 1937.

Department records show that construction contract awards and actual building operations now are as large, if not larger, than in the same period of 1937—the best business year since 1929.

The Reserve Board index of industrial production, it was indicated, has been pushed up to about 94 per cent of the 1923-25 averages.

Phone, Plane, Car Rush Passports To Two at Dock

Dr. and Mrs. Wade H. Atkinson, of 1402 M street northwest, sailed yesterday for Europe on the liner President Roosevelt, but only because of the combined speed of telephone, auto, and airplane.

On reaching the liner in New York at 7:30 a. m. the Washington couple discovered they had forgotten their passports. Frantically they phoned their home here. Maynard Saunder, the physician's chauffeur, raced to the airport, boarded a plane for Newark, transferred to a waiting limousine, and reached the dock only a few minutes before sailing time.

Dr. Atkinson, physician here for more than 40 years, is making an annual trip to the mineral springs at Royat, France.

1,200 Trapped In Mine Saved

Liege, Belgium, (Thursday), July 20 (AP).—Twelve hundred miners trapped in the 4,500-foot shafts of the Limburg-Meuse colliery by a power failure were rescued today after several hours facing the danger of foul air.

Fire destroyed a powerhouse electric cable, disabling elevators and ventilators of the mine.

Shortly after midnight, mine officials announced that the power line had been repaired and the miners brought to the surface.

D. C. Reorganization Far Off, Says Kennedy

Holds Plan, Unheard, Is Buried for 'Long, Long Time to Come'

By James D. Secrest.

Taking a slap both at his colleagues on the House sub-committee on District reorganization and at the Commissioners' "kitchen cabinet," Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, yesterday said he saw little prospect of an effective reform of the city government "for a long, long time to come."

"The whole issue is thrown back into confusion by the decision of the sub-committee," Kennedy said in a 2,000-word statement.

The action of the sub-committee in postponing consideration of the Kennedy bill until the next session, he added, "amounted to an outright rejection of the plan pending before the sub-committee, without any attempt to consider it on its merits."

Kennedy's statement made no reference to the hope expressed by President Roosevelt that an effective reorganization of the District government will be voted at the next session of Congress.

"No better time than the present will ever be found," Kennedy said.

Allen Gives Up WPA Post to Full-Time Chief

Donovan Also Resigns; Parker Named Acting D. C. Administrator

Commisioner Allen yesterday resigned as administrator of the District WPA because both he and Federal WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington felt the post should be a full-time job.

Deputy District Administrator George Parker, recently transferred to Washington from Mississippi, was named acting administrator.

Allen, who was joined in his resignation by District Auditor Donovan, assistant administrator, had acted as WPA chief here for four years. Both Allen and Donovan served without pay.

Revamping Discussed

Revamping of the District WPA was discussed by Commissioner Allen and Col. Harrington at the Chicago meeting of WPA last week.

In submitting his resignation to Harrington, Allen wrote:

"As you and I have both agreed that the duty of administering the District of Columbia Works Projects Administration should be a full time job, I hereby tender my resignation as administrator and desire you accept the same effective this date."

Allen Commended

Expressing his "deep appreciation for the unremunerated services" Allen rendered for the WPA, Harrington accepted the resignation and lauded the Commissioner for his "very real contribution to meeting the problem of the needy unemployed in the District through efficient and sympathetic conduct of the program.

"As we agreed shortly after my appointment as Federal Works Progress administrator," the WPA chief said, "the duties of conducting the work program in the District of Columbia are sufficiently heavy to demand the full-time services of an administrator. This is particularly true at this time when your reappointment as District Commissioner throws heavy burdens upon you."

WPA Staff Reduced

The resignations of Allen and Donovan were seen as the first step in divorcing local WPA from the District government.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed yesterday that several members of the District WPA administrative staff have been dismissed in order to meet restrictions placed on the office by the recently enacted relief bill.

Red Tape Cut To Open 4 Play Areas Today

WPA Preparations Rushed to Provide Enough Supervisors

District WPA headquarters, cutting corners in office procedure, will send out special cars early this morning to pick up 15 recreation supervisors, vanguard of approximately 50 to be assigned to service on local playgrounds within a week.

With arrival of the first consignment of supervisors requisitioned by the recreation commission, four school playgrounds will be opened today, according to positive assurances given yesterday by Lewis R. Barrett.

Cleveland, 720 T street northwest; Harrison, 2122 Thirteenth street northwest; Grimke, 1923 Vermont avenue northwest, and Bundy, 420 O street northwest.

Disappointment to children who had expected these grounds and one or two more to open yesterday was unavoidable, Barrett said, because of the necessity for reshuffling personnel throughout the regular playground system in order to make the best use of additional supervisors furnished by WPA.

Further cause of delay, according to S. A. McIntosh, head of the employment service for the District WPA, has been the heavy load of office work imposed on his staff by new regulations in recent relief legislation, showing clearance of supervisors from the WPA office to the recreation commission.

Revising his timetable for expansion of playground facilities, Barrett said the first step after today's opening of school grounds will

Parents to Share Miss Talley's Child, Referee Rules

New York, July 19 (AP).—Marion Talley, former opera star, today was awarded the custody of her 4-year-old daughter for nine months of each year following a bitter custody suit in State Supreme Court.

Referee Richard P. Lydon recommended that the father, Adolph Eckstrom, have the child for three months.

Union Chief Reports a Dearth Of Building Craftsmen Here

Idle bricklayers are as scarce in Washington as teetotalers at a brewers' picnic, John Locher cheerfully complained yesterday.

"You can't get one, even a non-union bricklayer, for love or money," said the man who is president of the Central Labor Union and executive secretary of the Washington Building Trades Council.

"They're all working, that's why," he continued. "The labor employment situation is very, very good right now, and it looks like it will keep on being good."

The reason why bricklayers are especially in demand, he explained, is that most construction is begun in the spring, and mid-July is the time when the bricklaying stage is at its height. Earlier in the year the excavators were busiest, then the foundation builders, and now it's the masons.

"Why, we've had to send emergency calls through to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore for bricklayers, and they're not so plentiful in those cities, either," Locher added.

The demand for structural iron workers is almost as great, he said. About the only building trade now experiencing a slack season is that of the painters, who will have all they can handle in a few months, according to the labor leader.

New Loans Proposals

By Robert C. Albright

With a $2,800,000,000 lending bill the lone major obstacle, Congressional leaders, freed of neutrality uncertainties, yesterday cleared decks for adjournment by July 29 "if possible" or August 5 at the latest.

Softening opposition to the lending bill and its threat of indefinite discussion, a revised and greatly modified Administration measure will be filed today with the Senate Banking Committee by Senate Majority Leader Barkley. It will abandon permanent revolving fund features and make other wide concessions to opponents.

Social security bill conferees neared agreement on conflicting House and Senate amendments and the last appropriation bill—third deficiency — started through the House Appropriations Committee. Barkley suggested pending railroad legislation may go over to next session if it proves an adjournment barrier.

Lines Form for Fight

As the Senate Banking Committee completed public hearings on the lending bill—key to a speedy get-away—lines formed for a fight that still may jeopardize adjournment hopes.

Senate Minority Leader McNary called a Senate Republican conference for this morning to crystalize minority policy on the measure and possibly formulate a stand against foreign loans provisions, road and bridge toll features and alleged public competition with private enterprise.

Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, announced he is drafting a public works amendment supplemental to the program that would make $300,000,000 available to PWA for continued public works loans and grants, 30 per cent to be granted by the Federal Government and 70 per cent advanced in loans to be repaid by the States.

PWA Momentum Grows

From two other quarters came added momentum for a PWA supplement to the program.

Testifying before the Senate Banking Committee, Marriner S. Eccles, Federal Reserve chairman, said in his personal opinion "the self-liquidating program, excellent as it is so far as it goes, should be supplemented by a continuing public works program."

The House Democratic Steering Committee considered the Starnes $350,000,000 bill for continuing PWA as a supplement to the lending program and decided to call Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau before the group Monday to state his views on the proposed addition.

Scrugham Prefers August 5.

Chairman Scrugham of the steering committee said no decision was reached on a probable adjournment date, but he personally was recommending August 5.

Amendments to the lending bill to be offered today by Senate Majority Leader Barkley in the form of a confidential committee print would include the following:

Elimination of the permanent revolving fund which has attracted

U. & U.
Bill Shearer
. . . quick war

* * * *

Now that the political fog which surrounded the McNutt appointment has cleared a little, it becomes apparent that the silver-haired Indianian actually has a small grip on the Roosevelt mantle.

As of this week, he's the nearest thing to a candidate with a chance for the Roosevelt blessing in 1940, and an even better blessing for 1944.

* * * *

McNutt is making a better impression here than he did a year ago when his gigantic cocktail party laid an egg. In a Capital confused and dizzied by an almost insane and unpatriotic partisanship, his self-confidence, pep, his aloofness from the political holy wars, his sang froid and healthy physical high spirits are refreshing and almost unique.

"—McNutt wore his shoes"

An illustration of his temperament occurred at his audience with the Japanese Emperor on his way from the Philippines. Unlike most of Hirohito's callers, McNutt wore his shoes into the presence; and the Emperor received him standing up, wearing a military uniform and looking healthier than his pictures.

* * * *

The payoff came when Emperor Hirohito, speaking through an interpreter, said Japan would be willing to sign a treaty guaranteeing the integrity of the Philippines.

This bizarre offer startled McNutt so much, it seemed so disingenuous, that he could make no reply.

He just laughed out loud.

* * * *

In fact, McNutt seems to have the healthiest glands, the best digestion among the heirs-not-so-apparent. There's even a touch of the Rooseveltian about him, and maybe that's what appeals to FDR. He's reminiscent of the Teddy who sent the fleet around the world.

If he ever gets into the White House the Democratic donkey will know who's in the saddle.

That romantic and unpredictable figure, Bill Shearer, whom legend credits with derailing the Geneva naval parley when it threatened to slow up warship construction, is now telling everyone in the Capital who will listen that "now is the time to knock off Japan."

* * * *

One of Washington's mystery men, Shearer is generally referred to as a big Navy lobbyist. His hobby is painting ships, from ancient galley slave triremes to aircraft carriers.

He is saying that with Japan sprawled all over Asia, she could be bowled over in a quick war, and that this would relieve war tension all over the world.

He's very blase about it; regards his "quick war" as a sort of vaccination.

Health Plan to Be '40 Issue, Says Dr. Leland

Special Session On Neutrality Is Threatened

Call Certain if New Crisis Arises, White House Indicates

Dropped from this session's agenda, the Administration's abandoned neutrality bill came to life anew yesterday as a probable recess issue and the subject of a special session call if war appears imminent in Europe.

From Chairman Pittman, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and from Stephen T. Early, secretary to the President, came word that Congress undoubtely will be called back into session for neutrality action if another war crisis develops.

Pittman predicted a special session will be called "if a widespread war is precipitated." He said there will be "quite a different sentiment" in Congress and in the country if a brutal war develops. And he added that "no one but Hitler would precipiate such a war."

May Appeal to Public

Administration Democrats were divided on whether the President meanwhile would "carry to the country" his appeal for arms embargo repeal. Early voiced doubt that the matter would figure in speeches during the President's coming Western trip. Pittman said it would be "quite natural" for the President to present his views in forthcoming speeches, but doubted there would be any aggressive campaign comparable to former President Wilson's fight for the League of Nations.

Jubilant over Tuesday night's White House leadership decision to postpone neutrality consideration, isolationist foes of the bill announced they would meet any Presidential appeal to the country with a speaking campaign of their own.

Borah Ready

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, is understood to have told the President as much in Tuesday night's frank discussion, and yesterday Senator Johnson (Republican), of California; Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, and Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota), reiterated the threat.

"I'm certain of one thing," said White House Secretary Early. "From the time of adjournment until January when Congress meets again the President will pray as never before in all his life that there will be no new crisis in Europe."

Nazis Hail "Roosevelt Failure"

From London meanwhile came reports of disappointment over the decision to postpone action, although it was said unofficially the action was not a surprise. Fascist comment in rome hailed the action as surrender by the President to "isolationists" while the Berlin press assailed Mr. Roosevelt and said he had experienced "a new political failure."

Administration Senators at the Capitol voiced keen regret, Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, who had been considering an independent move to revive the bill, called postponement "tragic." Senator Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, said it is "severe blow to the peace-loving people of this country and to the peace-seeking nations of the world."

1940 Precedence Questioned

Meanwhile Senator Clark, of Missouri, challenged the suggestion in the bipartisan statement from the White House that neutrality will be considered at the start of next session. He said neither Majority Leader Barkley nor Minority Leader McNary could bind the Senate to make it the first order of business. Clark said the matter will come before the Foreign Relations Committee in the normal course and predicted opposition sentiment would be "stronger than ever."

Garner Forces Showdown

Tuesday night's White House conference, as reconstructed yesterday by senatorial participants, revealed Vice President Garner as the man who brought the issue to a showdown by polling leaders present on the prospects of action. When each questioned answered "no," Garner told the President "that we might as well be candid. You haven't got the votes."

All concerned said the conference ended gracefully, with good feeling all around, but sharp words passed during the conference between Borah and the President.

Borah challenged the President's citation of information leading him to believe that war in Europe is a possibility. Borah said he, too, had sources of information he believed reliable, and declared in his opinion war is unlikely.

Borah Defends Senate

Borah was said to have flared again when the President said he wanted to make it clear that the responsibility was on the Senate.

"Of course the responsibility is on the Senate," Borah was paraphrased. "Where else could it rest? It is perfectly proper that it should be there. We are not operating under Hitler."

The President was said to have asked arms embargo repeal as "another shot" he would have for world peace if an international crisis developed. He said he had fired one "shot" before the Munich conference and another in appealing to Hitler and Mussolini for a pledge against aggression last April. And he said he wanted a third in reserve.

Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, replied that Congress had given him reserve ammunition in the new national defense program, which he believed might be even more effective in preserving peace.

House May Rule on Whether Sabath Did File Committee Report; Colleagues Say He Didn't

Chairman A. J. Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, of a special House committee which investigated bondholders' reorganizations, said yesterday he had filed a 576-page report with the House.

REP SABATH

Three other members of the committee say that he didn't file it, because they never approved the report.

Life of the committee expired last January, but Sabath has been working on the report for months.

Representative Martin J. Kennedy (Democrat), of New York, and Representatives Everett Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, and Francis D. Culkin (Republican), of New York, only other members of the committee now in Congress, say Sabath made public the printed document without consulting them.

But Sabath maintained that "the report is filed and I don't give a damn who says it isn't."

An official ruling of House officials may be sought on whether the report is officially filed.

Senator McNary (Republican), of Oregon, said yesterday he had been advised legislation to authorize $407,855,000 of rivers and harbors projects might not be acted upon by the Senate this session because of objections raised by President Roosevelt.

The bill as passed by the House authorized outlays of only $83,848,000, but the Senate Commerce Committee, before reporting the measure to the floor, added projects with an estimated cost of $324,040,500.

The House passed legislation setting up definite requirements to govern the issuance of trust indentures. It goes back to the Senate for consideration of amendments.

The original Senate bill would authorize the securities commission to set up standards while the House-approved version would substitute statutory standards. Indentures in excess of $1,000,000 would be exempted. A trust indenture is a legal document setting forth obligations of an issuer of securities to purchasers relative to collateral, defaults and the like.

The building is to be financed by private funds and will be located on a 12-acre tract. The Government is to pay maintenance costs.

John L. Lewis, saying the death of 28 men in a Kentucky coal mine last week was "a deadly testimonial to the inadequacy of State inspection," pleaded yesterday that the Government take over the job.

The explosion victims at Providence, Ky., died "like rats in a hole," he said, "and the same hazard of imminent disaster hangs over hundreds of other coal mines."

Lewis, president of both the CIO and the United Mine Workers, wrote each member of Congress, saying it was imperative that quick action be taken on legislation to permit Federal inspection of mines and publicity of inspectors' reports.

Goes Monteiro Pleased Over Trip

Gen. Pedro A. Goes Monteiro, Brazilian army chief, paying a farewell call on President Roosevelt and War Department officials yesterday, declared his visit to the United States, "has been unusually profitable to Brazil."

"Understanding and friendship between the United States and Brazil have always been of the best," he declared upon emerging from a half hour's visit with the President. "But since relations between countries change or are capable of changing, and since Brazil is now in a state of transformation, I feel my visit has been most profitable, particularly to Brazil."

U. S. to Probe WPA Strike in Minnesota

Murphy Orders Grand Jury to Sift Facts As FBI Makes Report

Federal grand jury investigation into the WPA strike in Minnesota was ordered yesterday by Attorney General Frank Murphy.

Meanwhile an agreement between Gov. Stassen, of Minnesota, and State WPA Administrator Glotzbach, providing for resumption of the WPA program in Minneapolis, was tentatively approved by WPA Commissioner Harrington.

Harrington said the Government had no desire to penalize persons who had failed to report to work during the period of disturbances in that city, in which one person was killed, and that he had approved an arrangement to permit them to return as rapidly as possible.

The enrollees have but one requirement before returning to their jobs, Harrington said, and that is to sign affidavits that they had not engaged in illegal action in violation of Federal law during the work stoppages.

Murphy Gets Report

Immediately following a study of evidence collected at Minneapolis by G-men, Murphy directed United States Attorney Victor Anderson at St. Paul to convene a grand jury to hear the facts. The report of the special agents "indicates a violation of Federal law," the Attorney General said, but declined to reveal the disclosures.

G-men have been on the strike scene in Minneapolis for several days investigating the fatal rioting.

The Workers Alliance said last night at least 500,000 WPA workers were expected to participate today in a one-day demonstration against the new Federal work regulations.

Edgar Brown, president of the United Government Employes, announced last night the colored union called upon all its members to refrain from joining the demonstration and to stick by their jobs.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Brehon Somervell, local works projects administrator, disclosed today the House appropriations subcommittee had requested the names of all persons taking part in a stoppage called by the WPA Teachers' Union for the noon hour.

He said the sub-committee also wanted identified those who participate in a stoppage scheduled for tomorrow under the auspices of the Workers' Alliance, a union of WPA and unemployed workers.

Strike Is Postponed

Philadelphia, July 19 (U.P.).—A strike on all Federal government-financed projects, scheduled for 6 p. m. tonight, was postponed late today by the Philadelphia Building Trades Council.

Norman Blumberg, secretary-treasurer of the council, American Federation of Labor affiliate, announced the postponement of the strike, which was called in sympathy with the Statewide WPA walkout.

$10 Social Security Rule for States Reported Killed

A conference committee of the Senate and House agreed tentatively yesterday, one member reported, to eliminate from new social security legislation a requirement that States must contribute at least $10 a month for each needy aged person given public assistance.

As passed by the Senate, the legislation provided States must contribute at least that amount or receive nothing from the Federal Government for old-age assistance.

District Man Will Command Byrd Cutter

Lieut. Comdr. Kenner Named to First Federal Antarctic Expedition

Lieut. Comdr. W. W. Kenner, known among Washingtonians who attended old Tech High School as "one of the Kenner twins," will command the Coast Guard cutter Northland on its first expedition into the Antarctic, it was announced yesterday.

Commander Kenner, who has been stationed in Baltimore the past year, left by plane for the West Coast last night to bring the ice-cutting ship through the canal to Boston, where Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is assembling men and supplies for the trip "down under."

The first Government venture into Antarctic exploration and settlement, the expedition will start early in October.

Has Identical Twin

A son of the late Wilson T. Kenner, chief engineer at the McMillan Filtration Plant for a number of years, Kenner, with his twin brother, Frank T., graduated from Tech in 1922.

So much alike teachers could not tell them apart, even by their grades, the boys both won appointments to the Coast Guard Academy and have advanced at the same speed. Lieut. Comdr. Frank T. Kenner is now stationed in Honolulu.

Officer personnel to serve with him on the Antarctic expedition, according to announcement from Coast Guard headquarters, will be: Lieut. K. C. Phillips, now stationed in Baltimore; Lieut. H. B. Roberts, now in San Francisco; Lieut. R. F. Rea, who is in command of the Sebago at Norfolk, and Lieut. (j. g.) Rollins, who is in command of the Haida at Juneau, Alaska.

Base Leaders Named

Base leaders who will be in charge at bases set up in the Antarctic were announced by the Interior Department last night as follows: Richard B. Black, field representative with Interior, who was with Byrd on his 1933-35 expedition and last year "took over" the Canton Islands in the Pacific; Dr. F. Alton Wade, assistant field representative with Interior, who was with the 1933 trip as geologist, and Paul Siple, assistant field representative who as the Nation's No. 1 Boy Scout was with Byrd on his first South Pole trip in 1928 and was a member of the party again in 1933. Siple now is in Boston helping assemble supplies.

Three other assignments have been made to the expedition to date: Clay Bailey, Navy radio expert; Finn Ronne, transportation engineer who is training dogs for the trip in Wanalancet, N. H., and Roger Hawthorne, Washington newspaper man, who covered the former Byrd trips.

30,000 Letters Flood House Daily as Neutrality Bill Dies

Postoffice Crew Says It's Used To Such Rushes When Voters Get Wrought Up Over Certain Legislation

It was snowing yesterday at the House of Representatives . . . snowing mail as 38 members of the House Postoffice staff "pitched" letters into Congressional mailboxes. Most of the 30,000 missives concerned the tattered and torn neutrality bill. They were forwarded to the House letterbox from the City Postoffice on Tuesday at about the time that President Roosevelt and Congressional leaders were burning midnight oil over the neutrality tangle.

According to the postoffice crew, the blizzard will fall off gradually the rest of the week but up until now it's averaged between 16,000 and 12,000 pieces of correspondence a day. Right now they're a little dazed with it all, but they say they're used to rushes like this every time an important piece of legislature attracts the attention of voters all over the country.

Part of the shift is always up with the dawn, sorting the mail into 435 boxes at 5:30 in the morning. When 9 o'clock rolls around, they deliver the House calendar for the day. Ten o'clock finds them leaving out-of-town papers at office doors and at noon the letters start all over again. By 3:30 in the afternoon, the final delivery is rushed through.

Another detail to be attended to during the course of a day is the re-addressing of dozens of envelopes that pour in to former members of Congress. Their present residence has to be checked and their correspondence rerouted.

Mold Indicted Here as Forger of Checks for $200

Lucy L. Coleman, 22-year-old colored maid, was accused in seven indictments yesterday of forging her employer's name to 17 checks for more than $200.

The girl, it was charged, started exchanging checks signed "Mrs. Mary E. McGhee," of 1352 Locust road northwest, on May 20, getting $4. She was arrested when, it was charged, she tried to cash a $50 check June 2.

The indictments were among 35, accusing 34 persons, presented to Justice Morris in District Court yesterday.

The accused persons included seven men charged with four violent robberies in a two-day "crime wave" here, May 31 and June 1. Murdock Royal, 24, alleged leader, was shot four times by police when he was caught June 1. His alleged companions were James A. Martin, 23; William Drake, 24; Frank Fowler, 23; Walter Scott, 33; Daniel E. Cody, 31, and John H. Tague, 26. The seven were accused of robbery and assault with dangerous weapons.

Others indicted were:

Joy-riding—Richard J. Fowler, 28; Fred L. Hardy, 28.

Grand larceny—Ross Ballard, 32, colored; Walter Rice, 20, colored; James A. Whittaker, 24, colored.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Herman Harris, 29, colored; Arnold McCorsan, 24.

Rubber Industry Termed Safest

The rubber industry is the safest large industry in the United States, it was announced yesterday by the National Safety Council.

Regarded as a hazardous industry only 15 years ago, employment in the manufacture of rubber products is safer in 1939 than in other large industrial employments, except tobacco, and tobacco manufacture employs less than one-third as many workers as the rubber industry, it was said.

In the rubber industry the frequency rate of accidens is 6.92—43 per cent below the average for all industries. The severity rate of 0.58 is 62 per cent less than all industries' average. The rubber statistics are based on 1938 reports, covering 38 plants, 61,000 employes and an accident exposure of more than 83,000,000 man-hours of work, it was said.

Health Center Bids Soon to Be Requested

Officials Anticipate Completion of Unit Early Next Spring

Bids for the construction of the Capital's first public health center will be received by the end of the month and the structure should be completed early next spring, Health Department officials said yesterday.

The long-delayed clinic, to be located at Delaware avenue and H street southwest, will be equipped and staffed to diagnose and treat venereal diseases and tuberculosis, as well as give medical care and advice to children and pre-natal care for women.

Congress appropriated $200,000 for the project over a year ago. Complications over selection of a site and over the building's design held up the start.

To consist of three stories and basement, with the maternal and child welfare unit housed in a one-floor wing, the health center will be of brick, with white stone trim. It will be air conditioned, provided sufficient funds are available.

On the first floor will be the venereal disease clinic, pharmacy, sterilizing room, lecture room and an examination room. The chest clinic will be on the second floor, as well as the laboratories, a social service office and the custodian's office. Facilities for personnel will be on the third floor.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer, proposes to build four centers in various sections of the city, but funds have been provided only for one.

Laymen's Retreat Work 'Laudable,' Meeting Is Told

Plans for a regular monthly luncheon sessions, beginning the third Wednesday in August, were adopted at a luncheon of the Washington League of Laymen's Retreats yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

Warmly greeted was the Rev. Robert S. Lloyd, S.J., spiritual director of the Manresa Retreat House, Annapolis, who announced a check for $9,000 had just been paid toward reduction of the building debt.

Presiding was Dr. M. D'Arcy Magee, president of the Washington League, who urged the men to continue to become emissaries in the "laudable work." Rossa F. Downing, pioneer of the local lawyers' retreat unit, also spoke briefly.

Among the guests were Leo A. Rover, John J. Keaton, Albert E. Brault, Bernard F. Garvey, Harry Somerville, Col. Leo Codd, Gerald Walsh, Philip Werner, Franz Ridgway, Carmin Garosolo, Camden McAtee, Earl P. Ready, Thomas Murphy, James Flynn, C. Thomas Du Fief, John Feeney, Walter Plant and others.

Transit Co. Seeks To Discontinue Butternut Line

The Capital Transit Co., yesterday requested a permit to discontinue the Butternut street carline service to Takoma Park.

A date for a hearing on the request, which was sent to the Public Utilities Commission, will be set today, it is understood.

Officials of the commission said the company planned to augment the present bus service in the Takoma Park area. It was also stated a protest of a resident had already been forwarded to the commission.

Stamp Will Mark Print Milestone

Now the printers will have a postage stamp, one commemorating the 300th anniversary of the introduction of printing in the United States, the Postoffice Department announced yesterday. It will be of 3-cent denomination, printed in purple ink.

In 1639, Stephen Daye, using a press imported from England, produced the "Freeman's Oath." No copy of it is known to exist today.

The stamp probably will be placed on first-day sale on September 25, at a place later to be announced.

2,335 Reported Missing Here In Last Year

In 1938, 2,335 persons were reported missing in Washington and 111 of these have not been located, according to a survey conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

One of the missing was an amnesia victim, the report stated. Of 28 found dead, all but one was later identified.

America's missing persons numbered 192,700 in 1938, and the whereabouts of 16,500 of those missing remains a mystery, according to the survey. A total of 1,667 of those missing were amnesia victims, and all but 91 were subsequently identified, either through medical treatment or their fingerprints in the FBI files. Further, 9,530 unidentified deceased persons were found and of these 2,375 were later identified.

Space Needs Studied by U. S. Officials

Reorganization Plan Gives Federal Unit Acute Problem

Faced with economic restrictions and the need for properly housing the multitude of bureaus and agencies reorganized July 1, Government space control officials yesterday revealed they are in the midst of an intensive study.

The Federal Government's rent bill in the District is now approximately $3,600,000 a year, highest in history. Space totaling 3,800,000 square feet in 140 buildings is under lease for offices or storage.

W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of the new Public Buildings Administration, which took over the old division of Government space control from the Interior Department, yesterday described the acute situation to the House Appropriaions Committee at hearings on the third deficiency bill.

"We are making studies to determine the easiest way of shifting personnel affected by the reorganization orders with a minimum of expense and inconvenience," Reynolds told The Post.

The necessity of keeping the rent bill within bounds was emphasized by Clay J. Guthridge, head of the section of planning and space control, as the former Interior Department unit is now known.

Although thousands of Federal workers are involved in the reorganization plan, there have been only a few office shifts since it went into effect and no major moves are definitely scheduled for the future, Guthridge asserted. He added, "many are in the making."

Important factors in Uncle Sam's housing program in the District are the willingness of Congress to continue to appropriate funds for rented space and the speed with which the present construction is completed and new building projects started.

New homes for the War and Navy Departments would materially relieve the problem, but the former is still in the planning stage and no appropriation has been made for the latter. Meantime, bids soon will be received on a contract to enlarge the wartime-constructed Navy building on Constitution avenue.

German Army At War Pace, France Hears

Paris Press Predicts 'State of Tension' for August, September

By the United Press.

Paris, July 19.—The French press today published reports describing extensive German military activities, and suggesting that the Reich's armed forces will be in a "state of alert" around August 15.

The Paris Midi said flatly: "We are on the eve of German mobilization August 15," and the Excelsior said: "Germany seems to wish to give the impression that she is ready for war."

From Highest Sources

When such information reaches all Paris newspapers simultaneously it is certain that it comes from the highest sources. Thus the French government has received official information causing it to fear another period of tension, or it is putting special emphasis on less positive reports in order to offset the possibility of another surprise move by Fuehrer Hitler.

The information on which the dispatches were based was said to include:

Heavy troop movements, with the regimental numbers of the men camouflaged to prevent identification.

The number of German reservists under arms will reach 1,000,000 by the end of July. (Germany's regular army, exclusive of reserves, is believed to total about 1,000,000 men.)

The German harvest is being accelerated, especially in East Prussia, adjoining Poland.

Fortifications in the Rhineland, opposite the French frontier, are being rushed to completion.

Germany has ordered the vacations of SA and SS Storm Troopers ended by August 10.

The high source from which this information emanated was said to believe that a period of tension will begin around August 15 and will progressively increase toward the end of September.

War Held Unintended

These quarters were said to believe, however, that Germany, while seeking to create the impression that Berlin has accepted the idea of settling European problems by arms, really hasn't any intention of resorting to war.

An indication that the French government is convinced of the precariousness of the situation was the decree of Premier Daladier ordering the vacations of French armament workers postponed until September 30. It was understood if there was no war by that time and no prospects of early fighting, Daladier would cut down the military overhead early in October by sending home the first batches of married or "dispensable" reservists.

French mobilization figures have been kept secret, but it is believed France now has more than 1,300,000 men under arms.

2,000,000 in Sight

Berlin, July 19 (U.P.).—The increasing tempo of military activity throughout Germany caused observers to estimate tonight the Reich will have 2,000,000 men under arms by the end of August.

Recent classes of reservists, called up for three months, have added 400,000 men to the army. There was no indication the 400,000 reservists called up last spring had been released.

Unusual military activity of recent weeks included:

An unusual amount of troop movements, both day and night, throughout Germany.

The covering of license plates of military trucks taking part in the movements.

The requisitioning of a number of automobiles and the inspection of a number of trucks preliminary to requisitioning.

The erection of earthworks along the Polish frontier about 8 miles behind the border. This is in addition to Germany's permanent fortifications along this frontier, which are about 30 miles back.

U. S., Canadians Meet to Discuss Road to Alaska

Plans for speeding construction of a $25,000,000 highway between the United States and Alaska will be discussed Monday in Victoria, British Columbia, with Canadian officials in the first meeting with Americans on the matter.

The United States will be represented by Representative Magnuson (Democrat), of Washington; Dr. Ernest Gruening, director of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions; James W. Carey, of the Alaskan International Highway Commission, and Donald McDonald, of Alaska.

The project has long been considered necessary to Alaskan development, but now is looked upon as a defense precaution as well.

Britain, Japan Halt Talk on China in Anger

London Is Reported Ready to Agree War Exists, However

By the Associated Press

Tokyo (Thursday), July 20.—Informed government sources today said Great Britain had indicated readiness to agree "in principle" that a state of war exists in China, at a conference yesterday which nevertheless ended in deadlock.

The Anglo-Japanese conference on Britain's policy in China and the Japanese blockade of Tientsin's foreign concessions came to a full stop after British Ambassador Craigie and Foreign Minister Arita conferred in two heated sessions and were reported to have parted in anger.

The Ambassador was forced to postpone a resumption of the conversations until Friday pending further instructions from London. The talks similarly were postponed from Monday until today for receipt of new decisions of the cabinet in London.

While indicating willingness to recognize "in principle" that there is war in China, Craigie was said to have been unable to promise that Britain would actively assist the Japanese army in restraining anti-Japanese terrorism in China.

These were Arita's two principal demands, it was said. British agreement to the first would virtually grant belligerent rights to Japan—although war never has been officially declared—and give her greater latitude in her procedure against third powers in China.

The negotiations, initiated to end the deadlock at Tientsin where Japanese have blocked the French and British concessions since June 14, have been stalled on the initial scope of the talks.

100 of 10,000 Germans Leave Italian Tyrol

Irredentist Move Held Reason for Repatriation Order

By Charles H. Gupthill

Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

Bolzano, Italy, July 19.—The exodus of Germans has begun from this mountainous province of the Italian Tyrol astride the road over the Brenner Pass into Germany. They are leaving under Premier Mussolini's orders designed to Italianize the frontier.

Inhabitants estimate that about 100 Germans already have gone to Germany. They are described as the "fervent Nazis" among the approximately 100,000 Germans due to leave under the new repatriation agreement between Rome and Berlin.

There have been rumors of an incipient irredentist movement in the Tyrol. This has been considered in foreign circles as largely responsible for the desire of Mussolini to move the German-speaking inhabitants of the Tyrol away from the frontier, thus removing a minority which might eventually cause trouble.

No Trouble Indicated

While there have been reports that many inhabitants were disgruntled at the prospects of moving away from homes they and their ancestors have occupied for centuries—as they were at previous efforts to Italianize them after Italy acquired the South Tyrol from Austria in the World War settlement—evidence of trouble was lacking.

A quick survey before Bolzano police authorities requested me to leave the province indicated the evacuation procedure still was pretty much up in the air.

Chamberlain Limits Debate In Commons

Launches Drive to Adjourn Parliament By August 4th

By the Associated Press

London, July 19.—Amid new preparations to strengthen the defenses of Britain and her allies, Prime Minister Chamberlain today launched a drive to complete vital legislation so Parliament might adjourn August 4, and succeeded in limiting debate.

The prime minister had a stormy day in the House of Commons, first facing a series of opposition questions ranging over most of the international situation and then precipitating bitter criticism when he sought to cut four days off the time for debate of government bills.

The Parliamentary opposition got little information from him beyond the fact that negotations are going on in Tokyo concerning the Tientsin dispute and that Chamberlain hoped to be able to announce conclusion or a British-French-Soviet mutual assistance pact before Parliament adjourns.

"We certainly have not got an agreement yet," he said in response to questioning.

Military Defense Steps

Creation of a new military command in the important Suez Canal area.

A new flight by Royal Air Force bombers over France and a hint by Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood that similar flights might be made over Poland, Greece, Rumania and Turkey.

Announcement that British warships would visit Greek and Turkish ports soon and that the government was considering such visits to Rumanian, Russian and Bulgarian ports.

At the same time, informed quarters said Britain was considering a loan to Poland in addition to credits which the government is planning to grant for strengthening Polish defenses.

Arthur Greenwood, acting leader of the Labor opposition, led the attack on Chamberlain for shortening the time to debate government bills.

Chamberlain pushed through his motion to shorten debate time without difficulty, however. The vote was 208 to 147.

The flight of nearly 100 Royal Air Force planes over France was kept secret until the majority of the planes had returned to their bases.

A group of Blenheim bombers left their British bases at 7 a. m. and returned in three hours after a circuit over Paris, Orleans and Chartres.

Another group of Wellington and Whitley bombers flew a round trip of 1,500 miles to the vicinity of Marseille on the Mediterranean.

Today's exercises were similar to those of July 11 when more than 100 British planes participated as a gesture of solidarity with France.

Rescue Tanker Races Death 80 Miles in Fog

San Francisco, July 19 (AP).—An 80-mile race with death in the fog-shrouded far Pacific was recounted today as further details came by radio regarding the burning and sinking of the Japanese freighter Bokuto Maru, 3,500 miles west of San Francisco.

Of the upward of 200 persons aboard the ship, so far as could be learned, only three died—a 3-year-old baby, a junior second engineer and a stewardess.

The rest put out in four lifeboats a few minutes before the vessel sank.

The tanker Associated turned 80 miles from its course, found the fog gradually lifting as lifeboats were sighted, and took the survivors aboard. They were transferred a few hours later to the Florida Maru, bound for Yokohama. The survivors were in lifeboats about 12 hours.

Police Smash Anti-Nazi Ring In Danzig

City Hums With Army Activities; Guns Are Trained on Poland

By the Associated Press

Free City of Danzig, July 19.—Danzig's new political police, the Free City's counterpart of the German Gestapo, today smashed what Nazis described as a ring of "Socialist dynamiters."

The purge to crush remnants of any opposition to the local Nazi government coincided with announcement that the police force had been increased to about 4,000 men on active duty.

Police said that 20 "Marxists" had been jailed on charges of treason, and declared only three more men actively hostile to the Nazi plan for reuniting Danzig with Germany were still at large.

Authorities said the arrested Socialists were die-hards who refused to recognize changed conditions when the Nazis became dominant in 1933. They asserted they had evidence the Socialists conspired to bomb bridges and public buildings in event of a clash with Poland.

They added there were indications that those arrested had "relations with a hostile foreign power" and in official circles no effort was made to conceal an opinion that the "foreign power" was Poland.

Military Activity Increases

Evidence of military activity, meanwhile, increased in Danzig. Several detachments of helmeted men were seen in the streets. Military trucks appeared frequently, moving between barracks on the Danzig-Zoppot highways, and Danzig's two hills—Bishofsberg and Hagelsberg.

"We are confident that the protective measures are adequate for defense against any conceivable attack," an official said. "We know that in event of aggression from Poland we shall have to defend ourselves only a few hours before we get assistance from the German Reich."

Polish Diplomat Turned Back

Danzig, July 19 (INS).—A Polish diplomat tonight was turned away from an inspection voyage of Danzig territory adjacent the Polish port of Gydnia.

The vessel was halted by a Danzig harbor police vessel and turned back because the Polish ship allegedly did not comply with local police regulations.

Warsaw, July 19 (INS).—Danzig police are constructing anti-tank defenses within the Free City facing the Polish frontier near Gydnia, under supervision of German army engineers, Exchange Telegraph reported today. According to the dispatch, German soldiers brought 20 anti-tank guns and ammunition into Danzig at noon today by motor truck.

Not Shakespeare, Author Says He'll Prove for $50,000

A Bostonian yesterday "guaranteed to prove that at least five plays in the Shakespeare Folio of 1623 were not written by William Shakespeare, of Stratford on Avon." He wants $50,000 for his information, but points out, "Publication of this evidence will save the American public more than $50,000 annually. It will eliminate pilgrimages to Stratford on Avon by many thousand Americans."

The Bostonian, Arthur W. Sanborn, who reports that he is himself an author, says "the greatest intellectual controversy of all time deserves a distinguished funeral."

House Group Urges Plane Building Plan

Suggestion to Drop Competitive Bidding Killed by Committee

A House Military subcommittee yesterday rejected an Administration proposal for authority to dispense with competitive bidding in purchasing Army planes, but advanced a compromise plan which officials say will permit the air expansion program to go forward without delay.

Members of the group said they will recommend the War Department be authorized to award contracts to the three lowest bidders, rather than to the lowest as required by existing law. President Roosevelt and Army officials had asked that until 1941, during the period of the Air Corps expansion, the Department be allowed to negotiate contracts without competitive bid restriction.

Capacity Can't Be Advanced

The testimony furnished the committee indicated the plane program would be delayed from 12 to 18 months under existing law, because a few large companies would obtain all the business. Not only would these few contractors be unable to make deliveries for the whole program on time, Army officials testified, but one of the chief purposes of the expansion program—enlarging the nation's aircraft productive capacity would not be carried out.

Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Chief of Air Corps, said last night on his return from the Army air purchasing center at Wright Field, Ohio, the compromise plan as outlined by the subcommittee would be acceptable to the Army. It should be possible to spread the program over the entire industry under this system, he indicated.

Arms Sale Increases

Meanwhile, publication of the June report of the National Munition Control Board revealed the United States is doing a boom business in armament exports, with France taking the lead in purchasing war materials in this country. During the last month, the French government obtained licenses for export of armaments totaling $15,246,310, the largest ever issued in one month for any country.

Since the first of the year, France has obtained arms licenses—mostly for planes and aircraft engines—totaling $36,242,250. About 25 per cent of this amount, $9,187,557, has been delivered, but officials of the French Air Mission here said deliveries were going forward on schedule. Great Britain obtained export licenses totaling $14,315,785 during the past six months, while orders from other nations brought the total to $72,112,319, or a yearly rate of $150,000,000.

Other points of the agreement are:

Submission to an arbitration board of disputes arising over the collection of union dues which can not be settled otherwise.

Agreement by the association in good faith to co-operate with the union in securing convenient and adequate meeting places for the local unions.

Immediate return to work of all employes to their respective mines without discrimination or prejudice. No new employes are to be hired until all old employes have been given an opportunity to work.

Lower Butcher's Bill Forecast This Fall

By the United Press.

The butcher's bill may be smaller this fall and winter.

A Department of Agriculture report last night showed prospective substantial increases in meat supplies this fall—in pork, 15 to 20 per cent. A six-year record shipment of hogs will move within the next few months, the report said.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Target Of Attack by Dickinson

Willo Sheridan, pretty good-will ambassadress of the Michigan aircraft industry, ended her fling in New York pleasure spots in the early hours of yesterday by whirling around the dance floor with Lawrence Baker, New York and Washington society man. She arrived in the big city in the wake of a blast of criticism from her State's Gov. Luren Dickinson about the evils he saw on a trip East. Yesterday, Willo said, "I don't think New York is a very wicked city" possible prey of "social brutes." He prefaced tonight's statement with a declaration that it was a reply to critics of the first one.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

"I hope this will be taken only by those who are hit," he said, which, as I stated, was a small percentage of those present, those in the main beigh high-class people."

He said his comments were gathered from 40 years of public observation at churches, dry campaigns, chautauquas, lectures and similar enterprises. He said he had been entertained at 800 hotels during his life, "but it was only after careful comparison of this event (the Governors' conference) with the entertainment of other years and places that I unhesitatingly said that I saw more drinking by women by far than ever before and the urging of girls to do so.

"Everywhere we are told there is more drinking by women and girls than at any other time in the nation's history. They gather, especially the younger ones, at roadhouses, beer gardens, etc., from which they are recruited for the houses of ill fame.

"Was it by persuasion of a young friend at a social party, at a home in the neighborhood, possibly that of a member of a church, or at a dance hall, or on the way home from the theater, or lastly, imitating the elaborately dressed ladies at a fashionable party, as I stated in the article?"

Dickinson said that 20 years ago he was associated in a "vice investigation commission." His activities with the commission, he added, disclosed to him "all the arts, tricks, etc., for procuring girls to satisfy the 60,000 recruits annually needed in houses of ill fame."

The occasion was the executive's first radio broadcast, but his failure to supply advance copies to stations of the Michigan Radio Network kept all but one station from carrying his address, because of a network rule prohibiting the broadcasting of talks unless the manuscript has been approved.

Meanwhile, it was understood Attorney General Thomas Read had prepared an opinion declaring invalid a petition for the recall of Dickinson initiated by former State Representative John B. Corliss, of Detroit. The charges against the Governor in the petition did not meet the 200-word minimum required under State statute and neither did they name a misfeasance, malfeasance or nonfeasance required in such a petition.

Women Apologize

Albany, N. Y., July 19 (AP).—A score of Michigan citizens, "mostly women," Gov. Lehman's office said today, have written "personal apologies" for their Gov. Dickinson's statements "high life" prevailed at the recent Governors' conference here.

The Sheriff May Not Get His Man If John Gets a Bus

New York, July 19 (INS).—Will the sheriff of Greenville, S. C., kindly come to New York City and get his prisoner?

The sheriff, John Martin, sent New York police $10 by telegraph, adding as to John Chapman, 29, the prisoner:

"Put him on a bus and send him back here."

But the police, and today Magistrate Rothenberg, thought a prisoner ought to have a police escort.

Chapman, accused of abandoning his wife and four children, was captured here last week after a search of several months.

"You're willing to go back?" Magistrate asked him today.

"Yas, sir; but I'd sorta like to go back by bus."

Rothenberg sent Chapman back to Sheriff Martin a telegram urging him to come personally or send someone to get Chapman. Otherwise New York police may have to free him.

Bridges Quoted As 'Running Communists'

Attorney Says Labor Leader Told Him He Was Boss of Party

San Francisco, July 19 (AP).—Testimony that Harry Bridges once said he was "running the Communist Party and that the Communist Party was running the maritime unions on the Pacific Coast," was given at the labor leader's deportation hearing today by Aaron Sapiro, attorney.

Sapiro asserted Bridges made the statement to him in 1936, the year the record-breaking 98-day coast-wide shipping tieup began.

Called as a Government witness, Sapiro also testified Earl Browder, leader of the Communist Party in the United States, told him "I know Harry Bridges and all about him. He is one of the hardest members we have to handle in the party."

Bridges Smiles

Bridges, longshoremen's union leader and West Coast CIO director, whom the government is seeking to deport to his native Australia as an alien Communist, leaned far back in a swivel chair and smiled broadly.

Sapiro was the fourth major witness to accuse Bridges of having Communist connections. He detailed a series of events over a period in which he said one of his clients, Harry Lundberg, of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, was contending against Bridges for maritime union power.

Defense Attorney Aubrey Grossman read into the record a decree of United States Judge John C. Knox, of New York, barring Sapiro from Federal court practice after his acquittal two years ago on charges of attempting to influence a juror.

Libel Suit Is Cited

Bridges' attorneys also questioned Sapiro as to several suits he had filed in which the labor leader had been included as a defendant. One was a libel suit Sapiro filed against Bridges over a letter. Sapiro said that case still was pending.

Body of 5 Is Named in House To Draft Wage Law Changes

Labor Committee Hopes to Effect Compromise Between Administration And Revisionists; Barden Stands Pat

In a last-minute effort at compromise, the House Labor Committee yesterday appointed a five-man sub-committee to draw up amendments to the wage-hour law acceptable both to the Administration and the revisionist group led by Representative Barden (Democrat), of North Carolina.

The sub-committee, headed by Representative Keller (Democrat), of Illinois, will confer this morning with Barden and an official of the wage and hour division in an attempt to work out a satisfactory bill.

If, as seems probable, agreement cannot be reached on the agricultural exemptions demanded by Barden and opposed by the Administration, the sub-committee will recommend two bills.

Changes Accepted

One will contain amendments to the wage-hour law originally proposed by the Administration and approved by both sides. These changes, designed to relieve "hardship cases," include exemption of rural telephone operators, special provision for Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, protection of innocent purchasers of illegally made goods and special provision for homeworkers in rural areas and telegraph messengers.

The other bill, providing limited exemptions for white-collar workers and for employes in various industries allied to agriculture, would contain the controversial matter.

Representative Ramspeck, of Georgia, acting chairman of the Labor Committee, said yesterday that in view of the nearness of adjournment, he thought no amendments to the law could be enacted except those approved by the President. Barden's proposals were denounced by the President on Tuesday.

Barden Stands Pat

However, Barden refused to admit defeat. "President Roosevelt," he said, "never backs down on a principle, and I'm taking my cue from him."

The Rules Committee will meet today, but its New Deal chairman, Representative Sabath, of Illinois, is inflexibly opposed to taking up the Barden bill.

The sub-committee, which hopes to report out the "compromise" tomorrow, consists of Representatives Randolph, of West Virginia, and D'Alesandro, of Maryland (Democrats), and Welch, of California, and Smith, of Maine, (Republicans), in addition to Keller.

Gas Rate Hearing Set for August 11

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday set August 11 as the tentative date for the annual hearings on reduction of Washington Gas Light Co. rates, based on the sliding scale plan of annual reductions.

Today the commission will consider the company's fourth application for authorization to purchase the Hyattsville and Alexandria gas companies for a sum of $1,050,000. The payment, under the plan suggested several months ago by the commission, will be made by issuing 35,000 shares of common stock.

The Cast Is Completed For 'Irene,' at Capitol

Principals Announced for Musical, Due July 28; Notable New Bookings for Olney Theater; This, That and the Other About the Theater

SO THE LOEW MANAGEMENT has kept its word and stepped right out and booked an all-Broadway cast in almost nothing flat, for the condensed version of the musical comedy "Irene," to be presented as the stage portion of the bill at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning Friday, July 28.

It has previously been made known that Jane Winton, whose voice already has carried her as far as grand opera, will appear in the title part, Ann Heath, as Eleanor Worth, the ingenue, and that Harry Krivit—and by the way, Mr. Bell (no relation), how do you spell his name, "Krivett" or "Krivit," or are you just guessing?—will supervise the New York rehearsals and production details. Now comes the complete roster of principals.

BELL

Helan Namur will be cast as Mrs. Marshall, John Barker as Don Marshall, Howard Chamberlain as Clarkson, Eddie Michaels as Bob Harrison, Leslie Adams, jr., as Lawrence Hadley, Lida Kane as Mrs. O'Dare, Irene's mother; Eunice Healy as Helen Cheston, Virginia Bolen as Jane Gilmour, Bartlett Simmons as J. P. Bowden, Jerry Delaney as Mme. Lucy and Vivien Mayo as Mrs. Cheston. Numerous subordinate roles also have been filled in New York, but when it comes to the chorus, the Capitol Rhythm Rockets will be found in there swinging.

Producer Gene Ford, who happens also to be manager of the Capitol, advises that rehearsals are already under way and that after eight days of intensive work in New York, the company will be brought to Washington for final dress rehearsals prior to the July 28 opening on F street.

The more I contemplate this engagement the more convinced I am that there must be something in this business of wishful thinking, after all. When the balloting for a favorite musical piece was begun in the Capitol lobby, I expressed the hope that "Irene" might be the eventual selection. And that is the way it turned out, with "Naughty Marietta" the runner-upper. It is a purely sentimental interest that I feel in this piece, dating back to its premiere in Poli's Theater, with Edith Day in the title role. It was reviewed in this space then as a sure-fire and that is what it proved to be.

The fact that I sat in on several of the rehearsals with Producer Carl Carlton, Author James Montgomery and Composer Harry Tierney had nothing to do with it. "Irene" is "there," as the saying goes—or was a couple of decades ago. I hope Time has been gentle.

There comes along a neat little brochure comprised of comments of the national press upon Meyer Davis' good fortune in being chosen from all the top-drawer maestri to play with his orchestra for the King and Queen on their recent visit to these shores. Meyer has a way of grabbing off these choicest plums for himself and his band—which leads me to believe that that night when he played his first engagement at the Willard Hotel, some 30 years or so back, must seem a good deal longer ago than that to him, youngster that he is.

What are all these daily paragraphs coming along from the Roadside Theater to the effect that "Spooks," next week's bill, really is a mystery-melodrama-comedy? What do they suppose that title is for?

And speaking of Washington's "straw hat" theater, Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran returns from a quick dash to New York with two more splendid bookings for the Olney Theater in his side pocket. For the week of July 31 Mitzi Green will be the guest star in "It's a Wise Child." Mitzi was one of the visiting stars for the President's birthday celebrations and since has played a headline week at Loew's Capitol. For the week of August 7, Mr. Cochran is pulling something in the way of a coup by presenting Helen Claire in Clare Booth's tart comedy of "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," which opened last season at the National Theater, under the Brock Pemberton aegis. Nice going is what I always say.

As an incentive to Americanism in these days when it is so sorely needed, the National Executive Council of the Variety Clubs of America has decreed that the American flag be prominently displayed in every Variety clubroom in the land. The National Emblem newly gracing the quarters of Tent No. 11, in the Willard Hotel, is a beautiful silk flag, gracefully draping itself from a pedestal staff that reaches almost to the ceiling. A timely patriotic gesture, but there never has been anything un-American about the Washington Variety Club. Look up its record.

Robert Speaight, famous English actor, will be seen in the leading role of the Catholic University's Blackfriar Institute of Drama's production of Henri Gheon's "The Comedian," at the university on August 7 and at the National Sylvan Theater on August 8. Mr. Speaight, whose renown equals Maurice Evans' in their native land, has come to the United States this summer expressly to lecture at Notre Dame University and appear in "The Comedian" at Catholic University. He will join the local company on August 1, after completing his commitments in South Bend. Mr. Speaight was last seen in Washington as the resonant-voiced Chorus in Orson Welles' production of "Five Kings," at the National Theater last season.

Mal Hallett and his orchestra have a tough job on their hands. They will come to town to play two moonlight cruises Saturday night aboard the S. S. Potomac and attempt to smash the season's crowd record set last week-end by Eddie Duchin and his boys on the same ship. The cruises, incidentally, will weigh anchor at 8:45 p. m. and 12:30 a. m. Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Reverting momentarily to the Olney Theater, Kitty Carlisle plays her first matinee today at 2:45 in her delightful performance of "Tonight or Never." The tip has gone out that it would be well to purchase your tickets for the Olney in advance. They are beginning to dust off the S. R. O. sign.

Elmer Kenyon, that scholarly stentor of the theater, postagecards from Atlantic City that he has found a marvelous place to eat and wishes I were there. So do I. So that's all even.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, July 19.

ROBERT RISKIN recently left the employ of Sam Goldwyn to become associated with Frank Capra . . . Riskin told a group of friends that he was unhappy while working for Goldwyn. "All the publicity had to be about Goldwyn," he complained. "Goldwyn did this, Goldwyn did that—I received no publicity items at all" . . . "That's not true," one of his friends corrected. "I distinctly remember reading two items about you" . . . "Two?" asked Riskin. "What were they? . . . "The first item was about your being hired," he was told, "and the second—that you were fired."

TOMMY CORCORAN is the one who induced Senator Norris to issue the statement favoring the lifting of the arms embargo and urging the passage of the President's neutrality bill . . . Collier's magazine paid $20,000 for the current series of articles by Dixie Davis . . . Trujillo, the Dominican dictator, dined at the Riviera the other night—accompanied by only two detectives . . . Walter O'Hara, who was ousted from his race track in Providence, R. I., is expected to operate the proposed New Jersey track for Mayor Hague.

SAMMY SHULMAN, the news photographer, went to Rome some months ago on assignment . . . Some rival cameramen didn't like this new competition and reminded the police about Italy's new expulsion orders in connection with the race laws . . . Shulman therefore was arrested four times, but—through the intervention of Ambassador Phillips—was released . . . This influence didn't suffice, however, and he was rearrested. The police searched his clothing and pounced upon a photo of Shulman taken at Warm Springs, Ga. . . . "Who's that man standing next to you in the picture?" he was asked . . . "Take a good look at him," Shulman identified—an identification which hastened his final release—"that's President Roosevelt."

A NUMBER of columnists have speculated about the identity of the "Thomas Wood" who wrote the Louella Parsons story in the Saturday Evening Post. He's really Thomas Wood—a veteran newspaperman, whose wife is a Hollywood actress . . . Movietone will screen "Mexiconga," the dance which will feature George White's new "Scandals." The newsreel officials are positive it will become the new dance rage . . . Gilbert Kahn, one of the Otto Kahn heirs who sold the fabulous Kahn estate to the Department of Sanitation, will become one of the supervising officials there. His fee will be the right to play on the estate's private golf course, which he once owned.

BECAUSE of the rigid Equity rulings, the members of the cast of "The Hot Mikado" at the Fair, have been staggering their vacation days and taking turns in playing the various roles . . . One night the important role of Ko-Ko was assigned to a novice, who gave an excellent performance . . . The audience didn't know it, but his real job is that of valet to Bill Robinson.

SPECIAL PROSECUTOR John Amen now is investigating a $7,000 payment allegedly made by a jurist to a member of an opposing party in return for his agreement to run in the opposition primary election . . . John L. Lewis spent an evening in Washington denouncing the appointment of Paul V. McNutt . . . Whalen vetoed Charles Washburn's suggestion for a permanent exhibit to exploit the recent lifesaver episode. It provided for one parachute to remain suspended in midair, with wax figures on the seat—as a boon to camera fiends.

RED NICHOLS, the band leader, was hired to play at the Million Dollar Pier in Atlantic City . . . A New York press agent was summoned to assist in publicizing the event. His contribution was to have 5,000 nickels dyed red, trusting that these red nickels, during Red Nichols' engagement, would result in the arrest of the Pier's maintenance manager on a charge of defacing American currency . . . The press agent, therefore, went to the police station to press his demands for an arrest . . . "Chief of Police McMenamin isn't here now," the press agent was informed. "He's been arrested for beating his sister-in-law."

WILLIAM SAROYAN was disappointed at the interpretation given to his play, "My Heart's in the Highlands," by the Group Theater's production. "I pleaded for two hours with 'em to change it," he told George Jean Nathan. "I guess I made a mistake" . . . "Yes," Nathan assured him. "You shouldn't have argued more than three minutes" . . . Eddie Dowling will produce Saroyan's new play, which was written in six days. "In six days?" Dowling told him. "What are you giving me—a play or a bike race?"

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

(Before joining the extra ranks, the writer of this, who shall be nameless, served as a commanding officer in the World War. He has a chest full of medals. "But, heck, you can't eat 'em," says he. It's strong stuff, has vision, but no bitterness.—H. H.)

By a Movie Extra.

Hollywood, Calif., July 19.—In doing a brief article on movie life in Hollywood, this writer feels that Hedda Hopper has placed the lanyard of a well-loaded cannon in his hand, and ordered him to fire at will. So here goes, with the sincere wish that the contents find a target, even though the writer be guillotined for his attempt.

Rubbing shoulders for the past six years as I have working as an extra, stunt man, double, big player, associated with every type and class of player, director and all of those that go to make this a great industry, in spite of its fallacies, certainly has put me on the platform to speak from experience.

Today we find pictures riding the crest of the wave. The public has not failed. But likened to a victorious army that has become drunk with its power, Hollywood is so engrossed in reading its own publicity it fails to see the ruthless way it forgets the stars and old-timers of yesterday.

Hollywood's faults today are the distorted portrayal of our pioneer people; the needless glorifying of the American girl one-third dressed; and the replacement of American artists by foreigners, and in American roles, too. And recently there has been far too much hate and propaganda in major productions.

Likewise, too many American directors are sitting on the fence while foreign-born directors try to bring the lives and loves of our people to the screen. There are pictures where the inherited background of foreign directors is essential to picture production, but Americans should direct American stories.

To all this criticism the "Brass Hats" will tell you they are geniuses and the industry is privately owned. But the "screen of today is the schoolbook of yesterday." Its authenticity is accepted without question. An entire Nation copies the move of its actors.

When one sees the splendid ability shown by the mechanical crafts, the excellent and authentic sets built, why distort such useful work with a vulgar display of half-nude girls, outlandish characters and meaningless dialogue? Let's have more pictures like "Young Mr. Lincoln" and "Alexander Graham Bell" and real patriotic shorts such as Warners are making.

Stop being so selfish with success credits, give the man who doubles the star a salute now and again.

Let those directors who wonder why their pictures fail copy systems used by directors like Borzage, Ford, Hogan, Lloyd, Van Dyke, Curtiz and Goulding. Just appreciation to the lowest, and unselfish display of fairness and a sincere democratic feeling toward every person on the lot.

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 19 (INS).—I had to smile to myself when I was told that, after a long discussion, M-G-M had decided Walter Pidgeon was the proper person to play Nick Carter. This popular character must be played by an actor who will appeal not only to the fathers and mothers, but to the present generation as well. The smile came not from the selection of Pidgeon, but from the memory I had of being ordered by my mother to burn dozens of copies of Nick Carter, Frank Merriwell and other dime novels, which my brother had secretly accumulated. Mother looked upon these exciting tales as "trash."

LOUELLA PARSONS

I never told her that I sat down on the floor before I burned them and read as many of them as I could cram. It is interesting to know that the original copies of these paper-backed thrillers are valuable today as collectors' items.

There are many reprints, but few of the originals obtainable. Walter Pidgeon, I should think, would be about right, for he has the savoir faire of a Nick Carter and is romantic enough to suit yesterday's boys, as well as today's young people.

Lillian Gish is closer to Hollywood than she has been in a long time—literally and figuratively. She is now in Taos, N. Mex., the guest of Myron Brinig, author of "The Sisters" and "May Flavin." Brinig plans to write La Gish's biography and she will be there for two or three weeks, supplying him with the material. Then, she is expected in Hollywood to make tests for the lead opposite Raymond Massey in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." I cannot believe that she is the type for Mary Todd. She would be more suitable for Ann Rutledge, although when Ann died she was but a girl, and while Lillian looks young, it is a long time since she was sweet 16. Nice if Lillian should come back to movies, for it is the old-timers that the fans continually ask to see.

Rumor in Hollywood is that Richard Roland, pioneer film producer who will release his new output through United Artists, is being financed by the Guarantee Trust Co., of New York. Boris Morros, another independent maker of movies, has the aid of the Irving Trust Co., we hear on reliable authority, and these are just two examples of current backing by big New York banks. The ease with which financing is arranged seems to indicate that the pursestrings have been loosened, as far as Hollywood is concerned, and that motion pictures are, after all, considered a good investment. Statistics show that most of the banks that have invested in Hollywood have had ample returns for their money, for, of course, these canny businessmen are careful never to lend money unless they are sure of a major release.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Patsy Kelly is recuperating from a serious operation performed in New York; Louise Stanley, who not a month ago kissed and made up with Addison Randall, at the Troc, after the "Beau Geste" preview, with Jimmy Bryant; Gary Cooper missed the preview in order to get to New York in time for the opening there, but his guests, Errol Flynn, Lili Damita and Dolores Del Rio occupied his seats; rode home from the Troc with Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard. They had been at the Bowl. She leaves Saturday for New York with Anita Loos, but promises to return the moment Charlie needs her; Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger occupied a small table and looked as happy as can be; Kay Francis was in the Miriam Hopkins party and was beaued by Fritz Lang; Heather Thatcher, and, of course, Anatole Litvak, were in the same party; Mary Martin stopped to speak to me, to ask me if I remembered that I had called attention to her when she sang at the Troc. That was several years ago, before she scored her big success in New York. She is still the same unspoiled, charming girl.

The Gilbert Millers have rented the beach house of Sylvia and Douglas Fairbanks during their stay in Hollywood; Marie Wilson has never seen New York, or been outside California, so you can imagine her excitement at traveling East on one of the big trains. She left Saturday to keep her engagement with the "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" company; Ilona Massey celebrated her birthday on the Nelson Eddy set with a cake and all the trimmings; Robert Preston came to the "Beau Geste" preview with his heart beat, Kay Fletus, Pasadena socialite.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Lionel Barrymore has the most wonderful role of his career, and Bobs Watson, Mickey Rooney's little candy-mooching pal in "Boys Town," gives an outstanding performance.

"MAN ABOUT TOWN." Jack Benny, in what is heralded as his merriest screen role, frolics in this musical film at the Earle, with a cast that includes Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Betty Grable, Binnie Barnes, Phil Harris, E. E. Clive and Matty Malneck and his Orchestra. The surprise star of the film is reported to be Rochester, Benny's radio valet. Noted illustrator, George Petty, chose the 20 beauties for the film's harem sequence and "Strange Enchantment" is one of the song hits. On the stage, "Hollywood Bandwagon" features Texas Jim Lewis and his Lone Star Cowboys; Motter and Davis; Wynn, Brach and Ames and "Whitey" and Ed Ford. The Earle Roxyettes will present a new routine, "The Dance of the Puppets." Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"ON BORROWED TIME." Lionel Barrymore, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Beulah Bondi, Una Merkel, Bobs Watson, Henry Travers, Nat Pendleton and Grant Mitchell play the leading roles in this film version of last season's successful play. A mixture of fancy and folklore, the Lawrence Edward Watkin novel, from which Paul Osborn's play was adapted, concerns an old man who sees his young grandson falling into the clutches of a scheming aunt. How he holds off death to aid his grandson makes an unusual screen play. "Laffs Over F Street" is the Capitol's new stage show and stars songstress Marjorie Gainsworth. Johnny Burke presents a doughboy skit and Les Chesterfields offer a novel comedy routine. Len Manning and Mitzi and Florence and Bob Robinson are others on the bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"I STOLE A MILLION." When George Raft, as the central character in this new film, entered a flower shop with the intent to rob, but instead, fell in love with the girl in the shop, played by Claire Trevor, he decided to go straight. But his past record catches up with him and trouble follows. Dick Foran, Henry Armetta and Victor Jory have other leading roles in this film, which climaxes in unexpected action. A Walt Disney color cartoon, "The Pointer," and Pathe News complete the bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Palace

"GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS." For a third week, this Robert Donat characterization of the James Hilton schoolmaster remains on F street. The exceptionally finished acting of the star has been effusively praised by press and public alike and newcomer Greer Garson, as the shy schoolmaster's lovable wife, also has created an excellent impression

Metropolitan

"HELL'S KITCHEN." The "Dead End" Kids are joined by Stanley Fields, Margaret Lindsay and Ronald Reagan in this story of a home for problem boys. The boys discover that the head of the institution is a crook and they lead a revolt against him. Grant Mitchell, Frankie Burke, Vera Lewis and Charlie Foy are in the supporting cast. Lewis Seiler and E. A. Dupont directed. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"ANIMAL CRACKERS." The irrepressible Marx Brothers enter a second week in this revival of their 1930 success, which was written by Morrie Ryskind and George S. Kaufmann. This concerns the missing paintings in the home of a rich widow, played by the inevitable Margaret Dumont.

Columbia

"MAISIE." From an engagement at the Capitol Theater, this Ann Southern-Robert Young co-starring vehicle returns to F street. This is the story of a woman-hating ranch foreman, who believes a stranded show girl has stolen his wallet. By the time he discovers his error, the girl has entered his life for good and all, finally saving him from being convicted of murder. Ruth Hussey, Ian Hunter and Cliff Edwards have other leads. Opens tomorrow morning.

Olney

"PETTICOAT FEVER." Dennis King is the new week's star at the Olney Country Playhouse in Mark Reed's comedy of a woman-hating explorer. Mr. King created the part in New York and sings several numbers during the course of the action. Through Saturday evening of this week, Kitty Carlisle continues her enthusiastically received engagement in the David Belasco comedy, "Tonight or Never." Matinees this afternoon and Saturday at 2:45 o'clock.

Trans-Lux

A COMPANION FILM to the recent "Eternal Fire" is the central short at the newsreel theater; "Fox Hunting in the Roman Campagna" is its title. "Jockeys Up" is the sports short and Walt Disney's "Beach Picnic" features Donald Duck and Pluto, the Pup. Opens tomorrow morning.

Mount Vernon

"SHOW BOAT" is the current feature at the drive-in auto theater. With Irene Dunne and Allan Jones heading the cast, this musical film opened last night to run through the customary Saturday midnight showing. Next Sunday, through the following Wednesday, the feature will be Herbert Marshall and Madeliene Carroll in "I Was a Spy."

Glen Echo

SWIMMING is the big attraction these days at Glen Echo Park. The Crystal Pool has three depths—for children, for the average swimmer and one for the high diver. There is a sandy beach for sun-bathing. The picnic grounds are a favorite spot and besides the usual rides and attractions, Carl Lorch's Orchestra plays for dancing in the Spanish Garden Ballroom.

Wilson Line

THE CITY OF WASHINGTON makes moonlight cruises down the Potomac every evening, except Monday, at 8:30, with McWilliams' Orchestra aboard for dancing. The steamer leaves its Seventh street wharf at 10 a. m., 2 and 5:30 p. m. for cruises to Marshall Hall, stopping off at Mount Vernon on the two earlier trips. Every Monday and Friday is kiddies' day.

S. S. Potomac

MOONLIGHT CRUISES are made by this steamer every night in the week, with Charlie Strong's Orchestra aboard for dancing, and a guest orchestra of national note playing for both of the Saturday evening sailings, the first at 8:45 p. m. and the second at 12:30 a. m. On Sundays at 9 a. m., the steamer leaves its Water street wharf for a cruise to Colonial Beach.

Roadside

"SPOOKS" is the title of the melodrama of the 1920's which the Roadsiders will offer for two weeks, beginning next Monday evening. Anne Ives, George Farrington, Lansing Hall, Larry Lawrence, Catherine Knockley and Maccubbin Waters are in the company. "The Fatal Brand" closes this Saturday evening.

Nurses Don Bathing Suits for Life-Saving Course

Smith Alien Bill Stirs House Fight

Liberals Contend Measure Imitates Nazi Activities

Drastically changed from its original form, the Smith bill for the suppression of subversive activities was alternately characterized in House debate yesterday as "a splendid measure" and a bill imitating Nazi Germany.

Two quorum calls demanded by opponents of the measure helped to delay action so that by adjournment time late in the afternoon the House had taken no final vote, but had merely agreed to further consideration of the bill at some future time.

In debate that at times grew bitter and personal, members of the liberal bloc alleged that the bill constituted an attempt at "alien-baiting," while conservatives defended it as a needed addition to the present deportation and anti-subversive activity laws.

Representative Coffee (Democrat), of Washington, asserted that the bill was an effort "to imitate Nazi Germany" and "to enforce patriotism" and to suppress the civil liberties of aliens. Author of the original measure, Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, declared the bill was "not as strong as I would like it."

As reported out by the Judiciary Committee, the bill makes it a crime for anyone—citizen or alien—to urge any member of the armed forces to disobey orders. Printing of material of similar import also is forbidden, and the bill permits such printed matter to be taken under search warrant from the house of the possessor.

The measure establishes four additional grounds for deportation of aliens, including those who help smuggle in other aliens, who engage in espionage, who have violated State narcotic laws, or who illegally possess arms.

The bill also contains a provision that aliens can be deported if they have ever been in the "anarchistic" category, even though they no longer belong to groups advocating violent overthrow of the Government.

Husband Beats Wife's Kidnaper

troopers dragged Beckwith back and Kehoe was hustled into the barracks.

Mrs. Beckwith also was taken into the barracks, and State police said that she would be held for questioning "for a little while."

Mrs. Beckwith was crying and her hair was disarranged. There was a growth of beard on Kehoe's face and he looked drawn and haggard.

State troopers said Kehoe offered no resistance. They said Mrs. Beckwith burst out crying as they entered and sobbed steadily during the ride to Northampton.

The kidnap holdup occurred yesterday afternoon, as Mrs. Beckwith and her present husband entered a plumbing shop.

Kehoe entered, a revolver in his hand, and ordered the three to the rear of the shop.

Taking $1 from Beckwith and $7 from the cash register, Kehoe forced the three out a back door into the car. He sat in the tonneau with Langdon and ordered the Beckwiths in front.

The party drove about 7 miles to a lonely Amherst road and the men were ordered out. Beckwith fled downhill through a thicket. Langdon said the abductor attempted to shoot the fleeing figure, but the revolver jammed.

With curses, Kehoe ordered Langdon to march away, his hands in the air. Then the convict jumped into the front seat with Mrs. Beckwith and drove away.

Police were not notified of the affair until Langdon and Beckwith reached a telephone after a two-hour hike. Immediately a six-State alarm was sent out.

On The Sidelines

The decision to abandon all efforts to revise the neutrality law at the present session of Congress will arouse keen disappointment in many quarters.

The United States now finds itself in an unenviable position. During the next critical months, this Nation will be condemned to a seat on the sidelines. We shall have to leave to others, notably Great Britain and France, the great task of preventing war. They have our best wishes. But they are also under notice that if they fail, we shall prohibit them from buying arms, munitions and implements of war in this country.

The struggle for peace may be successful without our aid. Be it fervently hoped that the peace structure will successfully stand the strain of additional assaults to which it may be subjected. In that case the United States, as other nations, will benefit. But no credit will adhere to us for such a hopeful outcome of the present state of tension.

Should war break out, however, the United States will be unable to divest itself of the responsibility for having done nothing to prevent it. It will then be said, and with justice, that while the world was sliding toward the abyss we did not lift a finger to save it from going over. Nor will we be spared the consequences of such a catastrophe. For neither by act of will or by act of Congress can we change the fact of the world's interdependence.

A Club Is Needed

Because Japan lacks iron ore, petroleum, cotton and many other raw materials needed by her war industries and by her armies in the field, she must import these commodities, paying for them through the sale of her silk and manufactured goods and out of her dwindling gold reserve.

Well over half of these indispensable supplies are purchased from the United States and possibly four-fifths from the United States, the British Empire, France and the Netherlands combined. Should these countries decide to cut off such supplies from Japan, the island empire would soon find herself in desperate straits. Sooner or later, deprived of vital raw materials, Japan's war machine would be forced to slow down and perhaps to stop altogether.

The democracies have the power to force this development. Should they do so? Individuals in many countries have taken it upon themselves to act. A boycott of Japanese goods has been carried out in many parts of the world and has, no doubt, contributed to Japan's present difficulties. But neither the United States nor Great Britain nor France nor the Netherlands has taken any official action along these lines.

As a result, it is argued that these powers have made it possible for Japan to continue a war which is in direct violation of the Nine-Power Treaty, of which all of them are signatories. And it is further argued that such inaction has made it possible for Japan to proceed with a program which definitely aims at the complete elimination of their rights and interests and influence in China.

The time has come when many people in this country are pointedly asking whether the United States should cooperate further with Japan in her assault on China and on Western interests in China. In this country, the clamor of public opinion has now reached a point where legislation to make this point of view effective is no longer impossible.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has two bills on the subject before it. The Pittman bill would, through Congressional action, place an embargo on certain essential raw materials to Japan. The Schwellenbach bill looks in the same direction. But instead of directly legislating an embargo and specifically naming Japan, it would give the Administration power to cut off supplies which might be used by any nation to attack another nation whose "sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity the United States is obligated by treaty to respect." Such a nation is China. Such a treaty is the Nine-Power Pact of 1922.

An embargo voted by Congress and singling out a certain country would be, at best, a questionable device and might prove dangerous. A better case can be made out for vesting the President with discretionary power to use the embargo threat as a club in defense of our interests.

There may be legal complications in the existence of the 1911 treaty of commerce and navigation with Japan. But America's determination to protect its interests in the Far East might be manifested, at least in preliminary fashion, by the denunciation of that pact. Then, if that step alone did not bring about a decent respect by Japan for American rights in China, the way would be open for more drastic reprisals. Inaction in the face of aggression inevitably tends to encourage the aggressor.

The FDIC Report

In its annual report, just made public, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation states bluntly that "the past five years do not provide an adequate basis for judging the future experience of the corporation." It explains that the low rate of loss from bank insolvencies during the recent past has been characteristic of former periods of recovery from severe crises. Hereafter, however, the FDIC warns that the rate of assessment of insured banks will probably have to be increased unless action is taken to prevent dissipation of bank capital through excessive dividends and to avoid losses from forced liquidation of assets in time of crisis.

One of the most significant features of the report is the emphasis placed upon the responsibility of bank managements for maintenance of the solvency of insured institutions. The FDIC officials are well aware that no system of deposit insurance can adequately protect the public against losses from bank failures unless the great majority of the individual banks are sound and well managed. Hence, the report rightly stresses the importance of strengthening the banks' capital structures and providing the kind of rigorous supervision that prevents unsound conditions from developing.

The FDIC has no sympathy with proposals for liberalizing supervisory methods and standards in order to stimulate business recovery. "It is no part of the function of bank supervision," it states, "to exert pressure upon bankers to extend or not to extend credits, and it is improper for the banker to extend credit when he has substantial doubt regarding the wisdom or propriety of such extension."

This categorical assertion contrasts rather strikingly with the discussion of this subject in the last annual report of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System. The board raises a question as to the relationship that should exist between general credit policies and policies pursued in the examination and supervision of banks. In the past, it says, these policies have at times "worked in opposite directions, with a consequent aggravation of deflationary and inflationary trends." While that is undoubtedly the case, a relaxation of the standards set by official supervisory and examining agencies primarily to further general credit policies of the central banking authorities would open the door to grave abuses.

"If the cost of deposit insurance is to be kept low," the FDIC asserts, "bank supervision cannot be weakened or deflected from its primary objective—the maintenance of sound banks."

The FDIC officials also take issue with the Federal Reserve authorities in regard to the conflict and overlapping of supervisory activities. The former insists that there is practically no duplication in the examinations conducted by various Federal agencies. The Federal Reserve officials, on the other hand, while admitting that duplication in reports and examinations has been largely avoided through co-operation, are far from satisfied with the present arrangement. Conflicts of authority, they say, "cause much confusion and delay." Moreover, even when working agreements are reached, "differences of interpretation of the procedure, formula or policy agreed upon" remain.

Significantly, therefore, the Reserve Board asks, with obvious dubiety, whether the examination policies of the several Federal supervisory agencies can be "further co-ordinated to promote effective functioning of the entire banking system, making it a force toward increased national economic stability." Reading the two reports, one is impressed by the indirect evidence that the authorities who control credit policy do not see eye to eye with those who are responsible for insuring the deposits of nearly 14,000 banks.

It is encouraging that the FDIC is now, as heretofore, conscious of the fact that a system of deposit insurance to be effective must be backed by a sound regulatory procedure designed to reduce bank insolvencies to a minimum. Otherwise insurance of deposits, by causing the public to relax its vigilance, would tend to increase the number of failures and bring about ultimate collapse of the insurance system.

Tyrol Rumors

It is possible there is truth in the rumors that the Italian government contemplates a wholesale eviction of the 200,000 to 250,000 German-speaking inhabitants of the South Tyrol, whether or not those poor unfortunates want to leave their ancestral homes. But if these rumors are exaggerated, the Fascist regime has only itself to blame.

Serious obstacles have long stood in the way of accurate and adequate reporting of Italian developments. Newspapermen assigned to Rome and other points in the Italian kingdom have had no easy time of it. They have been under constant pressure to report only favorable developments. And censorship has supplemented propaganda to increase the difficulties of honest reporting of events.

Recently these difficulties have been very considerably multiplied. A host of newspapermen have been expelled. There is today, for instance, only one French journalist in the Italian capital. And now the drive has been extended to include all foreigners in the Tyrol, the suspected reason being that Mussolini would rather not have the world know what he plans to do in that region.

But the vacuum which the Duce hopes to create will not long remain a vacuum. Instead of accurate information there will be rumors, and these rumors will not err on the side of understatement. Indeed, the very determination which the Fascist regime is displaying in its effort to seal the Tyrol against outsiders gives credence to the blackest conclusions as to what is happening and is about to happen in the beautiful but unfortunate region of the Dolomites.

Weak Compensation Act

A double dose of tragedy has been inflicted upon the families of miners who perished in the Providence, Ky., mine explosion. In addition to the shock of losing a husband, 25 widows and their children find that they can expect no aid through the workmen's compensation law. Their desperate plight has prompted the American Red Cross and a committee of local citizens to inaugurate a drive for funds in their behalf.

Probably many citizens wonder why men engaged in so dangerous an industry as mining are left without the protection of workmen's compensation. The answer is that Kentucky leaves it for employers and employes to say whether or not this means of compensating workers for industrial accident shall become effective. Employers must signify their desire to operate under that law, and employes must also give their consent. Both employers and workers have the right to withdraw from the system if they so desire.

Obviously this arrangement leaves many employes unprotected. And protection is likely to be denied to employes who need it most; for it is companies operating near the margin of bankruptcy that are usually negligent in providing safeguards against the hazards of industry.

Nor is Kentucky the only State in which this unsatisfactory situation prevails. Only 15 of the 47 States with workmen's compensation laws have made them compulsory. In the great majority of States, employers may withdraw from these obviously desirable systems and leave injured employes to file individual lawsuits as the only means of obtaining compensation for their losses.

Many workmen's compensation statutes were made voluntary at the time of their enactment out of fear that compulsory acts would encounter difficulties in the courts. But the constitutionality of such legislation is scarcely open to question now. Even if the organic laws of some States seem to forbid compulsory insurance against the hazards of industry, they could doubtless be readily changed.

The laxity of existing laws on the subject is a shock to many who have believed that the fight for reasonable workmen's compensation had been won. The plight of these hapless families in Providence might well be the signal for a drive to enact compensation laws that will not prove to be a delusion.

The Ruinous Razor

(Howard Vincent O'Brien in The Chicago Daily News.)

In the days when a mustache cup was a thing of use no less than of elegance, the male had dignity. Shorn of his beard, he was only a fractional man.

A voice that emerged from a thicket of whiskers had weight behind it. Like the answers that came from the caverns of the Delphic oracle, it carried conviction. People believed what hairy men said. What is more important, the hair-men believed themselves. There was something about flowing locks that gave a man confidence in himself. He could look in a mirror and suffer no doubts.

The safety razor made the first cut in authority; and the electric clipper removed what was left. When man began to feel himself undressed if he could feel anything on his face, and believed the advertisements which told him he ought to shave twice a day, the end of all ordered civilization was in sight.

It is significant that the flow of wealth into the hands of women increased as men turned to unguents and talcum for their hairless cheeks. The decline and fall of Rome was engineered by the barber; and the citadel of the Seven Hills capitulated to the Huns and Vandals—bearded men all; just as Greece had yielded to the bearded legionnaires from the banks of the Tiber.

The beard has become little more than a legend with us now—kept alive by advertisers who, when they wish to illustrate "Science Says," still show a man in a white jacket, wearing a Van Dyke; and by the patriarchs depicted on the boxes of Smith Brothers' Cough Drops.

The arts have had a close shave, too. Men once wrote poetry, but it is women's work now. A man with the kind of skin you love to touch can't write poetry—he's too much of a poem himself.

Boycott Aggressors

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is difficult to understand the position the extreme pacifists in Congress are taking today. They have been sitting quietly by, silence giving consent, to the United States, year after year, furnishing Japan with much needed money and most of the planes and bombs by which it purposely and inhumanly butchered, day by day, millions of innocent women and children.

These pacifists were apparently indifferent to such a wholesale destruction of life and property as eclipsed the black trail of Genghis Khan and such human misery and agony that our country—for whose actions they were responsible—should become "particeps criminis" in China's great tragedy, for there was no such opposition or threats to filibuster as are heard today.

The great nations in one of their late treaties provided that if one nation attacked another all could boycott the aggressor while aiding the one attacked—a sensible provision and powerful for the protection of peace.

We are told "if he had known," the good man would not have had his house destroyed. If these good men pacifists had known that Japan, Germany and Italy were abroad to conquer the world, dictate to all peoples, forcibly compel totalitarianism and doom all to dependency, Japan modestly claiming the Pacific as contiguous, Germany and Italy headed for South America, and then North America, they would not be helping them attain their objectives. England, France and their allies victorious, means safety for us. There is every reason why we should boycott the aggressors and aid the nations attacked, the democracies.

Not For Roosevelt

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A recent writer in The Post said that "the continuance of President Roosevelt in office is necessary to safeguard the economical, political and social welfare of the Nation at such a time as this."

Such a sweeping statement is naive, to say the least. There are thousands of astute businessmen and others who are fully competent to bring the country out of the crisis the New Deal has developed.

Under President Roosevelt the public debt and deficit have increased to an alarming extent; the cost of living has risen; untold quantities of food have been destroyed, while millions were unemployed; taxes and rents have kept pace with the upward trend of everything; millions have been induced to depend upon the charity of our Government, the WPA "workers" have been told in several instances that if they want Government help to continue they must keep the Democratic Party in power; the U. S. Supreme Court was assailed and a bold attempt made to pack it; great effort was made to punish prominent statesmen for daring to represent their constituents and voting as their experience and conscience dictated.

"We planned it that way," said the President! And yet the greatest spender ever known has asked for more billions and the right to spend them as he wishes.

Is such a man "necessary" to the welfare of the country?

More Opinions On Neutrality

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the democracies are to live they must form a team and play the game. To play alone in this age of gangs makes the odds too much against them.

Mussolini says the democracies are too stupid to be feared and recent events in our own Congress go far to confirm his statement.

Congressmen claim they wish to keep the country out of war and yet they decline to take the only course which would keep her out. There is only one way to keep this country out of a world war. That way is to prevent the war.

Congress could do this by passing the President's neutrality act. There can be no real neutrality for us in the war to come. We either fight with the democracies or at least help them or we die as a nation when they die.

Let's see what will happen if England and France are defeated. The treasury of the axis powers will, of course, be empty. They look around and see the great rich plum hanging just across the pond. They won't even have to send an expeditionary army. Nor will they have to meet the United States Navy.

Mr. Hitler will send an order to his "bund" leader in this country. The "Germany in America" will throw off the mask and its army will spring to life. It will soundly spank our wretched little Regular Army.

It will take Chicago, the "Solar Plexus" of the United States, and the war will be over. An alien force could take either or both coasts of the United States without materially damaging her fighting power. But he who takes Chicago hands the "KO" to the United States. If Hitler knows his business that is what he would do.

Thus our country could practically be taken without loss of life to the axis powers—if England and France are defeated. And Uncle Sam's Navy, in which he places so much dependence, would be a navy without a home.

Therefore, Uncle Sam, do as you please. Help whom you will. Or don't help anyone. But remember this—you will go with England and France in defeat if you don't care to go with them in victory.

C. M. DODSON.
East Falls Church, Va., July 13.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many letters have been published in The Post on European conditions and our relation thereto. Some think we ought to back Britain against Germany; others believe as I do—we ought to keep out of the affairs of Europe. I am inclined to think nine-tenths of Americans desire to avoid entanglements in the affairs of Europe. Once in favor of the League of Nations I am now vigorously opposed to our implementing England and France for their policy of encirclement. It would merely stimulate these powers to oppose the Rome-Berlin axis.

France and England pay nothing to us of war debts since Germany regained her ability to put over a moratorium, i. e., to stop paying all the expenses of the last war.

If Italy and Germany claim better economic facilities they can hardly be blamed. One was crushed and the other cheated out of the share due her at Versailles. Just now Congress is wise by opposing the plan to put into the President's hands the power to select nations to trade with and furnish supplies of war. Instead of "neutrality," this would be distinct partisan backing of London, Paris, Moscow and Turkish control of Europe. It is our business to avoid such partisan favor of Britain.

Short-Sighted Policy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My ancestors, on both sides of the family, have been citizens of the United States since the signing of the Declaration of Independence, on which fact I base the claim that the following assertions come from a 100 per cent American with an absolutely loyal American background.

Notwithstanding this, I have become convinced that we, "The People of the United States," are the outstanding example of national selfishness in the economical setup that is now keeping this world in turmoil.

It can scarcely be denied that a basic reason for the unrest now prevailing around the globe is widespread economic distress. A desperate struggle is going on between the "haves" and the "have nots" and populations who are able to secure but a meager existence are living in plain sight of others with an unusable surplus.

Brushing aside tiresome statistics, the net financial result from the great war was to make Uncle Sam very rich and most other countries very poor.

Beginning of this war found us dependent on foreign countries for many billions of capital necessary for financing our rapidly expanding national economy. Flotation of a large new enterprise automatically included arrangements to market important amounts of its securities abroad.

We could not easily have carried forward these gigantic projects, at the pace they went, without doing this. If the national Treasury was short of gold, as was frequently the case, we hot-footed over the Atlantic and got it. At the war's closing this picture had been completely changed.

Vast accumulations of our securities held abroad by people who, precisely like our own citizens, had invested the fruits of their past thrift in them, were in one way or another regimented and returned to this country in exchange for nonproductive war essentials. Their gold bags had been emptied to send us cash for the same purpose and they were in hock to us for unpaid billions.

We are refusing to play ball with the rest of mankind by withholding rotting products and rotting gold which are useless to us but desperately necessary to them for no other reason than their inability to lay spot cash on the barrel head. A policy more short-sighted, unchristianlike and barbarous than that prevailing here five hundred years ago with management in the hands of the untutored savage.

Vulnerable

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our Congressional isolationists should be asked, "Do you favor the abolition of our Army and Navy?" If they reply in the negative they should be asked what value these forces would have if Britain and France are destroyed.

They will say we do not believe they will be destroyed but, suppose your opinion is incorrect, we would say we are thus staking our national existence on belief that Britain and France will not be destroyed but are taking no steps to prevent their destruction and without our aid these nations will be destroyed in a few weeks or months.

Any intelligent person can see they are vulnerable. Our isolationist Congressmen and Senators designate as fantastic any condition beyond their understanding and thus show their unfitness to be custodians of our national existence in this crucial hour.

The Post Impressionist

Law By Calendar

When Charles Henry Robb, retired justice of District Court of Appeals, died just a month ago in Washington, his role in outlawing minimum wage legislation for 14 years went unremarked.

That role was not Justice Robb's vote—although he voted against upholding the legislation's constitutionality. It was, instead, a period of illness—the nature and cause of which are long since forgotten—which kept him off the bench for a few weeks just 19 years ago. And it was that indisposition, rather than any arguments before the Supreme Court, or the precepts of the Constitution itself, which withered the constitutionality of State attemps to regulate the wages of women and minors from 1923 to 1937.

Thomas Reed Powell, rapier-witted Harvard Law School professor, whose hobby is snipping at the honorable Justices of the Supreme Court, developed the thesis in the Harvard Law Review in 1924, long before the decision of West Coast Hotel vs. Parrish overruled the consequences of the decision of Justice Robb's physician.

Powell's argument, which is to the effect that constitutionality is determined by the calendar, not the Constitution, follows this reasoning:

In 1917 the first minimum wage case, concerning an Oregon law, reached the Supreme Court. Justice Brandeis, with the Lincolnian integrity which is in marked contrast to the actions of some of his colleagues, withdrew from consideration of the case, since he had been counsel for the legislation before he was a member of the court.

The decision handed down was 4 to 4, thus upholding the ruling of the court below, which held the legislation constitutional. The tie vote, however, aside from determining the case at issue, did nothing to settle finally the constitutionality of this type of regulatory legislation. It was not recorded on which side the eight participating justices voted.

The next minimum wage case—the famous Adkins vs. Children's Hospital—did not reach the Supreme Court until March, 1923. With Brandeis again taking no part, the District minimum wage law was found unconstitutional by a vote of 5 to 3.

Those invalidating the law were Justices McKenna, Van Devanter, McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler. Three of these, McKenna, Van Devanter and McReynolds, were on the court in 1917 and undoubtedly voted to throw out the Oregon law. The fourth one voting with them in 1917 is conceded almost certainly to have been Chief Justice White.

By the process of elimination and also by general knowledge of their sentiments, the four justices who must have voted to uphold the Oregon law were Holmes, who dissented in the 1923 judgment, Clarke, Pitney and Day.

Between 1917 and June, 1922, there was only one change in the court, Chief Justice Taft replacing White in October, 1921. Since Taft dissented from the majority which threw down the District law in 1923, it is clear that had a minimum wage case come to the court between October, 1921, and June, 1922, it would have been upheld by a 5-to-3 vote, even with Brandeis abstaining.

In June, 1922, however, three of the justices presumably favorable to the constitutionality of minimum wage legislation were replaced. They were Day, Whitney and Clarke. Two of them were replaced by justices who the next year were to vote with the majority outlawing the District law. They were Sutherland and Butler. The third, who dissented in company with Holmes and Taft, was Sanford.

Robb's illness was decisive purely from the time element. The case, then, Children's Hospital vs. Adkins, was given its first hearing in the District Court of Appeals when Robb was unable to attend. Chief Justice Smythe and the other associate justice, Van Orsdel, had designated Justice Stafford, of the District Supreme Court, to sit with them. The decision, on June 6, 1921, upheld the District law 2 to 1, Justice Van Orsdel dissenting. Motions for rehearing were denied two weeks later.

But three days afterward, Justice Robb, now recovered, notified Smythe he was considering an application for a rehearing. On July 1, he and Van Orsdel notified the clerk of the court to grant an order for a new case. The Chief Justice dissented.

The decision, adverse to the constitutionality of the statute, was handed down November 6, 1922, Robb and Van Orsdel in the majority, Smythe dissenting. Within six months the case was in the Supreme Court.

Had Robb attended the first hearing, the decision in the District Court of Appeals would, of course, have been adverse, in the same way. But it would have come down in June, 1921, fully a year before the Supreme Court membership had changed from a 5-to-3 majority, which would have held the legislation constitutional—and thus would have overruled the lower court's decision—to a 5-to-3 decision, which tossed the law out.

The time elapsed between the lower court's finding and the Supreme Court's argument was only six months. Certainly it could have been similarly appealed at least within a year had the adverse decision come down in the summer of 1921 instead of the fall of 1922. If so, minimum wage laws in Oregon, Washington, Minnesota and Arkansas would have been held valid and the growing momentum of similar legislation in other States, now getting under way since the West Coast Hotel vs. Parrish decision in March, 1937, would have been advanced by 14 years.

There is one compensation, however. Had there been no dissenting opinion in 1923 in which Justice Holmes took part, one of his immortal bon mots might never have been written.

To the argument that women, newly enjoying the same constitutional political privileges as men, had therefore no right to special protective legislation, Justice Holmes answered: "It will need more than the nineteenth amendment to convince me there are no differences between men and women."

Fair Enough

A Basic Rule

IF SENATOR JOE GUFFEY, of Pennsylvania, were half the American that he thinks he is he would know the ground rules of the American national game of craps. If he knew the rules he would know that a cry of "no dice" is invalid if it is raised after the cubes have stopped bouncing. All Americans deserving of the name know that if it is desired for any reason to protest the roll the objector must interfere with the blocks at once and enter his objection on the instant in clear, ringing tones. He may not like the manner in which they were tossed out or he may wish to inspect the spots to assure himself that no sleight of hand has been practiced to introduce unorthodox tools.

He has his privilege, and the phrase "no dice," uttered in time, may save him from grievous loss. But he must not attempt to nullify a throw which was made some time before, the results of which have become a minute drop of history in the stream of human progress.

A Flagrant Act Of Un-Americanism

THIS BEING SO, as any American versed in the rules, etiquette and traditions of the national game will readily agree, Mr. Guffey was guilty of a flagrant act of un-Americanism when he recently yelled "no dice" as to President Roosevelt's two terms in office. He said the first term was no dice because it was vetoed by the Supreme Court. The second term, he said, was stolen by tories and political ingrates.

Now, as to the first term, he may congratulate himself that he committed this breach in the game of politics and not in the game of craps. Were he to have waited thus long, even relatively, to enter a protest in a crap game Senator Guffey would have been tagged with a chair leg or pool cue and tossed down the stairs, and public opinion would have held that it served the Senator right. He was leaning over the table, so to speak, breathing hard and oozing dew onto the board when the thing happened, and he made no complaint at the time, unless you count his speech attempting to read out of the party, if not out of the human race, several colleagues who had opposed the plan to pack the Supreme Court. If you do count that you may remind yourself that Senator Burt Wheeler, in fact, did rear back and conk him with a cast iron gobboon and the public opinion disallowed Mr. Guffey's protest.

"No Dice" Cry Now Barely Within Limits

AS TO THE SECOND term, it might be agreed that the dice have not stopped rolling and that Senator Guffey is still within the statute of limitations by a split second. But it may be argued to the contrary that by now the dice definitely are not in action any more but just teetering a little and show spots which, to Senator Guffey's own eyes, distinctly indicate a final reading of ace-deuce. The time to have called "no dice" was back in the early days of the second term, when it was impossible to foresee what numbers would come up.

Senator Guffey once acquired, perhaps inadvertently, $406,000 of interest on public funds while serving his country as a dollar-a-year man in the office of the alien property custodian and had to kick it back. He is a New Dealer of the same general type as Frank Hague and Ed Kelly, of Chicago. Prosperous, fortunate men of large inscrutable affairs and wealth, these patriots have in common a strong, profitable enthusiasm for the Administration but a personal reserve which deters them from sharing poverty with the ill-used third. They also have a common experience of regrettable misunderstandings with the Treasury of the Nation which they serve, such being the ingratitude of republics.

His Own Man Rolling the Dice

THE SENATOR goes so far as to say that an upheaval will destroy big business and politicians if his claim of "no dice" for President Roosevelt is disallowed. He seems to forget, however, that his own man has held the dice both times and that if there was anything wrong with the roll or the tools that would be something for his man, not the opposition, to explain.

The Senator, were he up in his Americanism, would know, too, that among those who play the national game the phrase "no dice" is used to describe a type of person who is neither hated nor respected. Of such a person it is said that he is just no dice. Senator Guffey might try that one on for size.

Roosevelt Backs Business Loans

President Confers With Congressional And Agency Chiefs

Passage of legislation putting the Government's guarantee behind long-term loans to small business was favored by President Roosevelt yesterday at a White House conference with Congressional leaders and lending agency officials.

Mr. Roosevelt also advocated an educational campaign bringing to the attention of lending institutions and prospective borrowers—both big and little—the facilities now available at the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for insuring loans to business generally.

Senators Wagner and Mead, New York Democrats, said following the conference that an amendment would be offered to the lending bill liberalizing the authority of the RFC to make loans to small concerns. The amendment, Mead said, will embody the "principle" of a bill which he has introduced directing the RFC to insure small business loans.

Senator Barkley, Kentucky, majority leader, indicated that there was some doubt whether such an amendment would be proposed. The Senate Banking and Currency Committee, which Wagner heads, has made no attempt to act on the Mead bill, he pointed out.

Uncertainty likewise prevailed as to whether the amendment, if offered, would increase powers which the RFC has already. Although the corporation does not specifically guarantee loans, it makes loans directly to small concerns, and participates with banks in making loans.

It was the latter power which Mr. Roosevelt had in mind in suggesting an educational campaign to let lenders and borrowers know what the RFC can now do to help them get together. By virtue of this power the corporation, in effect, is able to insure loans.

Besides the President, Wagner and Mead, those attending the conference were Jesse H. Jones, Federal loan administrator, and Emil Schram, who succeeded Jones as chairman of the RFC.

Any loan insurance amendment which might be attached to the lending bill, Jones explained, still would give the RFC power to set up regulations governing insurance of loans. This would enable the corporation to prevent banks from unloading their bad loans on it, he intimated. Only in the event Congress passed an "automatic" loan insurance measure, he said, would banks be able to do this.

The White House conference on small business loan legislation came as a surprise. Only a day or so before, responsible sources had made clear that efforts to enact the Mead bill or similar legislation at this session had been abandoned.

The conference lasted more than an hour. Emerging from the President's office, Jones handed newspapermen a statement, purporting to speak for the President as well as for the others present.

"All agree," the statement read, "that no effort should be spared to meet the legitimate need of small business for working capital and for (loans for) modernization of plant and equipment.

"The President expressed the hope that the RFC, under existing law, would continue its efforts to put into effect substantially the substance of the Mead bill."

The conferees felt, the statement said, that "direct authority to insure loans through a new act of Congress would stimulate applications, and encourage banks to make a greater effort at lending, particularly for modernization and plant improvement, and for longer terms than heretofore has been the practice."

Jones suggested that the effect of a loan insurance amendment, if passed, probably would be in large degree psychological, although it might convey certain enlarged powers.

Mead said he planned to offer an amendment to the lending bill liberalizing the power of the Federal Reserve banks to make loans to small business. The Reserve banks now have authority to make working capital loans running for as much as five years.

Sponsors of such an amendment, it is understood, feel that Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Reserve Board might be more energetic in trying to provide long-term credit to small concerns than the RFC.

criticism, and provision for return to the Treasury, not for re-use, of returns on the Government outlay.

Deletion of authority for the RFC and other lending agencies to create separate corporations in the States.

Restriction of Government power to build and lease equipment to the railroads, except on contract with the roads for equipment built to their specifications.

Removal of authority for government officers or agents to make arrests on the new toll highways.

Barkley said he probably would submit additional amendments of a modifying nature.

Placed on the leader's desk before adjournment was a copy of the revised Mead bill broadening RFC authority to insure business loans, recommended by Senators Wagner and Mead, of New York, yesterday at a White House conference. Barkley said he had not read the revised bill, but noted the original had failed to make progress in committee.

Barkley's proposed modification in railroad equipment provisions of the bill met objections previously voiced by Joseph B. Eastman, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads. A similar change was recommended to the Banking Committee yesterday by Eccles.

The Federal Reserve Board chairman indorsed the lending program and said some or all of three things must occur if the country is to "escape continuous depression with its accompanying great unemployment:"

An unforeseen very large outlet for investment must develop in new or old industries.

Or a considerable increase must be brought about in the proportion of the national income that goes into consumption.

Or the Government must provide an outlet for idle funds through deficit financing of work relief, public works, armaments, etc., or, as far as possible, through a program like the one proposed in the bill.

Eccles said he thought the lending program "indispensable," in view of proposed greatly reduced WPA and PWA employment, but thought "the annual expenditures that can be achieved under this program will make only a small contribution toward the solution of our basic problem."

Across the Capitol, the lending program was recommended to the House Banking Committee by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Assistant Secretary Daniel W. Bell and Edward H. Foley, jr., general counsel of the Treasury.

Representative Wolcott (Republican), of Michigan, asked Foley if it would be possible to finance such abandoned projects as the Passamaquoddy tide-harnessing venture and the Florida ship canal under the bill. Foley said that might be possible if special corporations were formed to borrow Federal money to build them.

House Republicans are planning to confer Monday on their general policy toward the bill.

A House fight meanwhile was presaged on the Lea railroad bill reported yesterday by the House Interstate Commerce Committee, including rail, motor truck and water carriers under Interstate Commerce Commission regulatory powers.

be assignment of extra personnel to nine regular play centers already in operation.

A study of last summer's traffic toll, according to the recreation head, indicates that "it is just as important to provide an attractive program for young children at the regular play centers as to open school grounds."

"In line with this policy, we will have from 12 to 15 supervisors, all experienced in recreation work with children under 10, at work by Friday," he promised. They will be sent, he said, to the following fields:

Lincoln, Stanton, Gallinger and Franklin parks; Burroughs, Rosedale and Fairfield playgrounds, and Randall and Banneker Recreation centers.

Six to Be Open by Monday

"Older children are already in the habit of going to these grounds and the equipment is there," he pointed out. "I think by offering a more attractive program that we can substantially reduce the number of young children playing on the streets in those areas."

Six more school grounds, all in the congested fringe of the downtown area, will be open by Monday, he asserted. They are Curtis, Smallwood, Ambush, Bryan, Wormley and Bell.

No Police Badges, No Orders and No Promotions

A lieutenant, a detective sergeant and 11 precinct detectives were notified to be at Maj. Ernest W. Brown's office at 10 a. m. yesterday to renew their oaths and receive badges of promotion to captain, lieutenant and detective sergeants.

They waited about 15 minutes before Maj. Brown found himself swamped with work. He notified the men to be back at 4 p. m.

In the meantime, Inspector William G. Stott, who is in charge of equipment, discovered that he did not have enough badges for the new detective sergeants. But that, he said, was a minor item.

At 4 p. m. the men again filed into Maj. Brown's office. But, alas, they still were not promoted. The Commissioners, it seems, had failed to sign the approval order properly!

Conference Today On Retirement Act

Senate and House conferees will meet today on the two bills to liberalize the Government retirement act.

Senator Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, who called the parley, expressed hope the Senate and House measures may be reconciled before adjournment. One of the major differences is in the percentage of contribution required of employes. Others have to do with the optional retirement ages.

FIDAC to Meet In Yugoslavia, Says Col. Peyser

Col. Julius I. Peyser, Washington attorney, one of ten American delegates to the Congress of the Federation Interallies des Anciens Combattants, said yesterday the representatives of World War allies would convene in Yugoslavia in September, minus their former Italian war comrades.

Col. Peyser said Italy's former service men had withdrawn from the F. I. D. A. C. following disputes with the French representatives over the policies of the organization.

A former vice president of the American F. I. D. A. C. organization, Col. Peyser, in 1929, attended the international congress with Paul V. McNutt, now Federal Security Administrator. The American delegation was dinner guests of Premier Mussolini in Rome.

Church-State Split Urged by Dr. Truett

Atlanta, July 19 (AP).—Dr. George Washington Truett, one-time mountaineer boy and now an international Christian leader, insisted today the world needs reaffirmation of church-state separation as "the crown jewel of humanity."

Dr. Truett talked to newsmen in Atlanta's municipal auditorium while workers rushed preparations for the opening Saturday of the sixth congress of the Baptist World Alliance, of which he is president.

Vacationists Spend Little for Food and Quarters

Mr. and Mrs. Summer Vacationist take less money out of their pocketbooks for food and accommodations than for any expenditures on their trip. According to figures from the United States Travel Bureau of the Interior Department, they pay out only 5 per cent of their dollar for living quarters and only 15 per cent for food and refreshments.

Recreation amounts to 22 per cent of their dollar bill and transportation more than halves it at 58 per cent.

One reason why money paid out for lodging is so small is the fact that out of every 100 motorists, about 36 spend their annual leave with friends or relatives or at their own summer cottage.

The large total allotted to transportation may also be explained, according to the Travel Bureau report, by the fact that the figures include numerous short trips where money for overnight accommodations does not enter the picture.

The Senate Stalemate

Behind The Scenes

GOSSIP ABOUT the conference between President Roosevelt and Senate leaders of both parties says that at one point Mr. Roosevelt suggested—or possibly only implied by his manner—that he might take the issue to the country.

Whether he does or not, the issue ought to be understood. And to understand, it is necessary to divide the issue into two parts. The request Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull made of the Senate was double. They asked:

(a) That the Senate act on neutrality at this session.

(b) That the Senate act in a particular way—that the Senate pass the particular kind of neutrality bill which Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull wanted.

On the first charge, failure of the Senate to act at this session, Mr. Roosevelt, or anyone else, can make out a fair case. This charge is that the Senate delays legislation which the President, and many others, think is needed. To act upon proposed legislation is the Senate's function. Indeed, the duty of Congress in this respect might be stated more broadly. It is the responsibility of Congress to act upon proposed legislation—and to act in time.

As to the neutrality bill, there might be a question about time. Some might say there is no hurry about neutrality legislation. But omit that refinement. Consider legislation that is indisputably needed.

Belated Action Cited By Radicals

IT IS A FACT that this session of Congress has made lapses in the time element of legislation. Although Congress had been in session since January 3, although it knew the fiscal year would end June 30, yet Congress did not pass the routine District of Columbia appropriation bill until July 14—leaving the City of Washington for two weeks without provision for carrying on the city government.

Again, although Congress knew that certain monetary powers of the President would expire June 30; and although, as to one of those powers, there was practically no question—yet Congress did not act until July 5, leaving the Government for five days in a situation in which it might have been embarrassed.

These failures to act in time are a legitimate charge against Congress. The charge is serious at a time when, throughout the world, parliamentary government is on trial; when radicals in America are saying that government by Congress is cumbersome and dilatory, that we must have more power in the Presidency.

But, as respects neutrality, it is not delay merely that causes Mr. Roosevelt to complain. Delay is not the serious part of his charge, as he sees it. The charge Mr. Roosevelt has in mind is that Congress did not pass the particular kind of measure Mr. Roosevelt wanted—the kind he and Mr. Hull set down in detail, six points of it. On that charge, will Mr. Roosevelt be able to convince the country? There is nothing in the Constitution, nor in the mind of the public, which says it is the business of Congress to do what the President wants, to be a rubber stamp to the President.

Party Government Failure Is Seen

IF MR. ROOSEVELT takes that charge to the country, he may encounter an embarrassing comeback.

The Senate's failure to pass Mr. Roosevelt's neutrality measure is no failure of constitutional government. There is, however, a failure here. It is a failure of something that has grown up outside the Constitution. It is a failure of party government.

Here is a President who, by being President, is head of his party. And here is this party with 69 out of the 96 members of the Senate. And here is this immense Democratic majority failing to follow the leadership of the party's head. It was not the Republicans who frustrated Mr. Roosevelt—that small group of 25 could not.

So the question becomes, why does not the Democratic majority in Congress, the majority that is responsible for Congress—why do they not follow the President's leadership?

They think they have good reasons. A few are:

Many Democrats in Congress feel that the leadership which Mr. Roosevelt imposes on them is not always Democratic leadership. (This does not apply to the neutrality bill—Secretary of State Hull, who joined in asking for it, is the best of Democrats.) Some of the measures which in the past Mr. Roosevelt sent to Congress were not written by any Democrat. Some were written by men in Mr. Roosevelt's personal circle, some of whom hardly reflect any party ever known in America.

MR. ROOSEVELT has sent measures to Congress without even showing them in advance to his party leaders in Congress. The court bill, which Mr. Roosevelt sent to Congress written out to the last comma, was not seen by any Democratic leader in Congress until Mr. Roosevelt sent for them, a scant 30 minutes before he gave the bill, and his message calling for its passage, to the public.

When some Democratic Senators, feeling that some of the President's measures were not Democratic, declined to follow his leadership, on the court and other measures—men of high character and long experience, such as Mr. George, of Georgia—when that happened Mr. Roosevelt went into the States of these men, and asked the voters of their party, directly and in person, to retire these men from public life.

The Biter Bit

By Barnet Nover

The Third Reich's Turn to Be Scared

YESTERDAY 12 squadrons of British bombing planes crossed the English Channel, carried out a simulated air raid of Paris and returned to their bases without the slightest mishap. It was the second such mass flight of British bombers to France, a detachment of British planes having flown to Bordeaux and back earlier this month.

As technical operations such maneuvers have little more than routine significance. There is probably not an important air force in the world which could not duplicate these flights with respect to the distances covered, the efficiency of operation and the freedom from accidents. But as propaganda the value of these British flights is, at the present moment, incalculable.

GERMAN military theorists of recent times have argued that success in war depends on the capacity to deal the enemy a lightning blow of such ferocity as to demoralize him utterly before he can retaliate. That is the theory of the so-called "Blitzkrieg," an offshoot of the theory first elaborated by the Italian, Douhet. And it necessarily depends for its execution on an overwhelmingly superior air force.

It is not even now clear whether, last September, Germany had such an air force. The important thing, however, is that there were many in Great Britain and France who believed in the overwhelming superiority of German air power and thus in the Third Reich's capacity to deal a paralyzing blow at London and Paris. The jitters of the British and French people, in the days immediately before Munich, is thus understandable, and also the temporary relief they manifested when peace was saved.

SINCE MUNICH the British have made very considerable strides in building up their air arm. Possibly Great Britain is still some distance behind Germany in the number of first-line planes, in the production capacity of her airplane factories and in reserves. But she is catching up rapidly and even expects, before long, to overtake the Third Reich.

Should these anticipations prove correct this would not necessarily mean that London would be spared the horrors of a disastrous bombardment in wartime. Thus far no truly effective preventive devices against air raids have been discovered. But it would at least mean that Great Britain would be in a position to retaliate in kind for any aerial bombardment of her capital and other important British centers.

THIS is now being brought home to the German government and people. If a detachment of 125 British bombers can fly to Bordeaux they can also fly to points in Germany. And not all the censorship which the Nazi regime is capable of imposing on its press, radio and other agencies of information can keep the news of these flights out of the Reich.

The fact is that the totalitarian powers no longer enjoy a monopoly, as they did for a long time, of psychological means of intimidation. For years their propaganda went practically unchallenged both at home and abroad. But that day is drawing to a close. Since September, for instance, the British Broadcasting Corporation, a quasi-governmental institution, has been doing a great deal to get over to the German people the British view of international developments. And its activities have been supplemented by private actions. Thus the recent peace manifesto addressed to German workingmen by the British labor unions is admittedly being broadcast by secret radio stations on the continent and in Germany itself and distributed as secret literature through the underground movement.

COMMENTS of Nazi spokesmen indicate that these efforts to reach the people of Germany are giving the Hitler regime an increasing amount of concern. No wonder. The full effectiveness of propaganda can only be achieved in a vacuum created by censorship which excludes all news and views in any degree critical of the regime. There was such a vacuum in the Reich until recently. That is, to an increasing extent, no longer true now.

THE BRITISH believe, and with very good reason, that they are engaged in a race with time. In time the alleged inferiority in fighting power of the peace front nations as against the totalitarian bloc will disappear. They are convinced that already it would be suicidal for Hitler to plunge his nation into war. But they are not at all sure they have convinced the Fuehrer of this or convinced the German people of the extent and nature of Britain's very considerable rearrangement.

The British government is leaving no stone unturned to bring home to Germany what Great Britain is doing and what she is prepared to do to prevent further aggression in Europe. The British are now demonstrating to Hitler that two can play at the game of propaganda—and psychological intimidation. The mass flights to France, soon to be supplemented by mass flights to the Mediterranean are eloquent witnesses of that fact.

Kennedy Gloomy On Reorganization

Kennedy asserted that the bill he introduced only recently "is no new thing."

"It follows in essentials the plan proposed in the original report of last February," he explained, "with changes only in details that are easily understood when considered in the light of the original proposals."

The reorganization sponsor reiterated that District taxpayers are losing $10,000 a day by the failure of the sub-committee to report the measure before Congress adjourns.

Criticizing by implication the suggestion of his colleagues that the Commissioners be requested to furnish an alternative plan by December 1. Kennedy asserted that the Commissioners and their aids "are disqualified by personal interest in maintaining the status quo with no changes that would not enhance their own power and prestige."

The statement answered directly criticisms of the reorganization plan expressed by Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal on behalf of the "kitchen cabinet."

The charge that the real purpose of the bill has been "camouflaged," said Kennedy, is "childish as the provisions are definite and clear." Seal's statement that it would subordinate the Commissioners to the city manager is untrue, he added, as the manager would be hired and fired by the Commissioners.

Seal's assertion that enactment of the bill would leave the District in a muddle for the next fifty years, Kennedy said, is "directly contrary to the experience of hundreds of cities and many States that have adopted modern, business-like forms.

"If these are good examples of the most serious objections that the Commissioners, with their advisers, have been able to trump up in the five months and more that the proposed plan has been before them," he continued, "what weight can be given to their criticism in general?

"And how much is to be expected from an alternative form of reorganization that they made devise, as they were instructed to do, before the next session of Congress?"

Criticisms of the plan at public hearings and in the press, Kennedy said, "have given rise to false impressions of general opposition to the plan.

"But the fact is," he added, "that little consideration has been given to the plan as such. The objections have been to details almost entirely, not to the essential features of the plan. The general reaction has been that the plan is a good one as a whole, but that the several activities in which the objectors are interested should not be changed.

"The experts have met and overcome most of these objections in what I think a very satisfactory manner. Adjustments to meet the demands of some of the more influential groups are incorporated in the bill as introduced, even though they do tend to weaken the plan and deprive it of some of its advantages.

"Without exception other outstanding authorities on the subject of what constitutes good government organization, who have expressed themselves, have been enthusiastic in their praise of the plan on which the bill is based, and of the near perfection of its draftsmanship.

"Are we to listen to them, and our own chosen experts, or to local objectors with no such background as would equip them to speak with authority in this highly specialized field?"

French Mislay $100,000 Windows

New York, July 19.—A pair of thirteenth century stained glass windows, valued at $100,00, was officially listed as "missing" today by the directors of the French government's art display at the World's Fair.

The windows were removed from the Chapel of the Ursulines in the Chateau of Phillipe Auguste at Rouen, and last April were shipped from Paris.

Since that time Government agents have been searching, but today officials announced hope of finding the windows had virtually been abandoned.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

By P. V. McNutt

Imaginary Interviews:

Q.—Well, how does it seem to be Federal Security Commissioner?

A.—Is that what I am?

Q.—Of course. Didn't you know it?

A.—It's hard to keep track of what I'm doing. All I know is that I'm in another job.

Q.—Do you think you'll like it?

Q.—Mr. McNutt, are you a candidate for the Presidency?

A.—Can't we skip that for the time being?

Q.—Hardly. You admit there is a McNutt for President organization, do you not?

A.—I can't graciously discuss it, now that the President has put me in this postion.

Q.—Let me put it this way: Would you refuse the nomination?

A.—Look over my record from boyhood on and you will see I have never refused anything.

Q.—I assume you are conscious of your qualifications for the White House?

A.—If you expect a McNutt to disparage a McNutt you are crazy.

Q.—Do you think Roosevelt wants a third term?

A.—I can't understand how any man could want the same job 12 years. I'm bored after four.

Q.—If he runs will you be a candidate?

A.—Yes and no.

Q.—What do you mean by that?

A.—No and yes.

Q.—Mr. McNutt, are you confident you could fill Mr. Roosevelt's shoes?

A.—It is not a question of filling his shoes; it is a question of filling his microphone.

Q.—I do not ever recall hearing of any fishing attainments by you.

A.—That means nothing. I headed the American Legion without ever fighting in Europe.

A.—What question?

Q.—One more question, Mr. McNutt; What do you think of the budget?

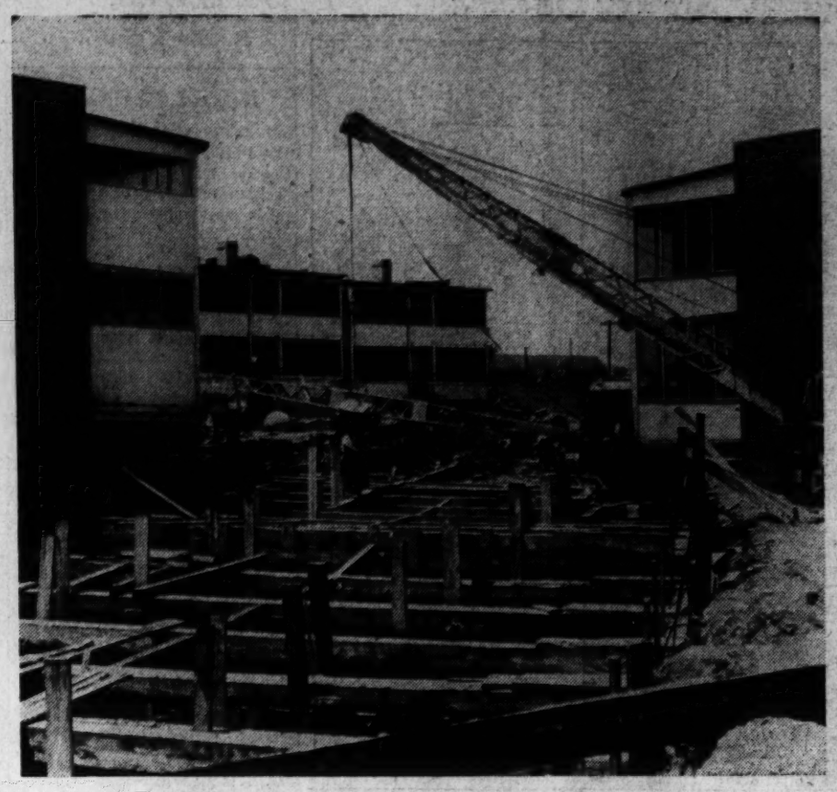
French Room, Second Floor

Picture Story of an $18,150,000 Washington Renovation Job

1. SEWER—For a distance of 865 feet the District, with Uncle Sam's PWA cash, is tearing up the old Northeast boundary sewer in the vicinity of Twentieth and B streets northeast. Dynamite blasts have ripped up, and a one-ton steel drop hammer has crushed away the masonry arch which S. H. Mitchell (left), an inspector, and William Headley, timekeeper, examine. It is the biggest in the city and a headache for northeast Washington residents who have put up with it, open and unsavory, in their backyards



2. TWENTY-THREE FEET deep runs the sewer cut, and more than 22 feet wide to give householders an open sewer where they once had a rear yard. The original sewer was built about 40 years ago of the finest construction then known, but gradually, under the pressure of water seeping toward the river, brick work at the base of the sewer began to break away. The District decided to replace masonry with reinforced concrete

3. LES MISERABLES—The unhappy characters of Victor Hugo's masterpiece, were they to come to life, might view this scene with a slight feeling of nostalgia. The sewer cut (arrow) runs directly beneath a portion of the rear porch of this house in the 1900 block of B street northeast. Cracks have appeared in the front walls of this house and others in the neighborhood, and what with the steamshoveling, the blasting and the crushing the neighbors will be happy when December 1 rolls around and the job is finished

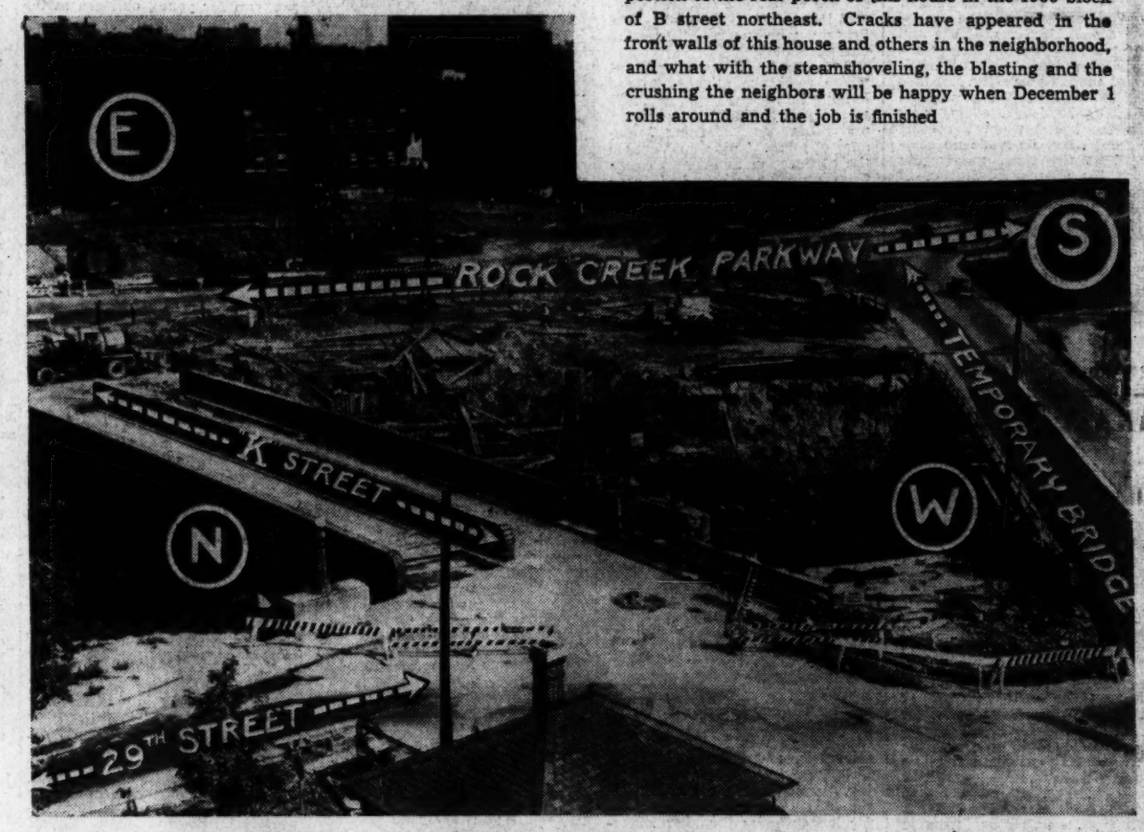
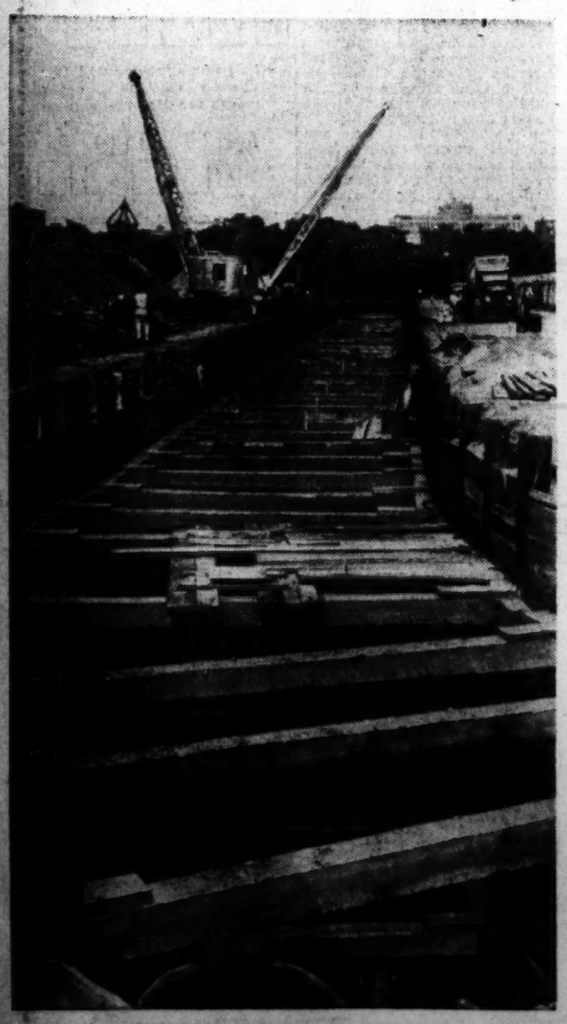
4. DOWN through the old Georgetown fill, near Twenty-sixth and M streets northwest, workmen are hacking out a 12½-foot tunnel beneath the Francis Junior High School swimming pool. The tunnel will join a 35-foot-deep cut (shown below) on the other side of the school, running to an elbow of Rock Creek to a point opposite the P Street Bridge, where the creek is being diverted. It's part of a $3,710,800 project to divorce Rock Creek from enough of its polluting sewage to permit fish stocking and to relieve periodic flooding in the vicinity of Arkansas avenue and Thirteenth street northwest



5. ANOTHER DIVERSION of interest only to motorists, is taking shape in the neighborhood of K street and Rock Creek Parkway. K street traffic is being separated from the traffic stream along Rock Creek Parkway. Photo shows the old bridge which will be replaced by the overpass, with steam shovels at work in the background



6. A HUGE HOLE in the ground stands for the ultimate realization of Washington's dream of a municipal center at John Marshall place, Indiana avenue, Third and C streets. Supports for the building will be built in holes shown in foreground. Background shows foundation for plaza landscaping and fountains. Sidewalks have been dropped 13 feet (right), while steam shovels slash away the grade on Third street to give unbroken vista from Pennsylvania avenue

7. ON JUDICIARY SQUARE, just north of the center, the character of another city development is rapidly taking shape. Shown is the new $1,500,000 Municipal Court Building with its limestone exterior nearly complete. Nearby steelworkers are finishing their labor on the $550,000 Juvenile Court structure. Both are scheduled for completion next February

Your Figure Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

Partly Reduced, Many Women Seek Perfection

IN A FIGURE program, you constantly go from good to better and before the finish you won't be content with anything but the best. As soon as you trim your weight down you begin to see what a nice figure you could have with an inch or two off the waistline . . . maybe you realize that you could make yourself into a very good-looking woman!

As an illustration, two years ago one reducer thought she would be quite happy if she could get her weight down from 230 pounds to normal. But now she writes:

"I weigh 154 pounds and have these measurements: bust, 36 inches; waist, 29 inches, hips, 37 inches. But although when dressed my figure seems perfect, I know that it isn't. I still have heavy thighs—and nothing I do seems to reduce them. Perhaps you can help me."

Nothing's Impossible

You see how it goes? Nothing short of perfection will do for the woman who has really seen what an improvement can be made in her figure. With the right technique, nothing is impossible. And improvement of the thighs is easy.

For those who cannot face a long-term figure program, there is a letter from a reducer who made a quick change in her weight. She writes:

"I just have to tell you how thrilled I am. Three months ago I weighed 172 pounds, and now I am down to 147 pounds and I feel fine. I did wear a size 40 dress and now I wear an 18."

Cinnamon Buns Are Suggested For Breakfast

Ida Lansden, Guest Food Editor, Gives Hot Bread Recipe

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor.

Favorite recipes of leading home economists of Washington are presented daily in this column.

WHO ISN'T filled with the joy of living when tempted by the aroma of fragrant cinnamon buns, old-fashioned corn bread and other hot breads the South has made famous? Many think that the South is the hearthstone of superb cooking. A daughter of the deep South gives a recipe for a delectable hot bread today to the Post food readers.

MISS LANSDEN

Miss Ida Lansden, our guest food editor today has been the director, home service department, Virginia Public Service Co., since 1937. She is a native of Tennessee and attended George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. Previous to entering the utilities field as a home economist, Miss Lansden taught school in Tennessee and Floriad She has been a home economist with the Atlanta Gas Light Co., the Central Florida Gas Co., and the New York State Electric & Gas Corporation. In her present postion she directs six divisions of Virginia Public Service Company. Miss Landsden directs cooking schools for Scouts, girls clubs and other groups in a recently completed model kitchen at her company offices in Alexandria, Va. She is very active in home economics circles and is a member of the Home Economics Women in Business.

When asked for her favorite recipe Miss Lansden said, "Quick breads are a favorite in the South and a welcome addition to a meal in any climate. The recipe I am giving is one that can be prepared the night before, placed in an automatic oven, and "presto," hot cinnamon buns for breakfast. It is best to use an old-fashioned frying pan, then when the rolls are turned out there is a nice caramel icing, since the thickness of the iron pan will not allow the brown sugar to become too dark."

QUICK CINNAMON BUNS

Sift 2 cups of flour once, measure, add 6 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt, and sift again. Cut in 6 tablespoons shortening. Add 1 cup of milk, all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough. Turn out immediately on slightly floured board and knead for 30 seconds. Roll ¾ inch thick. Cream together 4 tablespoons butter, ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar, and ½ teaspoon cinnamon; spread on dough and sprinkle with ½ cup raisins or nuts. Roll as for jelly roll. Cut in 1¼-inch slices. Melt 4 tablespoons butter in 9-inch iron skillet, add 4 tablespoons brown sugar and ½ cup nuts. Place rolls in skillet, cut-side down. Makes 16 rolls. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes.

'Won't You Play?'

HOSTESS—We really ought to have some music. You play, don't you, Mr. Aspic?

MR. ASPIC—Well—er—a little, but—

CHORUS—Yes! Yes!

MR. ASPIC—No, no, really—

CHORUS—Yes, yes, please!

HOSTESS—Yes, you simply MUST. One piece anyway.

MR. ASPIC—We-ll, I—I don't know that I have anything you'd really enjoy—

HOSTESS—Oh, anything will do—pardon me a minute. There's someone at the door.

MRS. PINEY—I simply love music!

CHORUS—So do I!

MISS QUINCE—I certainly wish I'd kept up my music.

HOSTESS (returning)—It was only the man with the ice cream. Now please, let's have just one piece, Mr. Aspic, before we have the refreshments.

MR. ASPIC (seating himself at the piano)—Now, really, I oughtn't—

CHORUS—Yes! Yes!

HOSTESS—I'm afraid that piano needs tuning. I hope it won't bother you.

MR. ASPIC—Would you like something from Chopin?

CHORUS—I love Chopin!

HOSTESS—I'm sorry but that A-flat sticks. I hope it won't bother you.

MR. ASPIC—Well, I'll play this Chopin prelude—

CHORUS—I love that!

HOSTESS—I'm afraid those pedals squeak a little. I hope they won't bother you.

(Applause as Mr. Aspic concludes.)

MRS. PINEY—I love music.

MRS. MOONER—You have such a marvelous touch, Mr. Aspic.

MISS QUINCE—You have such a delicate style.

MR. ASPIC—Thank you. Of course I'm not in very good practice—

MRS. MOONER—Play something else, Mr Aspic.

CHORUS—Yes! Yes!

HOSTESS (looking at clock)—Yes, let's have one more piece before we have the refreshments.

MR. ASPIC—How would you like a little Chopin waltz?

(Applause as Mr. Aspic concludes.)

CHORUS—Lovely!

MRS. MOONER—Wouldn't it be wonderful to play like that?

MISS QUINCE—I certainly wish I'd kept up my music.

MRS. MOONER—I wish my mother had made me practice. No telling where I might have been today.

MISS QUINCE—Everybody said I really had talent.

MRS. PINEY—You know I used to be crazy about jazz but when I hear playing like that, I really believe I like classical music better.

HOSTESS—It was wonderful. We're certainly much obliged to you, Mr. Aspic. And now if you'll excuse me—

MR. ASPIC (fingering the keys)—Perhaps you'd all like to hear a little Bach . . .

CHORUS—Oh, yes.

(Fainter applause as Mr. Aspic concludes.)

MRS. PINEY—I love music.

MISS QUINCE—That was certainly wonderful. What time is it? I'm afraid I'll have to go—

HOSTESS—Oh, no! no! We're going to have the refreshments in just a minute.

MR. ASPIC (fingering the keys)—I wonder if you'd like to hear something from Beethoven?

MRS. MOONER—I adore Beethoven!

MISS QUINCE—So do I, but I'm afraid I'm going to have to—

HOSTESS—Oh! no! no! We'll have Mr. Aspic play just one piece from Beethoven and then we'll have the refreshments.

MR. ASPIC (running up and down the keys)—Well, if you don't mind, and since you are all so appreciative. I'd really like to run through something I've been working up for a program. Now if you're sure it won't bore you—

CHORUS (faintly)—Oh no.

MR. ASPIC—Well, of course I don't want to bore you but—well, I'd really like to let you hear my Beethoven sonata.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Planning Second Marriage, Woman Wants 'Everything to Go Off Nicely;' Asks Many Questions

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am planning to be married in early September, at a morning wedding to take place at 8 o'clock in a Catholic Church. I am a convert and not familiar, therefore, with the appropriate details. I expect to have my wedding gown made. What kind of material would you suggest? Both of us have been married before and since I will not wear white, do you think a blue lace gown would be appropriate? What kind of gloves and hat should I wear—and where could I buy them reasonably?

There will be a matron of honor. Will it be necessary to have a bridesmaid also? And is September too late for the bride's attendants to wear organdy gowns? What kind of a dress is suitable for the bride's going-away dress? What accessories? Would it be too late to wear a white suit or summer chiffon dress? What should the bridegroom wear for the wedding—dark business suit or white trousers and dark blue coat?

I would like to have a reception in the evening since most of the guets will be working during the day and I do not want them to take time off. What shall I serve at the reception? Would the following be suitable—cake, punch, pickles, olives, potato chips and mints? I cannot afford an expensive wedding and would like you to give me a recipe for punch.

I have no close relatives in Washington and if it is impossible for my father to come from Pennsylvania, would it be proper for my former husband's brother to give me in marriage? And what should he wear? How should the procession begin? What kind of a gift should I give the matron of honor, also the organist? I hope I am not asking too much but I want everything to go off nicely. If you have any other suggestions to make, they will be greatly appreciated. Sincerely yours.

BRIDE-TO-BE.

Customary Procedure

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE: Your idea of a blue lace gown is not inappropriate, since most women who are becoming brides for the second time usually choose a wedding gown in a pastel shade. However, all-over lace is, perhaps, the most unflattering of all materials, so I wonder if chiffon would not be more becoming. You will wear a picture hat, and while you may carry a prayerbook and, or a modest bouquet, you will not need gloves. I cannot give the names of shops in this column, and suggest that you scour the town for what you want.

There is no need to have both matron of honor and bridesmaid, unless you have two close friends or relatives, each of whom would feel slighted if left out of the wedding. Where there are no ushers, the bride is sufficiently supported by one attendant and a masculine representative of her family to give her away. For an early morning church wedding, the bride's attendant wears the simplest sort of morning dress with picture (or garden) hat; and since organdy seldom appears to best advantage unless fashioned on billowy lines, your maid of honor had better choose another material—chiffon, perhaps, or one of the sheer crepes.

A suitable going-away dress is one which constitutes suitable wear for wherever one is going, or however one is travelling. It should be seasonally comfortable in weight, and dark to withstand the soil of casual usage in motor car or train. I do not recommend a white suit for September; nor a summer chiffon unless of dark color with an accompanying wrap which makes an attractive ensemble. A featherweight dark woolen dress with jacket or redingote, or a two-piece tailored suit with silk or cotton blouse is preferable. For accessories—handbag, gloves, close-fitting hat and shoes that are comfortable and becoming.

For an early morning wedding in a Catholic Church, men may wear sack suits or flannels. But most well dressed men in temperate or northern climes have abandoned white flannels, along with straw hats, by September 1, so business suits are recommended here. Whoever gives you away should dress as does the bridegroom and best man—i. e., in business suit

If you wish to be "given away," better insist on your father's coming. Of course, if you are a bona fide widow, your husband having died; and if your brother-in-law is—and is known to be—as close to you as a blood brother, he might serve in this instance in a brother's or father's stead. But if you are a divorcee, as seems to be the case, it would be bad form to bring your former's husband's family into the foreground at the wedding.

Ordinarily, for church weddings, the bridegroom and best man emerge from the vestry, in the wake of the officiating clergyman, just prior to the time the bridal procession starts up the aisle. They take a stand at the head of the aisle, near the altar, to await the bride's coming. But the ritual of a Catholic marriage differing somewhat from those of other churches, I think the details of your approach to the altar should be worked out with the pastor. You need feel no embarrassment in soliciting such advice.

Supposing your marriage should be solemnized in the presence of a congregation of parisioners who habitually attend services at that hour, you might be expected to slip quietly into your places in front pews at a designated hour. But if the congregation is largely composed of invited guests, the regulation procedure might be followed; with your maid of honor preceding you up the aisle, you following about ten paces behind on the arm of your father or his representative. But on this your pastor can best advise you.

Frankly, your idea of an evening reception following an early morning wedding doesn't quite make sense. If you cannot arrange an adequately attended reception or breakfast immediately following the ceremony, I think it would be best to drop the whole thing. However, if you insist on the evening reception, a simple menu including wedding cake, sandwiches and punch, fruit juices or ginger ale is preferable to such picnic food as potato chips and pickles. For breakfast, you might serve such simple, substantial fare as orange juice, scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, coffee and even griddle cakes.

For gifts: a bracelet, clip, brooch, compact or other such gadget for your attendant, and a duplicate remembrance for the organist, if she is a family friend. If she isn't, pay her in cash for her services. The Post's food editor can supply the punch recipe requested.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

Hollywood, July 19

MANY are the gabfests over "the most beautiful woman in the movies," or "the prettiest legs"—but it seems to me there is little argument against the thesis that Bette Davis is the finest young actress now posturing before the camera. And since she is also a swell girl, and one Hall and I have known for some time, it was a multiple pleasure to visit the Warner set where the small New England blonde was making final scenes for "The Lady and the Knight."

This is the old love story of Queen Elizabeth and Essex. Errol Flynn, the latter, was washed up and probably out fishing, but Bette was cleaning up the last scenes, with Mike Curtiz directing and a lot of us visitors cluttering up the background. And there was Bette, at the fag end of nearly three months of heavy work—weighted down with countless pounds of heavily brocaded costume and flashy jewelry of the queenly sort. A massive red wig covered her pate, and her forehead had been shaved to give her the traditional Elizabeth hairline.

Water color stains often can be removed from clothing or covers by rubbing them with glycerine, then wash them five minutes later in warm water and mild soap suds.

Clothes that are not rinsed thoroughly have a dingy appearance. Rinsing is as important as washing itself. You should put clothes through three rinse waters.

Mrs. Brown Fetes 8 Women At a Midsummer Luncheon

Party Is Delightfully Informal, With Numbers Showing Places to Guests; Miss King Gives Miss Jeschke Shower

By Hope Ridings Miller,

The Post Society Editor

"IT'S NOT A PARTY," insisted Mrs. Francis Cabell Brown when she gathered in a group of her friends for luncheon yesterday at Pierre's. But I maintain that any time you can get eight women at one table in midsummer Washington, it's an accomplishment of gala proportions—to say the least.

Truth is, however, there were a number of luncheon get-togethers at Pierre's yesterday. One—which certainly was a party any way you look at it—was the fete arranged in honor of bride-elect Margaret Jeschke by Miss Joan King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Walter King.

Other lunching ladies in threesomes and twosomes were numerous. Over across the room from Mrs. Brown's party there was a stunning person who, if I can trust my eyes, was Kitty Carlisle with some young man nobody seemed to know.

But back to the Brown party. Delightfully informal from first to last, it got off to that kind of beginning because of the seating arrangement. Instead of the time-worn custom of searching for your name on a place-card, you looked for a number to match the one presented to you at the door. Thus, protocol was out-the-window—for convenience and for a change.

The miniature orange tree centering the table was most appropriate, for at least half a dozen persons in the company were either natives of California or had spent much time there. The hostess herself, who hails from San Francisco, will leave August 1 for a month's vacation in the "Golden State," and several others will be going in the same direction in the next few weeks.

Mrs. Ernest Lundeen said that she and her husband and their two children hope to visit the Golden Gate Exposition some time before the summer is over; but shortly after Congress adjourns, they will go straight to their home in Minnesota. Representative and Mrs. Lea will leave for their California home as soon as the session is over.

Vacations Hinge on Closing of Congress

Several vacation trips mentioned by guests yesterday hinge on the closing of Congress. Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson and her husband, the president of the Export-Import Bank, will sail for Paris August 9—if Capitol Hill has shut down by then. Mrs. Kenneth Romney and her husband, the sergeant of arms of the House, hope to go to Mexico City for a vacation, but their departure also depends on the time of adjournment.

A couple of weeks at Rehoboth Beach next month comprises Mrs. Harold G. Bowen's vacation plans, while Mrs. Preston Delano hopes to accompany her husband to Seattle the latter part of September (he'll be going out then to the bankers' convention). He will return East directly, but she plans to come by the Southern route, stopping over for a visit in New Orleans.

Meanwhile, as vacation plans made up most of the table talk at Mrs. Brown's luncheon, a company of 16 guests were making merry at Miss King's party. The long table in the private dining room was adorned with gladioli, gaillardias and baby's breath from the garden of the King estate on the Palisades of the Potomac.

Bride-Elect Is Showered With Gifts

A knickknack shower was the order of the program, and the bride-elect received a number of unusual gifts. The guest list was made up of attendants selected for the wedding, which will take place August 2, and several other young ladies who were debutantes the past season when both Miss King and Miss Jeschke made their bows to society.

The company included Miss Barbara Henning, Miss Nancy Hoskinson, Miss Ellen Lee Snodgrass, Miss Joan Boye, Miss Betty Carroll Maltby, Miss Roberta Quirk, Miss Julie Cahill, Miss Betty Tiernan, Miss Betty Fischer, Miss Betty Sabine, Miss Jean Harris, Miss Betty Whitaker, of Baltimore, and the Misses Mary and Margaret Boyden, of Glen Dale, Md.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg "would like to go to Europe on vacation" and might drop by Danzig if they do; but as yet no traveling plans have been completed, Mrs. Vandenberg said yesterday. It all depends on when, and if, Congress adjourns . . . This week end, they hope to go down to visit Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kudner on Maryland's Eastern Shore . . . Tonight they will have as dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. C. L. de Vault, who are spending a brief time in Washington en route to Maine. Mr. de Vault, who is retiring from consular service, has been stationed in Mexico City . . . Mrs. Thomas F. Casey, of the Women's Participation Committee, New York World's Fair, will arrive in Washington Saturday and will be at the Mayflower Hotel for a few days . . . She will entertain a few members of the Washington committe at luncheon on Monday, and will endeavor to find out while here something about local reactions to "certain phases" of the big show out at Whalen's Acres . . . Any suggestions you want passed on to her? . . . If so, let me know.

Harlan Stones Blackfeet Now

Spending the summer touring the West, Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone have recently been in Glacier National Park. While there Mrs. Stone, took up her palette and brush, which had been idle for only a short time, and managed to make about 20 sketches of the magnificent scenery.

The Stones received the distinction of being received into the Blackfeet Indian tribe while on their visit to the park. The Justice was received by Chief Night-Shoots, who presented him with an elkhide certificate of membership written in pictographs. Justice Stone was christened Pitaochtan, which in English is Eagle-Shield. Mrs. Stone also was received into the tribe, Chief Wades-in Water officiating, and christening her Pitaki which, when translated in English, means Eagle-Woman.

An interpreter was needed for the ceremony for neither of the chiefs can speak English, so Chief Bull was called in to act as interpreter.

Mrs. Helen Morgan Hamilton Woods, of New York, who has bought the historic Georgetown residence at 3014 N street northwest, where Robert Todd Lincoln spent the last nine years of his life, announced yesterday she and her family will make the place their permanent home, beginning in August.

In the family are Mrs. Woods, granddaughter of the elder J. P. Morgan; Arthur Woods, her husband, who was police commissioner in New York during the World War, and four children.

Yesterday Mrs. Woods said she intended renting a remodeled former coachhouse on the grounds. She thought the historical importance of the 40-room mansion "exaggerated."

"It is an interesting old place, but it is far from being one of the architectural gems of the Georgetown section in Washington," she commented. "We have no intention of showing it. The gardens, however, are interesting, and, of course, in the spring all the fine gardens in Georgetown are on show."

Mrs. Woods explained the purchase by saying she "liked it in Washington after living here last winter."

Veteran Suffragettes Speak Here At Women's Independence Fete

Celebration of 91st Anniversary Held on Capitol Hill; Mrs. Wiley, Who Was Jailed For White House Picketing in 1917, Talks

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Veterans of the struggle for equal suffrage were among those present last night at the first celebration of Women's Independence Day, which was held at Alva Belmont House, on Capitol Hill, headquarters of the National Woman's Party.

The observance which was duplicated in other cities of the country, was inaugurated by the Woman's Party on the ninety-first anniversary of the first women's rights convention, held in Seneca Falls, N. Y., July 19, 1848. It was called by Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, pioneers for equality. The declaration of sentiments, adopted at that meeting and now known as the "Declaration of Independence of American Women," was read at last night's meeting by Mrs. Hazel Nyman. It demanded equal rights in franchise, in education, industry, the professions, in political office, in marriage, in personal freedom, control of property, making of contracts and in the guardianship of children.

Wears Prison Pin of Pickets

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, vice chairman of the Women's Party and one of those who went to jail for picketing the White House in 1917, told the story of the Seneca Falls convention and recounted the history of the women's rights movement, which had its beginning in that gathering. She recalled the inscription on the banner she carried as a White House picket, "Mr. Wilson, How Long Must Women Wait for Justice?" She wore the little pin, designed as a prison gate, which is the emblem of the group of intrepid women who went to jail during the suffrage campaign in Washington.

Among other "prisoners" who are still residents of the Capital are Helena Hill Weed and her sister, Elsie Hill; Doris Stevens, Gertrude Crocker, Catherine Fisher and Mabel Vernon, who is now director of the People's Mandate Committee.

Mrs. Wiley and others arrested with her spent two weeks behind the bars while the newspapers ran daily accounts of the situation. The women paraded before the White House for 11 months in 1917, and, in 1919, President Wilson called the special session of Congress at which the woman suffrage amendment was passed.

"Many girls today are unaware of the battle which won them the right to vote," said Mrs. Wiley. "Some do not know who Susan B. Anthony was. It is important they should realize at what price the rights women have today were won, and how they need to be preserved. The Equal Rights Amendment will complete the work so valiantly inaugurated 91 years ago."

Amendment Launched By Alice Paul

This amendment was launched by Alice Paul in 1923 at the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Seneca Falls convention and was introduced in the Senate by Charles Curtis, of Kansas, later Vice President, and in the House by Dan Anthony, of Kansas, who was a nephew of Susan B. Anthony.

Helen McGerr, who presided last night, explained the meaning of the first organized effort of women to win political, civil, economic and social emancipation of women, climaxing her remarks with the declaration that women must now secure for themselves the same guarantees of liberty and inalienable human rights already guaranteed men in the Constitution of the United States.

A poem entitled "The Pioneers," written by Edna St. Vincent Millay, a founder of the party, was read by Maud Howell Smith.

Focusing the attention of the audience on the current trends of the movement, Mrs. Dorothy Sanford Wilson, of Portland, Oreg., president of the League of Professional Women, Inc., outlined the growth of the campaign of women for a full share in democracy, closing with "we wan' everyone, man or woman, married or single, to have the same break."

Senate Votes Insurance for Cotton Crop

Refuses, However, To Extend Program To Fruit, Vegetables

By the Associated Press

The Senate voted yesterday to extend the Government's crop insurance program to cotton after rejecting that it also include tobacco, fruit, vegetables and other farm commodities.

(Under the program, applied for the first time to wheat last year, growers who pay premiums in crops or cash, will be compensated, in event of losses, in cotton or its cash equivalent.

At the same time the chamber acceded to a request by Senator Danaher (Democrat), Connecticut, and wrote into the legislation an order to the Department of Agriculture to work out a program of tobacco insurance, if possible

Three Senators Opposed

Senators Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, Russell (Democrat), Georgia and Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington, were among those who argued against the inclusion of any new crops in the program at this time, contending insufficient experience made a successful plan impossible.

They pledged support for such action later, however, when the Department of Agriculture had had opportunity to work out probable risk factors.

Republican leader McNary, of Oregon, supported Danaher in his argument for inclusion of tobacco at once but the Senate rejected such an amendment by a voice vote.

Pepper Urges General Plan

Senator Pepper (Democrat), Florida, urged inclusion of fruits and vegetables, and said he favored a general program for all major commodities.

Proponents said the cotton insurance would be available for 2,000,000 cotton growers.

In the first year, they said, 170,000 wheat farmers insured production of 70,000,000 bushels.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, said he would not contest the proposal although he thought it was an "imprudent and hazardous thing to do" on the basis of a single year's experience obtained with insurance for wheat.

Senator King (Democrat), Utah, protested against the legislation, declaring he had been informed that administration of wheat insurance had cost the Government approximately $5,000,000 in the past year.

Louisianans Demand Purge Of State Politics

New Orleans, July 19 (U.P.).—The greatest wave of public indignation since reconstruction swept Louisiana tonight, and one organization, "The Voluntary Committee of Citizens of Louisiana," demanded of Gov. Earl K. Long a sweeping investigation of "all city, parish and State departments of government, and of all bureaus, boards and departments of the State."

Other meetings had been held in Baton Rouge. Clubs throughout the State demand a purge of politics.

Assistant United States Attorney General Rogge said indictment of prominent figures on charges of using the mails in a $75,000 hotel swindle was "only the beginning."

In Baton Rouge former Gov. Richard W. Leche was called again before the East Baton Rouge Parish grand jury.

Milton Esberg, West Coast Art Patron, Expires

San Francisco, July 19 (A.P.).—Milton Esberg, 64, widely known San Francisco business man and art patron, died unexpectedly today from heart disease.

Mr. Esberg, was a graduate of the University of California, a vice president of the General Cigar Company, and a director of several West Coast coporations.

During the war he was chairman of the purchasing board of the Quartermaster Corps, San Francisco division, and a member of the board of contract review for the Q. M. C.

Mr. Esberg was a director of the Opera Association, the Musical Association, and the Conservatory of Music at San Francisco.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, Milton Henry, and Ernest L. Esberg.

Post Picture May Help Identify Man Taken Out of Potomac

Score View Body In Vain; Murder Victim, Says Sheriff

A week ago yesterday the body of an elderly man was found floating on the Maryland side of the Potomac River a short distance upstream from Marshall Hall.

The body has been viewed by perhaps a score of persons, many of whom suspected the unidentified river victim might be a missing relative.

No one was able to say he ever had seen the man before. Unless someone appears today and makes positive identification, the undertaking firm of Huntt and Ryon, at Waldorf, Md., will bury the body.

Description Given

The description of the man, whom the sheriff of Charles County, Md., contends was murdered before being thrown in the river, is as follows:

He is 5 feet 8 inches tall.
He weighs 155 pounds.
His hair is gray and thin.
He has a boad face.
There is evidence of a mastoid operation behind his left ear.
His hands are soft, it does not appear that he was accustomed to manual work.
No corns were on his feet.

Necktie Blue-Checked

He wore a blue-checked necktie and a new shirt of bluish gray with a slight bluish stripe.

Both top pockets of his vest were pinned with safety pins.

He carried two white-handled pen knives; three stub pencils; a house key. He had an old-fashioned pocketbook, with some small change in one side and two dollar bills in the other.

Baltimore Eyeglasses

He carried a Westclox watch, running when the body was removed from the river.

He had an eyeglass case, labeled by a Baltimore optometrist. His socks were of good quality. Two hats were found near the body. A straw hat, marked "Mallory" on the sweatband, was taken from the river. A gray felt hat, marked "Barton" on the sweatband, was found on the river bank adjacent the body.

Today will be the last opportunity for anyone missing relatives to view the body, unless such positive claim to identification is advanced later that disinterment is ordered.

The sheriff said yesterday that he had no idea who the man is. Each clew had led him against a dead end.

West Throngs Rally on Moral Re-armament

Must Be World-Wide, Roosevelt Tells Crowd In Hollywood Bowl

By the Associated Press

Hollywood, July 19.—A thousand men and women from 25 countries thronged to the Hollywood Bowl tonight with thousands of Californians to participate in a "call to the nations for moral rearmament."

Dr. Frank Buchman, who initiated the movement a little more than a year ago in London, presided. He predicted "Hollywood can be the sounding-board to the nations for moral rearmament."

Speakers included H. W. (Bunny) Austin, England's No. 1 tennis player; George Muff, Labor member of the British House of Commons; Bill Rowell, representative of England's 420,000 unemployed at the British Trades Union Congress in 1936, and H. W. Twitchell, of New York, Dr. Buchman's associate.

Messages were received from President Roosevelt, former President Herbert Hoover and Henry Ford.

"The underlying strength of the world must consist in the moral fiber of her citizens," said the President's message. "A program of moral re-armament for the world cannot fail, therefore, to lessen the danger of armed conflict. Such moral re-armament, to be most highly effective, must receive support on a world-wide basis."

Hoover's message said:

"The world has for years been living in an atmosphere of antagonism. International conflict, economic conflict, labor conflict and philosophical conflict . . .

"There are areas of real conflict in all these fields, but there are also far larger areas of possible cooperation. It is the duty of men to find and work in these areas where common action can take form."

From behind the white shell of the bowl, four giant searchlights shot vertical beams into the sky, symbolizing the four standards of moral re-armament—honesty, unselfishness, purity and love. Inside the shell, to the rear of the speakers, four 20-foot pylons supported the insignia of the movement.

Commons Bill Ends Rights of Bomb Suspects

Police Could Treat Irish Terrorists as Aliens Under Measure

Special Cable to The Post.

London, July 19.—The British government took summary action today to end the terroristic acts of the so-called Irish Republican Army.

Under a bill introduced in the House of Commons today, the Home Office is armed with unusual emergency powers to deal even with persons only suspected of contemplating terrorism. Thus far, the I. R. A. terrorists have confined themselves largely to bombings in London and the provinces.

The special legislation which would remain in effect for two years is considered primarily as a national defense measure. The perennial Irish issue, it is remembered, absorbed attention in Great Britain in the early days of July 1914, on the eve of the outbreak of the World War.

The bill provides for the first time in history a legal basis for restrictions on the rights of a British subject to enter this country. Nominally British subjects, Irishmen who are suspected of implication in I. R. A. activities, may be barred from landing here under certain specified circumstances.

The measure also equips the police with emergency powers which limit the elementary English rights of freedom from arrest and search without warrants. Severe penalties are provided.

The I. R. A. has been declared illegal in Eire. The bill introduced today centers on other means of meeting the menace, since the government considers that to declare illegal an organization which works under cover would accomplish nothing.

Under the bill, suspects, even though British subjects, are to be treated much as aliens might be treated under similar circumstances.

D. C. Heads See Deficit Of $59,000

Estimate Follows Congress' Failure To Provide Funds to Execute Tax Law

The District Commissioners yesterday sent to the Budget Bureau a deficiency estimate of $59,000 for the hiring of employes to handle the new local income tax law and to clean up work on the old business privilege tax.

Congress, in enacting the new law, made no provision for additional personnel. The President's signing of the income tax bill was delayed a day in order that the House and Senate might correct clerical errors through adoption of a joint resolution.

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, said that $25,160 of the requested deficiency appropriation would employ 29 persons beginning January 1, and $27,160 would be used to hire 13 members of the old staff of 27 that handled the business privilege tax.

Randolph Calls Meeting

Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee announced that an attempt would be made tomorrow to rescue bills to amend the District lunacy proceedings act, to authorize the extension of parking meters, and other more or less uncontroversial legislation.

Randolph called a special meeting of the committee in an effort to put on the House calendar a variety of measures tied up by the action of Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, in forcing adjournment of the committee on Monday.

The House District Committee chairman said he would confer with Chairman King of the Senate District Committee regarding the prospects of the legislation to be considered in the Senate.

"There's no use reporting out bills which haven't any chance of getting through the Senate this session," he said.

Meeting May Be Last

While the chairman cannot prevent members from calling up bills, the effect of Randolph's statement would discourage further consideration of the Schulte milk bill.

With adjournment in prospect within two or three weeks, there probably will be only one more District day, and that will be on Monday. Tomorrow's meetings of the committee consequently may be the last this year.

A petition requesting Congress appropriate funds in the third deficiency supply bill to continue the operation of the Bowen nursery school in southwest Washington was presented to Chairman Taylor, of the House Appropriations Committee, by a delegation of 18 mothers.

The nursery school was made inoperative by the deletion from the 1940 District supply bill of an authorization to use WPA funds for any nursery schools.

Calls for Estimates

With the ink scarcely dry on the 1940 District supply bill, Maj. Donovan yesterday called for budget estimates for 1941 with the warning that department heads exercise "strict economy." He requested the budget estimates by August 12.

Based on the anticipated revenue for the fiscal year of 1940, which falls short of the revenue this year by some $368,000, it is expected the budget estimates from the various department heads will be less than last year's by a similar figure.

The department heads last year requested a total of $64,449,544 to operate their departments. The Commissioners pared this figure to $48,468,937 and the Budget Bureau reduced the Commissioners' estimate to $47,677,780. Congress approved a total of $48,002,347.

In making a detailed account of all necessary expenses and obligations, department heads were instructed, as usual, to place a statement of justification for each item.

Dredgeline Death Probed by Police; Victim Identified

Police last night were investigating the death of Leo Levesque, 33, whose dismembered body was found at the new Gravelly Point Airport project, where it had been thrown after passing through a dredging pipe line.

Positive identification was made yesterday by a cook aboard the dredge. He said Levesque was employed on the dredge as a dishwasher and that he disappeared Monday night.

Detective Sergts. William J. Liverman and Fred Rawlinson said the man was last seen walking along the mile-long pipe line toward shore. He failed to show up for work Tuesday and, the detective said, they believed he fell from the catwalk and was drowned.

Charged After Crash

William M. Porter, 35, of 1530 Thirty-fourth street northwest, was charged with reckless driving yesterday after his auto crashed into a taxi in 1100 block of Fifteenth street and injured two cab passengers.

Catherine Lovell, 25, of 2916 M street northwest, and Preston Lovell, 30, of 2423 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, were treated at Casualty Hospital for contusions.

Tommy and Tommy, Cats That Match; One Was Missing, That's the Catch

1. HARRY EPSTEIN, 4012 Illinois avenue northwest, carpenter, and owner of two cats born in the District Building basement, named them both Tommy to make matters simple—for you see, they matched. At bedtime Tuesday, one Tommy was missing. Then, last night . . .

2. TWO FRIENDS of Mr. Epstein—Edward Larry (left) and Fred Harrington, both painters for the District—found where Tommy was. A 300-foot steel beam, 4 inches square, runs from the garage of Mr. Epstein's house to the one at 4010. Tommy had entered the open mouth of the beam, and in going through, got caught in the center. Mr. Epstein then called . . .

3. THE RESCUE SQUAD who, with sledge hammer, chisel, crowbar and torch, started to get Tommy back and lighten the Epsteins' heavy hearts. While Privates Powell (right) and Feirtag made an opening in the mouth of the beam on Mr. Epstein's side . . .

4. NEIGHBORHOOD CHILDREN watched with open mouth for a sign of Tommy. They cried with joy when . . .

5. TOMMY PEEPED OUT, frightened to death, but with eight more times to go. After one hour and 15 minutes' work by the rescue squad, Lieut. Price liberated Tommy. So, at bedtime last night, the Epsteins felt right; Tommy and Tommy, they matched!

Baptists From 8 Lands Visit Capital

Recall Old Times At Banquet; London Leader Makes Plea For Free Worship

Baptist emissaries from eight foreign countries last night chatted with American brethren over banquet tables here, and heard Dr. T. G. Dunning, of London, leader of youth work of the Baptist World Alliance, insist that Baptists would never consent to become subordinate to the state.

Delivered at First Baptist Church, local mother church of the denomination, Dr. Dunning's address, in which he pleaded for the preservation of religious liberty, climaxed a busy day for the visitors, who are stopping here en route to the Baptist World Alliance conclave in Atlanta. They were received by Secretary of State Hull earlier in the day.

Coming from Spain, England, Wales, Germany, Poland, Finland, Scotland and Burma, the delegates, who were introduced to Hull by Representative Johnson, of Oklahoma, will entrain early this morning for the South. Another English delegation of ten men and women, who arrived here yesterday, paid an unexpected visit to the banquet.

Old Times Recalled

Among that group were Cecil Wilkins and the Rev. E. F. Sutton, whom Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, executive secretary of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention, recalled as having joined with him in attending the organization meeting of the Baptist World Alliance 35 years ago in London. Dr. Weaver was a Baltimore pastor at that time.

Giving another feeling of kinship to the gathering, it was revealed that both grandparents of Howard Rees, secertary of the Baptist Student Union, and who also spoke, were born in the town of Abedare, Wales, also the native town of the Rev. R. M. Jones, who gave greetings on behalf of the Welsh group.

Furthermore, seated by the Rev. Alva L. Smith, assistant pastor of the National Baptist Memorial Church, was the Rev. Samuel Vila, of Spain, who is being succeeded in refugee pastoral work in France by the Rev. Antonio Sanchez, once a classmate of Mr. Smith at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Germany Discussed

It also was recalled by Dr. Weaver that Chief Justice Hughes, a member of the local Calvary Baptist Church, was the son of a Baptist minister who came to America from Wales.

N. D. Kassel, of Berlin, secretary to the secretary of the Baptist Student Union of Germany, also spoke and insisted that the Baptists in that land were not being hampered from preaching the true gospel.

Speakers included Miss H. B. McFadzean, Scotland; the Rev. Z. Carles, Spain; the Rev. Hugo Luck, Poland; the Rev. Samuel Vita, Spain; Miss Eleanor Santay, Burma; the Rev. Charles B. Austin, pastor of West Washington Baptist Church, and president of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention; Dr. John R. Briggs, pastor of Fifth Baptist Church, and others.

Moral Sociology Urged at C. U. By Dr. Cooper

Less technical theology and more emphasis on the moral implications of social studies was urged last night by the Rev. Dr. John M. Cooper, S.T.D., professor of anthropology at Catholic University. He spoke in the fifth of the Jubilee Lectures on Education sponsored by the summer session in honor of the Golden Jubilee Year of Catholic University.

"Without relaxing our emphasis on the supernatural power of prayer and the mass, we must give more importance to the study of psychology and other social studies," said Dr. Cooper. He pointed out that this can best be achieved "by teachers trained in the technique of moral education."

Mystery Wreck Found Off Coast By Survey Ship

By the Associated Press

Government scientists discovered a mystery ship yesterday at the bottom of ocean 8 miles off Brigantine Inlet on the New Jersey coast.

The vessel's location did not fit into any recent unsolved mystery of the sea. It was discovered by the crew of the Oceanographer, a survey ship of the Coast and Geodetic Survey dragging for undersea menaces.

The wreck was found in about 60 feet of water. The highest part was about 35 feet below the surface. Experts said the wreck might endanger large ships and would have to be broken up.

Illuminating Gas Kills D. C. Woman

Mrs. Carter Ogg Welch, 38, was found dead from the effects of illuminating gas yesterday in her apartment, 2032 Belmont road northwest. One jet in the oven was open, but unlighted, according to Thelma Hess, resident manager, who went to the apartment with the janitor, Frank Minor, to investigate the odor of gas. Assistant Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg certified the death as a suicide.

Mrs. Welsh had been despondent over ill health. Her husband, John B. Welch, an accountant for the Southern Railway System, is in Atlanta.

Watergate Symphony Applauded So Much Intermission Has to Be Dispensed With Post Staff Photos.

By John Chabot Smith.

Efrem Kurtz, the exigencies of radio broadcasting, and Robert Crawford put the Watergate audience to a severe musical test last night which they passed with flying colors.

After a long program of unfamilar msuic, played without intermission, the 6,500 listeners denied the National Symphony Orchestra their rest and clamored for more.

Most warmly received among the many selections never or seldom heard before by a Washington audience was a compositiop by Crawford himself, "Lost in Your Arms," which the visiting barytone sung for the first time last night. The applause that followed the love ballad seemed to echo from the low-lying clouds, and as often as those in front let it die down, it was revived with new force by the ardent music-lover in the free seats at the back.

Too Much Applause

Too much applause and too many late-comers looking for their seats between numbers so delayed the first half of the program that the intermission had to be omitted. Crawford had hardly taken his third bow after singing "Caliban in the Coal Mines" when it was announced that the broadcast portion of the program must begin at once.

In "Caliban," as in much of the modern music that dominated last night's program, a deeply emotional foundation was given a highly intellectual, intricate treatment that demanded and received every atom of concentration on the part of the audience. The music, by Lewis Raymond, gave vivid emphasis to the anguished, protesting prayer contained in Louis Untermeyer's poem.

The dramatic power of Crawford's rendition was increased by an absence of theatrical strivings, either in voice or gesture. The same restraint marked his singing of his first selection, the popular "Toreador Song," from "Carmen," by Bizet, which gave the audience the refreshing taste of familiarity after the opening number, Berlioz's "Symphonie Fantastique."

Rendition Is Vigorous

His commanding baton whipping over the player's heads, Kurtz had brought from the orchestra a vigorous description of each of Berlioz's varying moods.

One unifying theme wound through the five movements, from the virtuous tones of the violin passages in the first, with an undertone of dark passions on the cellos suggestive of what is to come, through an ever more devilish and sadistic development to the mocking, insolent, almost lewd climax of the final "Witches' Sabbath" movement.

Cries of "bravo," and "magnificent" were heard above the applause of the audience as Kurtz resolved the hectic last movement on to the final peaceful chord, surprising after the almost cynical medley of thundering, grumbling, jeering, gloating, snickering variations on the melody batted from one section of the orchestra to another during the last climactic ten minutes.

A more restful offering opened the broadcast portion of the program, the Canzonetta for Strings, Opus 62a, of Sibelius. A rather sad, poignant yet sturdy melody traveled peacefully through violins, violas, and cellos, against a steady accompaniment of repeated chords.

Two selections by Crawford followed, the intensely dramatic soliloquy from "Caponsacchi," by Richard Hageman, and the "Buzzard Song," from George Gershwin's opera, "Peggy and Bess." Crawford contrived to put a meditative quality in the rather uncertain triumph of Porgy's boastfulness.

Then came two dainty pieces by Schubert, the allegro and minuet from his Symphony No. 3, in D major. After the fragility of this symphony, Kurtz plunged into the boisterous "Flying Dutchman" overture, bringing the program to a close with the familiar mighty colors of Wagner.

The roaring applause brought the conductor back on the stage again and again, till he silenced the clamor with the march from the exotic "Caucasian Suite," by Ipolitoff Ivanoff, and finally played Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Bumble Bee" twice, the second time at a bewildering rapid pace containing a definite air of finality.

Detective Looking For Impersonator, Vanished Property

Detective Sergt. Frank O. Brass is looking for some one who once gloried in the same name and title, and when he finds him, said Brass yesterday, "somebody's going to jail."

The search started as a result of a report early yesterday from John Coe, of 1218 Jefferson street northwest, that he had been robbed of an automobile, a suit, a watch, and money.

Late Tuesday night, according to Coe, a friend called on him in the company of another man whom he introduced as "Detective Sergt. Frank O. Brass." They asked for Coe's assistance in looking for some narcotic suspects, and borrowed the car, the suit, the watch and the money. Neither the men nor their loot have been seen since.

Brass was informed yesterday by Sergt. H. V. Murray, of the Sixth Precinct.

Zone Board Clears Way For ADA Job

Anacostia Slum Clearance Plans Are Approved to Permit Project

The Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday approved a zoning request by the Alley Dwelling Authority, clearing the way for a $1,000,000 slum-elimination project in Anacostia. The board approved 13 other zoning variances, withheld action on five, and denied one application.

The clearance project could not proceed without the consent of the adjustment board on two minor changes. The Dwelling Authority plans 24 multifamily buildings at East Capitol street and Ridge road southeast.

K. Koster, for permission to erect a one-story addition at 1929 Lawrence street northeast.

L. E. F. Prince, to permit the erection of a dwelling at 1810 Corcoran street northwest.

Ida M. Lytle, permission to continue temporary use of an office incidental to the sale of residential property in the Summit Park subdivision, at Suitland road and Alabama avenue southeast.

The single appeal denied by the board was from James S. Fraser, who requested permission to use the building at the rear of 616 S street northwest for storing and selling ice, wood and coal.

Grant Picks Uranus as Best Bet in 1940

That astrologically exhausted planet Uranus is coming back in the next government administration to do great things for individual freedom, Astrologer Ernest A. Grant declared last night. President of the American Federation of Scientific Astrologers and of the Washington Astrological Association, Grant spoke at a meeting of the Mississippi Young Democrats of the District in the Hotel Raleigh.

Defining astrology as "the study of man's place in the cosmic scheme of things," Grant said that Uranus, the planet of machinery, Jupiter of influence in expression, and Saturn in land, would conjoin to be of great influence on American life. He emphasized that the planet Uranus had been closely bound up with the history of the United States, according to astrology.

Employing astrological charts, Grant said Uranus moves around the sun in cycles of from 84 to 89 years and that it has influenced "the American destiny" with the founding of Jamestown in 1607, the Salem witchcraft trials in the 1690's, the 1776 Declaration of Independence and the Civil War.

While he would not define the nature of the events forecast for 1940, he did say each event of the Uranus cycle "has been marked by a step forward in the growth of individual freedom."

Grant discussed what astrology calls the "great mutation chart"—another cycle of Jupiter and Saturn conjoining—in which a President of the United States has died in office each time the planets have come together. Harrison, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Harding all died near the peak of the 20-year Jupiter-Saturn cycle, he said. At the same time he refused to prophesy the death of the next President.

POVICH

Ordinarily, the manager of the St. Louis Browns, perennial doormats of the American League, would not be the person to be envied by any of his fellow managers. But three American League managers are probably regarding Fred Haney as a lucky guy. He, at least, has a job for 1940.

That is more than Bucky Harris, Oscar Vitt and Del Baker can say for themselves. Unlike Haney, who was given a new contract the other day which covers next season, the managers of the Nats, the Indians and the Tigers, have no such assurance that they will be retained, and they are in the unenviable positions of being men whose contracts expire this season at a time when their ball clubs are not doing very well.

The owners of the Browns, incidentally, deserve some sort of orchids for their announcement that Haney's contract would be renewed. It was a magnanimous gesture toward a fellow who was succeeding only in running a last place ball club deeper into last place. But Haney probably saved his own job last week when he cracked down on ball players he thought were loafing, slapping stiff fines on three of them.

Typical of Some Big League Clubs

If Haney's ball players were loafing as he claimed, it was typical of certain big leaguers. Haney was a freshman manager in the big leagues, fresh from Toledo, and apparently on the spot with the ownership in view of the Browns' low standing in the league. Most any sort of a player revolt against him might succeed, the recalcitrants probably reasoned. But when Haney cracked down, he not only preserved his self-respect but obviously made a hit with his bosses who likes that sort of a guy, there will be no trifling with a manager who will be the players' boss not only during the remainder of this season, but all of next.

At Detroit, at Cleveland and in Washington, the club owners have not been moved to make any similar gesture of confidence in their current managers. And in the absence of any such announcements their jobs must necessarily be in the balance, in as much as their contracts will expire with the close of the current season.

With Haney already signed for 1940, five American League managers are certain of big league employment next year. Connie Mack's job as manager of the A's is safe because he happens to be president of the club. Joe McCarthy, with his three straight pennant and World Series triumphs, and a seven-game lead this year, is a fixture with the Yankees.

Saved Job by Mid-Season Spurt

Joe Cronin, whose contract was to expire this season, saved his job by his terrific midseason spurt with the Red Sox. Jimmy Dykes will be the White Sox manager as long as he likes, because it was the expressed will of Lou Comiskey, whose death the other day paved the way for Dykes to move into the front office of the White Sox as well as managing the team at Cleveland. Alva Bradley's silence about his managerial plans for 1940 augur ill for Oscar Vitt. When Vitt signed to manage the Indians, leaving his sinecure as manager of the pennant winning Newark club, he demanded and received a two-year contract from the Cleveland boss. Under Vitt last season the Indians were a rank disappointment after leading the league until late June, folding miserably in important series with the Yankees.

This year, Vitt's team again was supposed to be a pennant contender, but it has not been. The trade he engineered with the Red Sox which brought him Ben Chapman has not improved his standing with Bradley. The Cleveland pitching staff which was supposed to be the best in the majors, has been a flop. Up in Toronto, a dark complexioned fellow named Tony Lazzeri is lurking in Vitt's shadow. It won't surprise Cleveland folks if Lazzeri is boss when the Indians head South next winter.

Nothing Secure About Bucky's Job

At Detroit, wealthy Walter O. Briggs, who showed last season that he can fire managers abruptly when he fired Mickey Cochrane, has given no indication that he is plased with the work of Del Baker, Cochrane's successor, Baker may be rueing the day he decided to give up the security and $15,000 salary for a coaching job with the Tigers to step into the management. Briggs probably is not liking the current situation which finds the Tigers a poor fifth in the American League. And it should be remembered also that Baker gave his stamp of approval to the $75,000 purchase of Pitcher Fred Hutchinson, who is now laboring in the minors after flopping in a tryout with the Tigers.

Baker's position would be serene enough and he could finish the season in confidence that he would have a 1940 job, perhaps, if it weren't for the protracted batting slump of Hank Greenberg. Big Hank has been hitting his share of home runs, but he has nevertheless been leaving too many of his mates on base at other times. It's items like that which cause a turnover in managers.

There is nothing secure, either, about Bucky Harris" job for 1940, but he probably can feel more assurance than either Vitt or Baker. The fact that Griffith is making no midseason announcement that Harris will be retained is, in this case, not particularly alarming because Griff never comments on his managerial plans for the following season until the current season closes.

But Harris does have his reasons to feel uneasy. His club has not been close to the first division since the first week of the season. It is, perhaps, the worst club in modern Washington baseball history. And it's no comfort to Harris that Griffith never hesitated to fire a manager. Griff fired Harris once before, and he fired Walter Johnson once upon a time. In Harris favor is the fact that Griffith this year gave him precious little to work with. For that, Harris should be grateful. It will probably save him his job.

Rowe Injured by Hard Drive As Detroit Routs Nats, 11 to 0

Tigers Set Dizzy Pace With 14 Hits; Nats' Listless Fielding, Pitching Helps

Special Dispatch to The Post

Detroit, Mich., July 19.—The 3-hit pitihing of Detroit's Schoolboy Rowe and Archie McKain, plus a 14-hit attack, was too much for the Nats here today, and they snapped back into their losing ways as the Tigers evened the series with an 11-to-0 rout.

Although the Nats made but one error, their listlessness in the field—combined with the generous pitching of Ken Chase and Alex Alexandra—paved the way for six Tiger runs, scored on only three hits in the fifth inning.

The Tigers, however, set too dizzy a pace for Washington. They jumped on Chase for four hits in each of the third and fourth innings. When Alexandra came in to start the fifth, they welcomed him with pleasure and took six more hits before their attack halted in the eighth inning.

Rowe Hurt on Knee

Rowe was painfully injured and forced to leave the game in the fourth inning after Jimmy Vernon's hard drive glanced off the big right-hander's left knee, knocking him down and almost out.

He made a gallant effort, however, retrieved the ball to throw out Vernon at first while crawling. Rowe then rolled over on his back. He appeared to be unconscious. Players of both teams rushed on the field. After first aid was administered, he was able to rise and be escorted from the field.

McKain came in. From here on the Nats might as well have been playing blind man's buff as far as hits were concerned. Southpaw McKain did not allow another hit the remainder of the game. Cecil Travis' infield single back of second in the second inning, and the third inning singles of Angelo Giuliana and Sammy West were all the Nats could do at bat.

Nats Do Load Bases

Except for the third inning, the Nats could not get a man past second base. In some strange fashion they loaded the bases in the third inning, but lost the opportunity to score when Taft Wright's fly to deep left center was taken by Beau Bell.

Rowe walked Buddy Lewis after Chase forced out Giuliani at second and West had moved him up with his single. It was the Nats' only scoring opportunity. Figuratively, they were out to lunch.

But about that fifth inning—the Tigers filled the bases three different times, largely by virtue of Alexandra's four walks. Buddy Myer and George Case accounted for the first filling, however, as they paused

Comiskey's Son, 13, Becomes Youngest Club Owner

Sports | The Washington Post | Sports

16 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1939 X*

Red Sox Lose 2, Drop 9 Games Behind Yanks

Youngster To Inherit Chisox Club

Grabiner to Handle Actual Affairs of Club, It Is Believed; Funeral Saturday

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 19.—A 13-year-old boy, Charles A. Comiskey 2d, will probably become the youngest major league baseball magnate by inheriting the Chicago White Sox from his late father, J. Louis Comiskey, thus leaving sole ownership of the famous team in the family for three generations.

Pending filing of the will, probably next week, the impression prevailed among intimates tonight that the ball club would be left in trust for Charles A. Comiskey until he is of age. A protectorate to guide the club until then, close friends believed, would consist of the widow and Harry Grabiner, vice president and an important official of the club for a quarter of a century.

Grabiner to Handle Affairs

Under that arrangement the actual direction of the club's affairs would be in the hands of Grabiner, who handled the business during Comiskey's frequent periods of ill health.

Grabiner, who started in the White Sox organization as an office boy 36 years ago, is highly experienced in baseball executive duties. As business manager of the team, and vice president, he served under both Comiskeys—"Commy Lou" and his famous father, the first Charles A. Comiskey, the "Old Roman" who organized the White Sox 39 years ago.

At the time of his father's death in 1931, J. Louis Comiskey told the baseball world that the White Sox would never be sold; that the club would remain a family enterprise, win or lose. Upon the death of the "Old Roman," the entire estate, valued at $1,529,707, passed on to J. Louis Comiskey, and it was the general opinion that the latter intended to carry out the wishes of his father and pass the club on to his only son.

Funeral Saturday

The body of Comiskey, who died of a heart ailment and pneumonia in the Wisconsin north woods, Comiskey Camp, was returned to Chicago tonight. In the funeral party were Mrs. Comiskey, their three children, Dorothy, 22; Grace Lou, 18, and Charles A. Comiskey 2d, and Joseph T. Barry, traveling secretary of the Sox.

Funeral services will be held at the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock. He will be buried beside his father and mother in the family vault in Calvary Cemetery, in suburban Evanston. It has not been decided whether to have the body lie in state at the family home or at an undertaking establishment.

Champs Dethroned In Archery Meet

St. Paul, July 19 (AP).—Two defending champions were dethroned and two national records were set here today in the men's division in the National Archery Tournament. Mrs. Belvia Carter, of Seattle, Wash., is the new women's champion, by virtue of a defeat of Jean Tenney, of Clear Spring, Md.

Sonny Johns, defending titlist from Tacoma, Wash., was upset by Freddy Folberth, of Cleveland. Carl Strang, of Dearborn, Mich., set the pace for the men in the national title shoot with a new range record for the 80-yard shoot, with 48 hits for a total of 332 points. Other shooters included E. P. Clarke, of Chevy Chase, Md., with a score of 146-576.

Everybody After Ball as Army Riders 'Tune Up' for Polo

Third Cavalry Trips Blues, 6-1, in Polo

Score Easily Despite Heavy Field, Rest Needed by Ponies

The Third Cavalry polo team bested the War Department Blues yesterday, 6-1, at the Potomac Park field in their last tune-up match before the Inter-Circuit tournament, which opens in Philadelphia Saturday.

The Cavalry four, made up of Capt. James Quill, Capt. T. Q. Donaldson, Capt. L. R. Dewey and Lieut. B. S. Cook, won their match on a field made heavy by recent rains, so that fast plays were wellnigh impossible.

The event was last in a three-game round robin series, which also saw the Sixteenth Field Artillery defeat the War Department, 9-3, and the second Third Cavalry team, made up of Lieut. J. V. Richardson, Lieut. David Wagstaff, Col. George S. Patton and Capt. Paul Harkins, defeat the Artillerymen, 8-3. Harkins, playing at No. 4, is one of Fort Myer's outstanding poloists, but is unable to play in the tournament Saturday because he qualified for the Fort Riley, Kans., team earlier in the season. He will, however, be eligible for the finals in Chicago in August, in the event that the team survives the early matches.

Fort Myer's crack polo ponies, which will be shipped out tomorrow for the tournament, were taken along easily yesterday in anticipation of the stiff week-end ahead of them.

Injury Jinx Still Dogs Giants; Bucs Win, 10-3

W. Brown Joins Mates in Hospital; Substitute Infielder Forced to Pitch; Vaughn Has Perfect Day at Bat

By the Associated Press

New York, July 19.—The New York Giants hit the bottom today when they were forced to use their second string first-baseman, Johnny McCarthy, on the mound.

Hitting a new low for the season, the badly battered Giants bowed for the fifth straight time, 10-3, as the Pittsburgh Pirates not only humbled them but sent another of the players to Polyclinic Hospital.

The newest recruit to the Hospital League is Pitcher Walter Brown, who was struck on the right wrist in the fourth inning by Arky Vaughan's line drive. He joined teammates Harry Danning and Lou Chiozza there in the Giant's ward.

Hospital officials said Brown suffered only a "severe contusion," not a break, and that he would be able to rejoin his teammates tomorrow. Chiozza, according to Dr. C. R. Palmer, the Giants' physician, still is in some pain but his broken leg is healing satisfactorily and he is getting along as well as could be expected.

Danning, who has a leg infection, is expected to be released within the next two or three days.

Neither Bill Lohrman nor Dick Coffman were effective against the Pirates, so Manager Bill Terry had little choice but to send in McCarthy, who used to pitch in semipro ball for a Chicago team. He gave up eight hits in the five innings he toiled.

The Pirates had a field day, making 19 hits with Vaughan having a perfect day, five for five, including a homer, a triple and a double.

Farkas Gets M. A. Though He Forgot Redskins' Signals

By the Associated Press

Andy Farkas—who had great trouble learning the signals of the Redskins professional football team—has written the management he has received a master of arts degree with an all-A rating.

Farkas came to the Redskins from Detroit University, where he was a star halfback. Despite the fact that he kept forgetting the signals he was the team's leading scorer and ground gainer.

After last football season, Farkas went back to Detroit for work on his M. A. In the letter relating his scholastic accomplishments, Andy inclosed his signed contract for 1939.

Lead-Leading Cincinnati Wins 3d Straight Game

By International News Service

New York, July 19.—Trailing by one run going into the ninth inning, the Cincinnati Reds tied the score in their half, then went on to win when they scored two tallies in the tenth to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 2, in a game under the arc lights at Ebbetts Field before a crowd of 27,665 spectators.

Wally Berger, pinch-hitting for Stan Bordagaray, doubled in the ninth to tie the score for the Reds. Then in the overtime period Willard Hershberger singled with the bases full to sew up the contest.

White Sox Beat Boston, 4-1 and 8-0

Bosox' Only Run Comes in 1st Game When Jimmy Foxx Clouts 17th Homer

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 19.—Excellent pitching performances by Jack Knott and Johnny Rigney, backed up by a batting attack that produced 24 hits, gave the Chicago White Sox a sweep of their double-header today with the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 1, and 8 to 0.

The twin defeats dropped the Red Sox nine games behind the idle Yankees.

Rigney, winning his seventh game of the year, held Boston hitless and runless through the first seven innings of the nightcap after Knott had held the Eastern club to eight safeties in the opener. Rigney's shutout was the first by any White Sox pitcher this season.

As his mates were belting three Red Sox hurlers, Rigney pitched masterful ball. He retired 17 men in a row, starting in the second inning and continuing through the seventh, before Joe Cronin broke the spell with a single in the eighth. Joe Vosmik and John Peacock also came through with hits to load the bases, with one out, but Lou Finney flied out and Bobby Doerr grounded to end the inning.

The White Sox got their first-game victory under way with a run in the third on Mike Tresh's double to right, a sacrifice and an infield out. In the fifth they put the game on ice with two runs. Knott fanned to open the inning, but Jackie Hayes singled to right and Joe Kuhel walked. Mike Kreevich's double scored Hayes and moved Kuhel to third, Kuhel scoring a moment later on Rip Radcliff's long fly.

Diffenbaugh, Whittlesey Win Pro-Amateur at Hillendale

Kenwood Pro Victor In Sweepstakes; 3 D. C. Pros Have 70

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, July 19.—George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood Club professional, and Merrell W. Whittlesey, his amateur partner from Manor, topped the largest pro-amateur field of the season here today at Hillendale, winning the Maryland State Golf Association event with a 60 best ball, playing each nine in 30.

Diffenbaugh played a great round of golf in winning the pro sweepstakes with a 67, three under par, in a round that could easily have been a 62. On 7 of the 12 par four holes he placed his accurate second shots within 5 feet of the pin, and made five of them for birdies. His other birdie was on the short twelfth when an eight iron fell within 2 feet of the pin.

The Kenwood mentor started with four threes on the first five holes, dropping a 4-footer for a birdie on the first, 3-footer on the third and 25-footer on the fourth, that was followed by a par three. He parred the remainder of the nine excepting Midland Park, N. J., July 19 (AP).—No-hit pitching performances seem to be characteristic of the Vander Meer clan.

Dodgers Buy Louisville Rookie For $75,000

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, July 19.—Harold (Peewee) Rese, base-stealing Louisville shortstop, refused the first baseball contract offered him because he feared it would take him to Brooklyn—the club which just has paid $75,000 for him.

Rese, only 19 now, was the star of a Louisville church team which had sent Billy Herman, Cub second baseman, to the majors.

Offered a contract by Cap Neale of the Colonels in 1938, Rese rejected it because "Louisville has a working agreement with Brooklyn and I don't ever want to play with Brooklyn. They are the daffiness boys and I don't want to become daffy."

He was one of the few players retained by the Boston Red Sox when they acquired the Louisville club last winter and the youngster hoped some day to succeed Joe Cronin, Boston's player-manager, at short.

Then Larry S. MacPhail, the dynamo who is the Brooklyn business manager, arrived for the American Association all-star game, and plunked down $35,000 and four players for the youngster.

"Anyway, I am glad to be sold to the Dodgers," chirped Reese today. "Brooklyn's in the major league, isn't it?"

Brownell Wins Extra-Hole Match in Trans-Mississippi Golf

D. C. Player Tops Russell On 20th Hole

464-Yard Birdie Wins After Rally; Albert MacKenzie Wins in Senior's Play

By the Associated Press

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 19.—Pitted by the luck of the draw against his buddy on the Duke University golf team, Bobby Brownell, Washington, D. C.'s only entry in the Trans-Mississippi golf tournament at Broadmoor Club, came through the first round of match play today with a thrilling extra-hole victory over Hank Russell, of Coral Gables, Fla.

A birdie four on the 464-yard twentieth won for the light-hearted little District golfer, 1 up. It was the end of a long, uphill pull, however, Russell having led by two holes at the fourteenth. On the sixteenth Brownell managed to shave that lead in half when his buddy three-putted for a bogey.

Continuing his comeback, Brownell also took the seventeenth and tied up the match. The 18th and 19th were halved and then followed Brownell's winning birdie.

Plays Doering Next

Next opponent for Brownell, who qualified with a 72, will be Art Doering, the Stanford University student, who hails from Chicago. The latter blasted his way to the second round with a 6 and 5 triumph over William Adams, of Pueblo.

Ven Savage, the defending Trans-Miss. champion, cleared the first obstacle in the way of a repetition of his 1938 victory when he took a one-hole lead on Denver's Jack Kerns in the first nine and stretched it to 2 up on the trip in. Savage turned in a 66, two under par, in his effort. Savage will encounter the third of Duke University's representatives, Stewart "Skip" Alexander, in the second round. Alexander's first-day victory was one of the widest turned in, 7 and 5, over Lyman Wright, a local lad.

Held Loses With 70

The surprises came in the defeats of Eddie Held, of Denver, twice a Trans-Mississippi champion, and Bob Babbish, University of Detroit student who won the Western amateur title last year.

Held, whose 70 would have been good enough to win nine matches in ten, ran smack into a 68 fired by Ray Lowell, jr., young Colorado Springs player, who won, 2 up. Babbish's 3 and 2 conqueror was Bob Goldwater, Phoenix, Ariz., department store owner. Babbish three-putted four greens.

Galento, Nova Offered $10,000 for Bout Here

Tony Galento or Lou Nova may be induced by a $10,000 guarantee to come to Washington to fight Red Burman, Baltimore heavyweight, in September in connection with the National Boxing Association convention here, Col. Harvey L. Miller, vice president of the N. B. A., and secretary of the District Boxing Commission, announced yesterday.

Max Waxman, of the Dempsey-Waxman fight tie-up, has informed Miller he is willing to post $10,000 "immediately as a bona fide offer" to induce either of the two main heavyweight contenders to show here, Miller said.

Seconds Trimmed From 10-Mile Mark

Baltimore, July 19 (AP).—Frank Kelly, of the Passon A. A., Philadelphia, clipped 4 1-5 seconds off the course record for the St. Joseph's Monastery 10-mile run tonight, legging it in 50 minutes 22 4-5 seconds. The old mark was 50:27, made by Bill Agee, of Baltimore, last year.

The Passon A. A. took the visiting team trophy with 7 points, and the Washington Track and Field Club was second with 14. The Cross Country Club, of Baltimore, won the local team trophy.

Of the 37 starters, 35 finished. In the first ten were Dr. George Lieberman, Passon A. A., sixth, and George Shorb, Washington Track and Field Club, ninth.

Jack Crawford Tennis Victor At Longwood

Bobby Low, Who Defeated Gil Hunt, Also Advances

By the United Press.

Chestnut Hill, Mass., July 19.—Jack Crawford, of Australia, world top-ranking singles player in 1933, was riding high on the comeback trail tonight, a step away from a semifinal berth in the forty-seventh annual Longwood Bowl tournament.

Third-seeded Gardnar Mulloy, University of Miami, Fla., amateur tennis coach, alone stands in the 31-year-old Aussie's way, and Crawford, on his present form, is a 5-to-3 choice to blast out the tall Southerner.

In a battle of one-time greats that featured today's singles matches, Crawford was superb with the chips down, as put out John Hope Doeg, of Rumson, N. J., a former national champion, 6—2, 5—7, 7—5.

Stirring Rallies

Playing coolly and precisely, Crawford easily ran out the first set after games were tied at 2—all. The secnod set was high-lighted by stirring rallies and extended baseline duels as the 30-year-old Doeg turned on the full power of his forked-lightning service to tie the count. Crawford was content to lay back in the third set and capitalize on Doeg's errors. Both grimly held service until the eleventh game, when Crawford scored a perfect placement, to gain a 6—5 advantage, and then held his own service to win.

The top-seeded Adrian Quist, of Australia, and Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, Calif., both advanced to the semifinals with routine, straight set victories. Quist, ranked sixth internationally, defeated 18-year-old Larry Dee, Stanford University freshman, while Mako trimmed Southpaw Ronald Edwards, of San Jose, Calif.

Low Advances

Unranked Bob Low, No. 1 man on the Stanford University team, again upset advance predictions to join Quist and Mako. Low, who yesterday upset second-seeded Gilbert Hunt, jr., of Washington, D. C., swept to a four-set win over David Freeman, of Pasadena, Calif., top-ranking national junior singlist.

Co-favorites Helen Pedersen, of Stamford, Conn., and Virginia Wolfenden, of San Francisco, Calif., led the women's division into the quarter-finals. Miss Pedersen, top-seeded and ranked eighth nationally, required nearly three hours to whip game Edna Smith, Cleveland physical education instructor. Miss Wolfenden swamped Louise Raymond, of Scarsdale, N. Y., intercollegiate singles titlist.

Other women quarter-finalists were Mary Arnold and Barbara Bradley, Los Angeles; Defending Champion Helen Bernhard, of New York; Katherine Winthrop, Boston; Patricia Canning, Alameda, Calif., and Pauline Betz, Hollywood.

16-Year-Old Net Star Upsets Sidney Wood

Earl Bartlett Wins in Eastern Clay Play; Robert Bensinger, Takoma, in Boy's Finals With Straight Set Victory Over Geller

By the Associated Press

New York, July 19.—Earl Bartlett, 16-year-old New Orleans youngster who stands only five feet six and weighs only 120 pounds, mapped out a smart plan of campaign, and stuck to it when it threatened to blow up in his face, and emerged from the fifth round of the Eastern Clay Court tennis championships today with a 5—7, 6—3, 6—3 victory over Sidney Wood, jr., former Wimbledon champion and Davis Cup star.

Bartlett, Southern junior champion and runner-up for the national interscholastic title two weeks ago, thus reached the quarter-finals with the most startling upset of a thoroughly surprising tournament. Wood, who made a comeback last year to attain No. 4 ranking in the nation, had been seeded No. 1 for this event.

Three other seeded players were shipped to the sidelines with Wood. J. Gilbert Hall, No. 7, lost to Jack Mahoney, of the University of Virginia, 6—2, 2—6, 6—2; Joey Fishbach, of New York, No. 11, bowed to Billy Gillespie, of Atlanta, Ga., 6—3, 7—5, and Frank Bowden, New York veteran seeded twelfth, was beaten at 6—3, 3—6, 7—5, by tall George Toley, of Los Angeles. Toley had whipped Frank Guernsey, the intercollegiate champion, yesterday.

Welsh Leads West Virginia Open Net Play

By the Associated Press

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 19.—Defending Champion Barney Welsh again set the pace for the favorites today in the West Virginia open amateur tennis tourney, breezing into the third round with a victory in love sets over Henry Terrie, jr., of Charleston.

The Rockville (Md.) star, twice winner of the crown, never was pressed, as he turned back his younger opponent.

Eighteen-year-old Deacon Parsons, of Huntington, State closed champion, disappointed the gallery with a carelessly played 6—3, 6—3 decision over Bill Pugh, of Charleston. Parsons was ragged and listless, but never was in danger.

Eddie Blickle, of Columbus, Ohio, Ohio State's assistant football coach and a former West Virginia star, took two steps toward the finals, as J. D. Thompson, of Clifton Forge, Va., defeaulted, and the court veteran posted a 6—3, 6—3 victory over William H. Ruxton, of Cincinnati.

Welsh's opponent tomorrow will be Aubrey Smith, of Beckley, who scampered through a 6—1, 6—4 victory over Webb Hill, of Cincinnati, in the last match of the day, and Blickie will meet Lawrence Smith, of Parkersburg, who upset Sam Nutty, of White Sulphur Springs, 6—3, 6—2.

Parsons is scheduled to play Stacy Hill, of Cincinnati, the Dartmouth team member who eliminated Dr. Maurice Fliess, of Clifton Forge, Va., 6—3, 6—2.

Toast of the Sandlots

Joe Wells, jr.

His brilliance shadowed at Woodrow Wilson High by first Kilmar Bortz and then Herman Byer, young Joe is at last stepping into his own as a pitcher. He's working regularly with the Chevy Chase Red Sox, and in case you hadn't read, he claims a record of 41 fanned batsmen in two starts last week. Allowed five hits in nine innings, and only one base on balls.

He won't be Wilson's star moundsman next year, mainly because he graduated. Now it's a question of a college scholarship, and his hopes are divided between Georgetown and Duke. Probably the first offer will be his choice.

Born in Antilla, Cuba, a mere matter of 17 years ago, Joe is rounding into a perfect pitcher, physically. Well over six feet tall, he's got a husky arm and strong underpinning already, and he isn't half developed yet.

The biggest thrill he got from high school pitching was a pair of victories last year over Central, scholastic champ, 6-4 and 8-3. One of them, which might have put Wilson in the title berth instead of Central, was forfeited later. In 11 appearances for Wilson, he pitched 62 innings, allowed 12 walks, 29 runs, 44 hits, and struck out 63 batsmen.

That big league scouts aren't sound alseep is proved by the fact

JOE WELLS, Jr.

Joe has already had a tryout with one club. You're right, it wasn't the Nats.

First Inning Spree Wins For Cardinals

St. Louis Beats Phils Under Lights, 4-2; Three Hurlers Used

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 19.—A three-run first inning, with the Cardinals hitting Hugh Mulcahy four times, gave St. Louis a 4-to-2 victory over the Phillies tonight in the longest night game played at Shibe Park since floodlights were installed early in the season.

A total of 11,554 fans sat through the 2 hour 25 minute nine-inning event.

Pepper Martin tripled to open the game for the Cards, and scored on Jim Brown's fly-out. Don Padgett and Johnny Mize singled and Enos Slaughter went to first on Mulcahy's error to load the bases with one out. Terry Moore singled to center, bringing in Padgett and Mize to end the scoring.

Mulcahy had scattered six hits through five innings, when the Cards ganged up on him for three safeties, Slaughter forcing Mize to score Padgett.

Bees Trim Cubs, 3-2, On 3 Bunts in Ninth

By the Associated Press.

Boston, July 19.—A timely ninth-inning bunt by Substitute Shortstop Rabbit Warstler brought home a badly needed run today and gave the Boston Bees a 3-to-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Milt Shoffner took his third straight triumph.

The winning run resulted from a single and a barrage of bunts. Tony Cuccinello lashed a hit to leftfield. Then Otto Huber beat out a bunt, Al Lopez bunted the pair down the bases and Warstler, playing shortstop for the injured Eddie Miller, laid down the third bunt to score Cuccinello. The Rabbit also got two other hits during the day.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 19.—The tragedy of being a heel, when you haven't got some saving grace to beguile your audience, has never been more apparent than during the last few days when Dizzy Dean has hit a new low for unfunniness, though he's going through the same routine that once used to bring down the house.

CONSIDINE

Dean has always been a trouble-making maverick, but for a couple years he happened to be one of the five or six greatest pitchers of all time. And though he was an irresponsible oaf throughout that period his pitching skill gave his antics a certain charm. Because of his greatness he was able to get away with strikes, insurrections and nonsense that would have caused a lesser player to be run back to Chillicothe. He had no boss on the St. Louis Cardinals, and after a respectful period of mourning over his dead arm, he now has indicated that he has no boss on the Chicago Cubs.

If they haven't been to a manicurist lately, Frankie Frisch and Gabby Hartnett have more baseball knowledge under their little finger nails than Diz has in his whole hide—and Diz is an instinctively smart ball player. Both tried to help Dean, partly for his own good and mostly for their own, but, like an armless waiter, the fellow finds it hard to take a tip.

Made Me a Goat, Says Diz

Now, though he hasn't anything on the ball except the trade-mark and a wishful fingerprint, and though he hasn't won a game for his staggering team for a month, and only four all season, Dizzy still considers himself beyond the simple laws of his ball club. Since he is familiar with treachery, he recently told a luncheon gathering that one third of the Cubs were dogging it on Hartnett—a story which was so widely quoted that, of course, he quickly yelled "misquoted." Just what Dean has been doing himself, and in just which classification he falls, he doesn't reveal, though he said on arriving back in Chicago that he was being made a goat. It is a pity that the S. P. C. A. recently closed its publicity department, else the one-time demon manager of it, Charles Hoppe, would have come out with a sharp rebuke and in defense of goats. Hoppe was never one to stand by and see a goat maligned.

Dean is getting $20,000 a year for whatever it is he is giving to the Cubs, more money than any other player on the team except Bill Lee, who makes $22,000. He claims that there is much resentment against Hartnett, but if he'd take a poll we think he'd find more against one Jerome H. Dean, who gets all the headlines, and the dough, while the $7,000 a year men do the heavy work of trying to keep the club up in the race.

P. K. Ought to Be Examined

If P. K. Wrigley, who personally bought Dean for $185,000, sympathizes with the pitcher in his present predicament, or takes his side against Hartnett, he ought to have himself examined by one of the two psychologists he sic'd on the Cubs last year. Forgetting his past glory, which doesn't do him any good now, Dean is just a third-rate pitcher, adept only at stirring up trouble. The Cards, who are commonly believed to have abused him (by working him about half as hard as Walter Johnson used to work) would know how to handle him in this present badly over-emphasized crisis. They'd kick him off the team, or make him pitch up or shut up, or fatten him up and sell him to a helium plant. Wrigley, we should think, will be inclined to go lightly on him, for after all you don't beat your own boy on the head with a stick, no matter how bad he is.

When Dizzy had it—and, boy, he did!—there was something entertaining about his trampling off the path of routine. For he always came back dramatically. Now he's a palooka, with an arm that died 10 years before its time and he's not only extremely unfunny but a menace to Wrigley's huge investment in the Cubs.

As to whether anything can be done about him, that remains to be seen. But a good hint as to the futility of appealing to his intellect to steady down and try to help the Cubs was to be had the other night at the Hotel Commodore when Mme. Dean, trying to decide whether it would hurt him more to hit him on the head or on the arm with the lamp she was about to throw, chose his arm as the more vulnerable spot of the two.

Gehringer Out Indefinitely After New Leg Injury

GEHRINGER

Detroit, July 19 (AP).—The management of the Detroit Tigers announced tonight that Charley Gehringer, second baseman, suffered a new leg injury in yesterday's contest with Washington and will be out of the game indefinitely.

Gehringer suffered a pulled leg muscle several weeks ago in a series at Cleveland. The injury was described as "a muscle injury similar to the one which occurred recently but not the same muscle."

Gehringer, now 36 years old, is in his fourteenth season with the Tigers.

Louis and Pastor Contracts Signed

Detroit, July 19 (AP).—Formal articles for the scheduled 20-round heavyweight championship bout between Champion Joe Louis and Bob Pastor, of New York, at Briggs Stadium here September 20, were signed today in a downtown hotel room.

Present were the two principals; Mike Jacobs, New York promoter; John J. Hettche, Michigan boxing commissioner; John Roxborough and Julian Black, co-managers of Louis, and James J. Johnston, Pastor's manager.

Johnston said he and Pastor would inspect several possible sites for a training camp before they return to New York. He said the challenger would begin training August 21.

D. C. Fire Fighters To Face Softball Stars in New York

Fourteen of the top-rated softball players of the District Fire Department teams will go to New York, July 28, to play an All-Star team in Madison Square Garden, G. M. Burdine, of No. 12 Engine Company, manager of the team announced yesterday.

Mayor Fiorella LaGuardis has been asked to toss out the first ball for the game—a charity affair—Paul J. Kern, of the New York Civil Service Commission, informed Burdine. The Fire Department team will play the Public Safety Department ten, of Montclair, N. J., July 27. The Washington team defeated this team last year.

The prospective Fire Department lineup includes Al Davis, catcher; Abe Rosenfield, pitcher; Marshall Peel, pitcher; Bill Moore, Al Raeder, Sten Ritnorer, Charles Strock, infielders; George Burdine, Biff Goodenough, Willie Watt, Joe Grannan, outfielders; Sid Carter, Waldy Waldenmyer and Auly Mattare, utility.

Hader, Singh Head Arena Grapple Bill

Disqualifications Barred in Return Of Mat Favorites

The gentlemen who bounce chairs on one another's cranium and give out with peculiar snarling and wheezing noises for the amusement of the fans at Turner's Arena will go into action tonight at 8:30 o'clock with Nanjo Singh, local wrestling's latest meal ticket, fumbling around with Jack Hader in the 90-minute "anything goes" main bout.

For tonight's bit of fun and harmless nonsense, Hader will unfold his own personal invention—a hold known as the "Hader Potato" and designed to thwart Nanjo's actions with his "cobra clutch" specialty.

Hader won from the Hindu two weeks ago when Nanjo was disqualified for roughness. There will be no disqualifications in the pending bout, however. Promoter Joe Turner has ruled that somebody must win—how being up to the ingenuity of the contestants.

The preliminary card will bring together a motley crew of old-timers and newcomers including Jim Clinstock against Rosy Red Ryan, old stuff; Karl Lopez and Angelo Leone, fairly recent arrivals; Rudy Strongberg, fresh out of Brooklyn, and Veteran Wheezer Ernie Powers, and the old killer, Bibber McCoy, against Pete Managoff, very old stuff, vintage '23.

Lead Please Wins Feature at Hagerstown by 7 Lengths

Allgaier Up; Brainchild Runs Second

Victor Carries Only 103 Lbs., Pays $7.30; Race Run Over Very Heavy Track

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent.

Hagerstown, Md., July 19.—Putting on a last quarter spurt that left her opposition up the race track, H. O. Wilt's Lead Please won as she pleased in the Hamilton Hotel Purse, outstanding event on the midweek card here. Well played by the gathering of 5,000 customers, this 5-year-old daughter of Prince of Wales jogged to the finish line seven lengths ahead of Mrs. A. S. Bowman's Brainchild, with Mrs. C. L. Payne's Royal Veil four other lengths behind and in third place.

Carrying the light weight of the party of seven, 103 pounds, in the person of eneretic riding Apprentice H. Allgaier, Lead Please brought a $7.30 mutuel to her backers. The race was run over a deep, holding track. Although conditions overhead were ideal, the oval had not dried from yesterday's rain and mud was a foot down.

Lead Please was a poor last when the field passed the stands the first time around on the journey of 6½ furlongs. Brainchild, heavily backed, was setting the pace, accompanied by Royal Veil and Way Out. At the paddock turn, Way Out ran out and Brainchild opened a good lead on Royal Veil.

The field was well down the back stretch before Lead Please, on the outside, began to move. With Allgaier helping her with every stride, Lead Please circled her field and came out on top with a good advantage. Through the stretch the mare continued to draw out although Allgaier was taking up on the reins.

Few in the crowd cashed the $121.20 daily double. The combination was No.2, High Betsy, in the first race, and No. 8, Travelo, in the second race. High Betsy scored with the greatest of ease and paid $5.90. Travelo, owned by Eddie Samaha, of Washington, won the second event by two lengths to pay an individual mutuel of $36.40, paving the way for the substantial pay off in the "double."

Jockey Nash Scores Twice At Empire

Marigold Purse Won On Throttle Wide With Last Allowance

By the Associated Press

Empire City, N. Y., July 19.—Ronnie Nash, the Canadian boy who this season has been regarded as one of the country's leading apprentice jockeys, rode with a 5-pound allowance for the last time here this afternoon and made good use of it. Nash, who becomes a full fledged rider tomorrow and bids good-by to his most treasured possession, scored his second triumph of the day astride B. F. Whitaker's Throttle Wide, the even money choice in the Marigold Purse, a dash for fillies and mares.

Throttle Wide needed the 5 pounds advantage, for she barely held on long enough to win by a head from Alvin Untermyer's Torchlight, a 15-to-1 shot. Ogden Phipps' Despondent lost the place by a half length in the blanket finish. The time for the abbreviated 6 furlongs was 1:10 1-5.

Nash, who is employed by Whitaker, a Texas oil man who is enjoying rare success in this sector, has ridden in 455 races this year and triumphed on 68 occasions, including his score on Throttle Wide. Ronnie today ranked thirteenth in the national jockey standing.

The Marigold was a thrilling event all the way. Early Autumn, the second choice with the apprentice, Robert McRobers in the saddle, raced head and head with the ultimate winner until inside the last furlong. McRoberts lost his whip and Early Autumn stopped as Torchlight and Despondent made late challenges.

After bringing Frank L. Moore's Elwawa home a winner in the opening race, Jockey Edward de Camillis was suspended for using an appliance other than a whip or spurs on the horse. His case was referred to the Jockey Club. Elwawa ran like he was stung with something as he moved up with a rush, took the lead and simply toyed with his field. Elwawa, in his most recent effort, came from far back, fairly running over horses to take fourth money.

Jersey Race Bill Provides 7-Month Racing, 4 Tracks

By the Associated Press

Trenton, N. J., July 19.—Completion of a bill permitting 140 days of horse racing with pari-mutuel betting at four tracks during a seven-month season in New Jersey was announced today by a special legislative committee delegated to prepare a control measure.

Assemblyman Roscoe P. McClave said the completed draft provides for a $1.50 minimum admission to tracks, a maximum of 35 days of racing at each track between April 1 and November 1, and a State "take" of 4 per cent on all bets, with 6 per cent going to the track and the remaining 90 per cent divided among the betters.

Tracks would be permitted to retain as "breakage" only up to 4 cents on a ticket. If, for example, the pari-mutuel value of a ticket were $2.56, the track would have to pay off $2.55 instead of the $2.50 in effect at most racing centers.

The Legislature will consider the bill August 3.

Corn Tumbles To Bottom For Season

Wheat Prices Also Decline With Other Grains Irregular

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 19.—Prospects of a large new corn crop plus a record-breaking carryover from the previous harvest discouraged support today and prices fell more than a cent to the lowest levels since 1934. Wheat declined in sympathy.

All corn futures established new season lows. July contracts tumbled 1¼ below the previous close to 42⅝, and September 1⅜ to 43¾ cents. Closing prices were virtually at the lows, July 42¾@42⅝; September, 43¾@43⅝ cents.

Earlier in the session wheat prices advanced ⅝ cent, aided by Canadian crop deterioration reports and strength at Liverpool. Winnipeg, however, failed to reflect much concern over the crop damage, prices there declining as much as ¾ cent and closing unchanged to ⅛ off.

Wheat on the Board of Trade closed ⅛ to ⅜ lower; July, 86⅛; September, 66¾@66⅞. Oats finished ⅛ up to ⅞ off. Soy beans, ⅜ up to 1⅛ off. Rye, ⅜ off to ½ up. Lard, 3 to 5 cents lower.

Cotton Rally Adds 45 to 60 Cents Per Bale

New York, July 19 (AP).—Last-hour buying got the cotton futures market on its feet in a strong forward direction today. Canceling early losses, the final range was up 9 to 12 points.

Prices moved ahead sharply late in the day when buying by shorts to cover previous sales revealed a scarcity of contracts. Other demand was attracted by a belief on the part of traders the market had reached an at least temporary bottom.

Early prices declined 3 to 7 points when Bombay and Liverpool sold actively in October and December. Added depressants included hedge selling and further weakness at Liverpool.

Cottonseed Oil

The cottonseed oil futures market abruptly reversed itself today, closing 7 to 12 points down after a substantial run-up Tuesday. Easiness of lard and corn intensified selling, although there was some new speculative support on the decline.

Power Production At High for This Year

New York, July 19 (AP).—Electric power production in the United States in the week ended July 15 bounded to the highest level thus far in the year in a sharp recovery from the Fourth of July holiday lull, Edison Electric Institute reported today. Latest energy output of 2,324,181,000 kilowatthours was 11.8 per cent ahead of 2,077,956,000 in the preceding holiday week and 11.5 per cent more than 2,084,457,000 in the comparable 1938 week.

The jump, which was more than seasonally anticipated, also carried the Associated Press power index to a high new for the year at 122.8. The index, which is based on 1929-30 as 100 and is adjusted for seasonal and long-term trend, stood at 113.9 in the preceding week and 107.9 a year ago.

Closing Lower but Optimism Reigns Technical Reaction Stems Advance Trading Lighter but Exceeds a Million

New York, July 19.—Losses predominated in today's stock market but the action failed to dislodge the recent wave of bullish enthusiasm. A decline of 0.36 point in the composite average for the day fell just short of eliminating the gain of the previous day. The street was looking for a technical reaction, following the gains made in 12 of the previous 14 days of trading this month and particularly after the impressive bulge of Monday.

Reasons for the bullish forces maintaining their newly found optimism included: The above belief that the reaction was technical, the decline in the day's volume as compared with that of the two previous bull sessions, the fact that the list came back strongly in the final hour and a strong demonstration in the aviation division, which had been laggard of late.

Neutrality Act

No additional reasons were needed to bring about the modest correction but the action of the President in abandoning his efforts to persuade Congress to revise the neutrality act at this session was considered a factor by many. The Administration does not try to hide its disappointment and the President is reported as feeling that the European crisis is one which could come to a head on 24 hours' notice and that he should be free to act without the restrictions imposed by the present act. Of course, a special session of Congress can be called, and will be if things boil too much in any of the various trouble spots, but this means a delay.

Many of those in the financial district who have disagreed consistently with the Administration would have preferred Congress to have displayed its independence on something other than the neutrality issue.

There is a growing belief that the threat of an immediate war has been removed and the American public is sometimes accused of being more apprehensive than are the citizens of foreign countries who would certainly be involved. But while there has been a better feling regarding the immediate future, it would be foolish to ignore the potential dangers which are involved in the Danzig question, the Mediterranean, the question of colonies and the Far Eastern struggle. Some of the traders who have been holding back in the present advance in the market base their caution on the assumption that in one of these areas a crisis cannot be avoided before the end of the year.

Business News Favorable

Business news of the midweek favored the bullish side. Particularly was this the case in the power figures, which showed that the production of electricity in the week ended July 15 was the highest since the week ended December 24, 1938. Ignoring the previous week, which contained a legal holiday, the gain was the sixth in succession. The steel industry is regarded as being in better shape, according to the Iron Age review, with prices hardening. Car loadings are on the upgrade. Oil prices have been showing more firmness. On the opposite side of the ledger today was the cut made by some of the leading tire manufacturers. For a period of ten days, beginning today, a price reduction of 25 per cent is effective on second-line tires, the more popular line. Designed to increase sales, the change is seen as reflecting competition from some of the large marketing chains.

Aircrafts in Demand

Reawakened interest in the aviation stocks resulted in four stocks of this division being included in the day's list of 15 most active stocks, namely Aviation Corp., United Aircraft, North American Aviation and Glenn L. Martin. Each made a fractional gain. Douglas was up 1⅝, Boeing a point and inactive Wright Aeronautical, 4 points.

Loft was the day's most active stock, making another new high and closing up a point. Fractional declines marked the action of the leading motors and steels. Standard of New Jersey was soft, closing off 1⅜. Declines of about a point were sustained by Telephone, American Can, Anaconda, North American and General Electric.

Listed bonds today marched a little way down the hill up which they proceeded merrily in the two preceding sessions. The losses were small in comparison to previous gains, and a tendency toward dullness on the downside left bond men fairly optimistic. The investment community was busily engaged in placing the new $85,000,000 Shell Union 2½s, which had a fair reception. Turnover in listed issues amounted to $5,690,000, against $8,240,000 the previous day.

United States Treasury bonds showed losses to one-quarter point on a modest turnover, the longest dating being off more than nearby maturities. Guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations likewise lost a little ground. Telephone issues were steady, while the new offering of Southern Bell debentures was awaited. Best rated power and light, rail and industrial bonds hardly varied.

Medium priced railroad bonds drifted slightly lower, as buyers were reluctant in the expectation that a recession would follow the two days of advancing levels. Lehigh Valley bonds jumped, but other borderline rails were easier and default issues also drifted lower. Local tractions moved upward against the general trend and some amusement issues were firm, but other special groups took the easiest course downward.

Polish bonds firmed in the foreign section despite the international difficulties. German nad Italian bonds were idle and soft. Japanese bonds moved into lowest areas of the year. Highest grade foreigns did not change to any marked degree. Latin-American default issues showed small gains and losses.

German Exports Jump Despite Slump to U. S.

Berlin, July 19 (AP). — Germany's exports in June exceeded imports by 94,100,000 marks (about $37,640,000), more than double the export balance of May, it was announced today. For the first six months of 1939 an excess of 56,800,000 marks (about $23,520,000) in exports over imports was recorded.

The apparent increase in exports in June over May, 52,200,000 marks ($20,880,000), was due in large measure to a new method of keeping statistics. June figures included some deliveries actually made in May. Exports listed for June amounted to 537,500,000 marks ($215,000,000), and imports 443,400,000 marks ($177,360,000).

Today's announcement said that imports from Italy, Britain, Hungary and the Netherlands had increased, those from Rumania, Greece and Turkey had decreased.

German exports increased to Britain, Turkey, the Netherlands, Italy and Sweden, while those to Poland, Switzerland and France decreased. Export increases to Argentina, Venezuela, Mexico and Colombia were noted, while there was a strong recession in exports to the United States.

Competitive Bidding Hurtful, Says Banker

New York, July 19.—The sale of new issues of corporate securities in open competition to the highest bidder rather than through direct negotiation with underwriters, if carried into effect voluntarily by issuers and underwriters or through the compulsion of new legislation or administrative rulings, would be detrimental to the interest of the investing public and to that of corporations seeking capital, according to the findings of a comprehensive study of the results of competitive bidding in actual practice, written by Franklin T. McClintock of Harriman Ripley & Co., Inc., and made public today.

Chesapeake and Erie Increase June Net

Cleveland, July 19 (AP).—Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's June net income was reported today as $2,557,325, an increase of $1,259,725 over June, 1938. It brought six months' net to $5,399,410, a decrease of $124,158 from the comparable period last year.

Erie Railroad's trustees today reported net railway operating income for June of $817,274, in contrast to an $8,577 deficit in June, 1938. Six months' totals were $4,199,692 this year against a deficit of $279,205 last year.

60 Per Cent Steel Output Due in August

Current Operating Rate of 56.5% Is The Highest This Year

New York, July 19.—"A rise of six and a half points in ingot production to 56½ per cent this week brings steel operations to the highest level of the year thus far and half a point above the previous week of 56 per cent in the second week of March," Iron Age says today in its weekly summary of the steel industry. The review adds: "The next important forward movement probably will come in August when specifications from the automobile industry for 1940 models will be in larger volume. It is believed that the rate at that time may go to 60 per cent or higher for at least a brief period.

"Despite the strikes of tool and die makers which have held back preparations for new models by General Motors, there has been a slight gain in automotive specifications. Although Packard will be the first motor company to complete its new cars, Ford Motor Co. is the first to inquire for a sizable tonnage of steel, having asked for prices this week on 75,000 tons."

Gains in New Business

"New business and specifications against previous commitments have gained sharply in the past week over the preceding holiday week so that the month thus far compares favorably with the first half of June, which for many companies was the second best month of the year. One important company had a gain last week in its orders of about 45 per cent over the aggregate in the first week of the month. In the first half of July orders for some products have been 5 to 10 per cent over those of the like period last month. For the first time in several months some backlog tonnage is being accumulated.

"The strengthening of steel prices is believed to be partly responsible for improvement in orders. While concessions have not entirely disappeared, particularly on shapes, plates and reinforcing bars, steel users are apparently becoming convinced that prices are not going lower and are buying with more confidence."

Y., reported for the six months ended June 30 profit of $1,322,449 before allowance for Federal income taxes, compared with $1,342,862 in the first half of 1938. After provision for estimated Federal income taxes and dividends on outstanding Class A stock, the profit amounted to $1,094,055, equal to $2.50 a share on the common stock, compared with $1,111,809, or $2.54 a share, in the first half of 1938.

Glenn L. Martin

The Glenn L. Martin Co. of Baltimore reports for the second quarter net sales of $1,758,148 and a net profit of $285,127, equal to 26 cents per share. This brings the net sales for the first six months of 1939 to $5,298,659 and the net profit to $967,624.09, equal to 88½ cents per share. As of June 30, 1939, the company's backlog of undelivered orders was $37,835,458 compared with the $13,903,006 backlog of December 31, 1938.

Seizure of Rich Mine Set Aside by Court

Bogota, Columbia, July 19 (AP).—The Choco Pacific Mining Co., today had uncontested title to its big platinum and gold mining properties in western Colombia as the result of a supreme court decision which set aside a 1937 government order nullifying the company's land titles.

The supreme court decision reaffirmed private property rights and stated that government ministries could not set aside titles to mining properties. The Choco Pacific Co., said to be at least partly financed by the capital of United States citizens, mines a river bed to which it obtained title in 1899.

THE COMPANY Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, all of the stock of which is owned by American Telephone and Telegraph Company, was incorporated in New York in 1879. The Company is engaged in the telephone business in Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee. The properties of the Company consist mainly of telephone instruments and facilities for their interconnection, the latter consisting chiefly of central office switching equipment and connecting lines. The Company is subject to regulation by the Federal Communications Commission and by state authorities in each of the states in which it operates, within their respective jurisdictions. The Federal Communications Commission recently transmitted to Congress its report on an investigation which it had conducted of the telephone industry in the United States. This report is adversely critical of American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its subsidiaries in respect of most of the matters considered and contains certain recommendations for additional legislation designed to enlarge the regulatory powers of the Commission.

Diffenbaugh, Whittlesey Win Pro-Am

Winners Post 60; Kenwood Pro Victor In Sweepstakes

He started back the same way he began the first nine, with four beautiful approach shots in a row. He missed a birdie on the tenth but on the next three holes stuck iron shots so close to the pin he couldn't miss the birdie putts. Again on the seventeenth he rammed a short iron close to the pin, but the putt dribbled away from the cup.

Whittlesey played perfectly on the holes his partner was out, until the eighteenth. The Post sports writer birdied the second after an eight-iron wound up inches from the pin. With a handicap stroke allowance on the eighth, he parred the hole and netted a birdie as Diffenbaugh went over with a par. When George hit a tree with a wood shot on the par 5 fourteenth, and finished with a 6, his partner dropped an 8-foot putt for a birdie, and used his second stroke allowance to get an eagle 3, helping three shots on one hole.

The Manor amateur made it two birdies in a row with a 50-foot putt on the fifteenth, and with par in for a 59. Diffenbaugh parred the sixteenth and seventeenth, but they both missed on the final hole, the Kenwood pro trapping his second and Whittlesey pushing a spoon that hit in the driveway to the clubhouse and rolled all the way down the hill into the parking lot and an unplayable lie.

Tie for Second

Three District pros figured in the four-way tie for second in the pro-sweeps, Leo Walper with a 36, 34—70, even par, and Al Treder, Manor, and Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam, each with a pair of par 35's. Ralph Beach, Suburban mentor, also had a par round. Robert Barnett, Chevy Chase, had 72.

Diffenbaugh and another partner, Eddie Bean, Beaver Dam, tied for second in the pro-amateur, the latter dropping a birdie deuce on the fifth, par on the sixteenth and a valuable par, playing his second shot from a ditch on the final hole. Leo Walper and a host club simon-pure, Charles Phillips, had 32, 31—63, and host pro Charles Betschler and partner had a like score.

District duos were prominent in the 64 bracket, Spencer and Joe Balestri, Beaver Dam; Al Treder and Ray Fleming, Manor; Robert Barnett, Chevy Chase, and Joen MacKenzie, of Hillendale, and Betschler and O'Hara. Diffenbaugh and Maury Fitzgerald had 65.

Contract Bridge

The players of today's deal did not know whether to be glad or sorry that after getting in a tangle with the Blackwood bid they suddenly stopped below a slam. Six was made, but had the four no-trumper continued as he should, his partner might have ventured seven, and whether he would have made it is questionable.

North claimed six-odd immediately upon seeing the dummy; one spade, one club, five trump tricks in his own hand, a diamond ruff in dummy and four diamond tricks. Thirteen tricks can be won, however, by a different line of play. Can you see how it is done?

William Lewis, bridge expert of Columbus and discoverer of the hand, describes the correct play as follows:

"North could place East with the queen of clubs from the opening lead and there would be little danger of an overruff by him in that suit, so if three clubs were ruffed in North's hand the losing spade could be discarded on dummy's long trump. That would mean that the tricks would count up like this; one spade, one club, three club ruffs by North, three heart tricks in the dummy, a diamond ruff with dummy's last trump, and the ace, king, queen and established long diamond for 13 tricks."

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

THE SLIGHTLY FRAYED idea that labor saving machines mean unemployment is turned over to the rummage sale to be given away free, by Justin W. Macklin, first assistant commissioner of patents. He has a collection of hard, reliable statistics to prove it isn't so. Macklin is naturally interested in the subject because as a "patent man" he's responsible for a lot of the labor saving gadgets that go on the market.

Says Macklin: "It's a simple fact that mechanization lowers costs; that the more cheaply goods are produced, the more are sold; and the more goods that are sold, the more people are employed."

Machinery making got into a gallop between 1870 and 1930. In the earlier year it took 240 workers to furnish goods and services required per 1,000 population. In 1930, there were 398 per 1,000. And that, says Macklin with some justification, must mean more employment. The last few years have seen dozens of new industries step out of swaddling clothes and into overalls, because newly patented inventions took them out of the crawling class.

FOR INSTANCE, suggests Macklin, look at the humble automobile horn. It seems that out in Michigan there was a factory geared to turn out one each for every automobile. Then someone turned on the light and invented a machine that produced horns so economically that they could be marketed at half the original price. What happened next was that auto plants thereupon ordered not one big noise but two for every car. And nobody lost his job.

And how about that loaf of bread? At the present time commercial bakeries, with electric mixers and robot ovens, employ over 200,000. If the mixers and the ovens were sold down the river, would the 200,000 be increased to possibly a 1,000,000?

Not by a long count, says Macklin. Most of the present workers would possibly lose their jobs, because hand-baked bread would be so expensive, the housewife would put on her apron and make it herself. That would mean she'd have less time to go to the beauty parlor, and then where would the permanent wave experts operate?

Just one more illustration. In 1860 when roll top desks were in their prime and there was not a single office machine, there were only 4,000 per 1,000,000 Americans in office work. Today there are 50,000 per 1,000,000, and in addition 113 firms employ 34,000 highly skilled persons to manufacture office machines.

THERE'S ONE OTHER thing along this patent line. Macklin wants to make it clear that in spite of the vast technological development in the past few years, only about three patents are issued annually per 10,000 residents. Which means that the Patent Office doesn't work on a willy-nilly basis. The idea has to be better than good to get by.

TICKETS FOR THAT Agriculture Department boatride tomorrow evening will have to be spoken for ahead of time, according to Mrs. Roby W. Stehr, pilot of the social events committee. And here are the people you can see for your passports: Frank Taylor, Mrs. Virginia Whitsitt, Wayne Chambers, Mrs. L. S. Pierce, Miss Katherine Wahlgren, Miss Hilda Nelson, Gene A. Zwerner, James Baldwin, L. S. Mathis, Richard Mayo, Miss Ann Sahm, Emmett Andrews, V. R. Sobieralski, E. A. Rapp, Miss Lyndall E. Duvall, William K. Savage, LeRoy Day, Lawrence Matthews.

The Agriculture cruise is traditionally an annual affair, although it didn't take place last season.

NOT TO ARRIVE in Washington until the last part of this month, Dr. Olaf S. Aamodt, newly appointed principal agronomist in charge of the division of forage crops and diseases, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, is now making a field trip to co-operative experiment stations in the Middle West and South. When he gets here he'll delve into grass and pasture research. Since 1935 he has been head of the agronomy department at the University of Wisconsin . . . Mrs. Hazel P. Richards, of the Veterans' Administration, is spending a busman's vacation at the School of Dancing Masters at the Hotel Astor in New York. She was dance director for the Agriculture Playhouse last winter . . . Michael Strauss, press chief for Interior, is away on vacation . . . Harold Ambrose, press aide for the Post Office Department, made the dedication spiel on Tuesday for the new letter box headquarters in Everett, Mass.

DR. W. W. STOCKBERGER, of the Agriculture Department, and Mrs. Stockberger will be the guests par excellence at the banquet to be given on June 29 at the Madrillon by members of the Agriculture chorus. Dr. Stockberger will get a great big hand at the party because it was he who was instrumental in making the chorus grow from 10 members five years ago to 50 today.

The chorus after its concert on July 27 will take a few rests between its notes until September. Robert Frederick Freund, its retiring director, will be telling it what to do for the last time next Thursday. He's forming a new group of warblers from members of the Agriculture and Farm Credit singers. The program to be given at Secretary Wallace's auditorium will include a group of Russian numbers, piano solos by Victor H. Neal, and a collection of American ballads, one of which is a John Charles Thomas favorite.

Democrats Plan Sail

Members of the Washington Young Democrats Club will leave the Seventh Street wharf at 8:45 p. m. tomorrow for their second moonlight cruise of the season, aboard the S. S. Potomac.

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

Chapter XLIV

THE PROSPECT was more than acceptable. Penny would start him on his reading lesson, or his sums, and then before either of them knew it would be off on a tale. Jody went on with his grinding with a light heart. Flag came up and he stopped to let the fawn lick the meal at the waste-hole. He often took a taste himself. The stones became hot from the friction and the meal smelled like popcorn or cornpone. When he was hungry enough, a mouthful was palatable, but it never tasted as good as it smelled. Flag was bored with the inactivity and wandered away. He was becoming bolder and was sometimes gone in the scrub for an hour or so. There was no holding him in the shed. He had learned to kick down the loose board walls. Ma Baxter expressed the belief, only because it was her hope, that the fawn was going wild and would eventually disappear. Jody was no longer even troubled by the remark. He knew that the same restlessness came to the fawn that came to him. Flag merely felt the need of stretching his legs and exploring the world about him. They understood each other perfectly. He knew, too, that when Flag wandered away he moved in a circle and was never out of hearing of Jody's call.

That evening Flag got himself in serious disgrace. The sweet potatoes had been cured and heaped in a pile on the back porch. Flag roamed there while everyone was occupied and found that by butting the pile the potatoes would roll. The sound and motion charmed him. He butted the pile until it was strewn over most of the yard. He tramped on the potatoes with his sharp hooves. The odor enticed him and he nibbled one. The taste pleased him and he went from one to another, nibbling. Ma Baxter discovered him too late. Grave damage had been done. She drove him furiously with a palmetto broom. The game was much the one of chase that Jody played with him. When she turned away he turned as well and, following, butted her in her ample rear. Jody came in from his grinding to a hullabaloo and a crisis. Even Penny upheld Ma Baxter in the gravity of the matter. Jody could not endure the expression on his father's face. He could not keep back the tears.

He said, "He didn't' know what he was doin'."

"I know, Jody, but the harm's as bad to the 'taters as if he done it for meanness. We got scarcely enough rations now to do the year."

"Then I'll not eat no 'taters, and make it up."

"Nobody wants you should do without 'taters. You jest got to keep track o' that scaper. If you keep him, it's your place to see he don't do no damage."

"Then pen him.

JODY ROSE before day the next morning and began work on a pen in the corner of the yard. He studied its position with an eye to using the fence for two corners of the pen, and to having it where he could see Flag from most of his own work-spots, the millstone, the wood-pile and the barn lot in particular. Flag would be content, he knew, if he was in sight of him. He finished the pen in the evening, when his chores were done. The next day he untied Flag from the shed and lifted him into the pen, kicking and struggling. Flag was over the bars and out and at his heels again before he reached the house. Penny found him again in tears.

"Dont git in a swivet, boy. We'll work this out, one way or t'other. Now the 'taters is near about the only thing he'll bother, do you keep him outen the house. They'd ought to be under kiver, anyway. Now you take down that tipply-tumbly pen, and build a coop to kiver the 'taters. Like a chicken coop, with two sides comin' to a peak. I'll start you on it."

With the potatoes bedded and covered there was no more serious trouble. Flag had to be kept out of the smokehouse as well as the house, for he had grown so large that by rearing on his hind legs he could reach the hanging sides of bacon and lick the salt.

Ma Baxter said, "I don't want nobody but me lickin' the meat I eat, let alone a nasty creetur."

Flag was annoyingly curious, as well, and butted over a can of lard in the smokehouse to hear the cover fall and see what was inside. The day was cool and the thin, loose lard was discovered before it had run out. But such intrusions could be taken care of simply by keeping the doors shut, as was desirable in any case. Jody developed a good memory for such details.

Penny said, "Hit'll do you no harm to learn to be keerful. You got to learn takin' keer o' rations comes first of all—first after gettin' 'em."

THE FIRST heavy frost came at the end of November. The leaves of the big hickory at the north end of the clearing turned as yellow as butter. The sweet gums were yellow and red and the black-jack thicket across the road from the house flamed with a red as bright as a camp-fire. The grapevines were golden and the sumac was like oak embers. The October blooming of dog-fennel and sea-myrtle had turned to a feathery fluff. The days came in, cool and crisp, warmed to a pleasant slowness, and chilled again. The Baxters sat in the evening in the front room before the first hearth-fire.

Jody lay flat on his belly, staring into the flames. It was here that he was often able to see Fodder-wing's Spaniard. By squinting his eyes and waiting for the blaze to shift just-so up a crotched log, he could picture, with no trouble at all, a horseman in a red cape, wearing a shining helmet. The picture never lasted long, for the wood stirred and the logs fell, and the Spaniard rode away again.

He asked, "Did the Spaniards have red capes?"

Penny said, "I don't know, son. Now you see how handy a teacher'd be."

He rolled over on his side and stretched one arm across Flag. The fawn lay asleep, his legs tucked under his stomach, like a calf. His white tail twitched in his sleep. Ma Baxter did not mind his being in the house in the evening, after supper. She even turned an unseeing eye on his sleeping in Jody's bedroom, for at least then he was into no mischief. She took him for granted with the critical disinterest she showed the dogs. They were outside, sleeping under the house. On bitter nights Penny brought them in, too, not that it was necessary, but because he enjoyed sharing his comfort.

Ma Baxter said, "Throw a stick on the fire. I cain't quite see to foller my seams."

She said, "Now you take another notion to grow like you done this spring, and I'll be suttin down your breeches to fit your daddy."

Jody laughed out loud and Penny pretended to be offended. Then his eyes twinkled in the firelight and his thin shoulders shook. Ma Baxter rocked complacently. They were all pleased whenever she made a joke. Her good nature made the same difference in the house as the hearth-fire had made in the chill of the evening.

Penny said, "You and me had ought to be gittin' out that speller, boy."

MA BAXTER poised her needle in the air. She pointed it at him.

"You best study your grammar, too," she said. "You'd ought to say, 'The roaches has eat it.'"

Penny said, "You know, I got a idee we'll not have no great cold this winter."

Jody said, "I like it cold, if 'twa'n't for totin' in wood."

"Yes, sir, hit look like a good winter. We come out a heap better'n I figgered on the crops and meat. Mebbe a feller kin git his breath now."

Ma Baxter said, "About time."

"Yes, sir, ol' Starvation's doin' his huntin' another place."

The evening wore on without further speech. There was no sound but the hearth-fire simmering, the puff of Penny's pipe, and the creak-pat, creak-pat of Ma Baxter's rocker on the board floor. Once a great whistling passed over the house, like a sudden wind in the pine trees. Ducks were flying south. Jody looked up at his father. Penny pointed the stem of his pipe upward and nodded. If he were not so comfortable, Jody would have liked to ask what kind they were and where they were going. If he could know such things as his father knew them, he could manage, he thought, without the sums and the spelling. He liked the reading. Most of it was tales, not as good as Penny's—none was—but still, tales.

He rose and knocked out his pipe on the hearth. As he bent, the dogs began to bark and dashed from under the house. It seemed as though his stirring had awakened them from sleep, and they had plunged after an imaginary enemy.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Safety Aided As Seal Joins Traffic Group

Counsel to See Data For Criminal Action in Damage Claim Cases

Another step was taken yesterday toward closing loopholes through which traffic violators escape punishment after accidents, when Corporation Counsel Seal joined forces with the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Council.

Seal will ask the assistance of the police officer reporting the accident, in cases where damage claims are settled out of court and witnesses are reluctant to swear to the necessary information for a criminal prosecution.

Groups Discuss Course

At a meeting between the legislation and enforcement committee of the council, and the Corporation Counsel and his assistants, held in Seal's office yesterday afternoon, it was explained, the police officer would risk suit for false arrest if no prosecution resulted.

Where the officer first was advised by the corporation counsel's office prosecution was possible, it was suggested he might escape this responsibility. Seal agreed to investigate the problem, "to see how far we can go."

The committee suggested informal testimony before the corporation counsel be taken down in writing under oath, and used in the court. Seal objcted, as the necessary court stenographers are not available. Seal indorsed the committee's proposal to ask for appropriations in next year's budget to provide stenographers.

Drunkenness Test Approved

Also indorsed were proposals for certain tests of drunkenness, to be applied at the time of an accident, and the arrest and prosecution of motorists frequently involved in accidents.

"It is a known fact that most accidents are caused by a minority of drivers," declared Harry S. Wender, chairman of the committee.

Personalized Medical Plan Called Success

Garrett Expects Other Cities to Copy Program Tried Here

A new technique in furnishing medical aid to Washington's underprivileged, expected to be copied soon by other cities, was announced yesterday by Ross Garrett, co-ordinator of the Health Security Administration.

Declaring successful a three-month experiment with the plan among workers in the Self-Help Exchange, the administration is extending the personalized technique to Goodwill Industries workers today and plans to make it available soon to all of the city's agencies for underprivileged.

The system consists of utilizing volunteered services of general practitioners for semiweekly medical conferences with ailing workers, followed when necessary with technical examinations and treatment at specialized centers, using the Community Chest's hospitalization fund for advanced treatment. Largely eliminating the general clinic system for diagnoses, the innovation substitutes personal interviews with "family" doctors and HSA caseworkers.

When the patient is not eligible for District aid, the Health Security Administration issues passes for his admission to a hospital for outpatient treatment or hospitalization, paying a reduced rate from the $259,000 annual Chest fund. Average cost to the administration of having such patients cared for has been only $1.23.
